'Friendly, Inquisitive, Personable' Arabians Become Champions

According to Shirley Craig, Arabians make good family horses because they are generally friendly, inquisitive, and "quite personable." Craig, who shows her horses in Pennsylvania, Maryland, and Virginia, has won the Battle of the Breeds event at KILE for seven years. Photo by Michelle Kunjappu

LITTLE BRITAIN (Lancaster Co.) — For Shirley Craig, the horse business is simply all in the family.

Not Craig's family, actually — the horse family that resides on her farm.

At Country Arabians, 11 Arabians and one Haflinger make their home on the farm. Craig started with one purebred Arabian mare, one purebred stallion, and one partbred mare, and "everything was created from there," Craig said.

After learning to ride on a pony Craig, who always had an interest in horses, found a prospect in the paper and traveled to Lancaster to buy a Palomino yearling, Tapioca. The Palom-

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — This week's meeting of the LanChester Pork Council drew 80 producers and industry representatives for not only an educational seminar but also a board of directors' election.

Conducted Tuesday at Yoder's Restaurant, the 43rd annual meeting also featured an afternoon session where Chet Hughes and Bob Mikesell, Penn State cooperative extension, re-

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — Stomach space.

That's what dairy producers, marketers, and promoters need to focus on, according to Don Schriver, senior vice president of Dairy Farmers of America (DFA).

For dairy producers to survive, store shelf space containing soft drinks, teas, coffee, and bottled water has to be occupied instead by milk products with the same type of containers favored by the consumer.

Schriver spoke to more than 200 dairy producers and agri-

Northeast Broiler Fryer Parts Part I

ATLANTA, GA.

Report Supplied By USDA

Trucklot buying activity was fair but unaggressive. Offerings of b/s breasts were available but slightly improved from early week, bone-in breasts were noted as about adequate to a balanced position. Dark meat cuts were fully sufficient, with thighs reported in the longest position. Wings were generally adequate, although party wings were short. Movement through retail and distributive channels was about fair, and was best for the occasional feature. The market tone was fully steady on bone-in breasts, improved on party wings, and about steady on the balance.

Des Moines, Iowa

Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL YOUNG TURKEY PARTS AND BULK MEAT, Frozen, unless specified, cents per lb, delivered first receivers, part and full trucklots, as of Dec. 12, 2001.

The trade sentiment on tom breast meat and de-trapped tenderloins was steady to instances weak, breast trim steady to barely steady with ground the softest, scapula barely steady at best and wing meat steady. White meat demand was light. Offerings of tom breast meat and de-trapped tenderloins ranged adequate to ample, breast trim mixed with ground the most readily available, scapula fully adequate, and wing meat was generally adequate. Domestic trading centered on a moderately heavy volume of fresh 15-20% mechanically separate turkey (MST), balance slow. Grade A 4-8 lb breasts traded at 94.75 cents delivered January. Export trading consisted of light volumes of thigh meat, drums and MST. Offerings of frozen thigh meat continued to be held with confidence with higher trending offering and sales prices noted.

WINTER SOLSTICE, DEC. 21

BEWARE THE POGONIP!

As the Full Long Nights Moon approaches (Dec. 30) and the winter solstice nears, weather conditions may converge to form icy needles of frozen fog, known to Native Americans as the pogonip. The Old Farmer's Almanac has warned, "Beware the Pogonip!" for centuries, but this weather condition is particularly noted in the mountain valleys of the U.S. West. Taken up as a meteorological term, the pogonip was thought to be especially injurious to the elderly, invalids or anyone with delicate lungs. This week also marks Saturnalia, a celebration of the planter god, Saturn, from pre-Christian Roman times. Bonfires, candlelighting, feasts, and decorations of greens symbolized the renewal of the seasons after the dark days of winter. In Greek lore, Hecaton Days, a period of peace and tranquility, were celebrated in the two weeks around the winter solstice.

Where there is peace, God is.

TIP OF THE WEEK

Expensive ornaments make easy hostess gifts in the holiday season.

PORK CUTLETS IN CIDER

1-1/2 pounds boneless pork cutlets, trimmed
1 cup cider
4 small apples, peeled and sliced
1/4 teaspoon salt
ground pepper to taste
1/2 cup sour cream
1 tablespoon prepared brown mustard

ples, and seasonings. Simmer for about 10 minutes until cutlets are cooked. Remove to serving plate.

Boil pan juices to reduce to 1/2 cup. Cool briefly, then stir in sour cream and mustard. Pour over the cutlets.

Corporate Farms?

Environmentalists and anti-agriculturists are providing a lot of heat to township planning committees regarding their so-called worries about "corporations taking over agriculture."

The idea that corporations are building complexes so that shareholders can reap easy money simply isn't true.

We point to a study, extracted from Country Focus and the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, and reprinted in the December 2001 PennAg Journal.

"Are Corporate Farms Taking Over Pennsylvania?" points to the ensuing debate: are "corporate farms" either "good" or "bad" for ag and the environment? Do townships view large-scale agriculture as foe or friend?

Bill Adams, Pennsylvania Farm Bureau's director of natural resources, looked at 1997 Federal Census of Agriculture statistics. Classifying operations with at least $1,000 in ag sales as farming operations, the Census Bureau surveyed 45,457 ag operations in Pennsylvania covering 7.1 million acres of farmland. Those surveyed were asked to identify their operations as individual or family (sole proprietorship), partnership, corporation, or other (trust, cooperative, or estate).

A total of 40,176 respondents controlling 5.6 million acres of farmland listed themselves as "individual or family operations." Another 3,957 respondents, according to the Farm Bureau, controlling 1.1 million acres classified themselves as partnerships. The "other category" was listed by 183 respondents with 47,727 acres.

Those who listed themselves as corporations accounted for 1,141 respondents. Of this number, 1,024 with 318,555 acres of farmland were part of "family-held" corporations. The remaining 117 operations controlling 18,870 acres described themselves as "other than family held" corporations.

Of these 117 operations, according to Farm Bureau, only seven listed having more than 10 stockholders and the remaining 110 indicated they had 10 or fewer stockholders.

Farm Bureau's conclusion: the nonfamily held corporations accounted for less than one quarter of one percent of the farmers in Pennsylvania, according to census figures.

The 1997 Census was compared to the 1978 Census. In 1978, there was a total of 909 farming corporations. That amounted to an increase of 232 corporate farm operations, 10 more per year, during a 20-year span, "hardly evidence of a large shift toward corporate farms here in Pennsylvania," Adams noted.

It's too bad that critics of large-scale, environmentally friendly farm enterprises don't see the facts. Ag is always the easy target, and targeted far too many times.

To Be Aware Of New Research On Impact Of Bt Corn On Monarch Butterflies

Bt corn is one of several genetically engineered crops to come on to the market in the last few years. These crops have special properties that make them especially useful for specific purposes.

Bt corn offers the ability to control corn borer and other pests without the use of applied pesticides, since this crop produces its own control agent. The future usefulness of this crop was called into question in 1999 when a small experiment indicated the caterpillars of Monarch Butterflies were harmed when they were forced to feed on milkweed leaves heavily dusted with pollen from Bt corn.

Now new research conducted by a group of scientists coordinated by the Agricultural Research Service (ARS)/USDA indicates there is no significant risk to monarch butterflies from environmental exposure to Bt corn. This research was recently published in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences (PNAS).

The concern focused on the pollen of Bt corn because it, like any corn pollen, can blow onto milkweed leaves, which are the exclusive diet of monarch caterpillars.

This recent research needed to answer two major questions to determine whether there was any actual risk to monarch caterpillars from the Bt pollen. The questions were how much Bt corn pollen does it take before there are any toxic effects on caterpillars and what is the likelihood that caterpillars might be exposed to that much pollen?

The studies in this project showed that monarch caterpillars have to be exposed to pollen levels greater than 1,000 grains/cm² to show toxic effects. Although caterpillars were found to be present on milkweed during the one to two weeks that pollen is shed by corn, corn pollen levels on milkweed leaves were found to average only about 170 pollen grains/cm² in corn fields.

Reports from several field studies show concentrations much lower than this critical level even within the cornfield. In Maryland, the highest level of pollen deposition was inside and at the edge of the corn field, where pollen was found at about 50 grains/cm². In the Nebraska study, pollen deposition ranged from 6 grains/cm² at the field edge to less than 1 grain/cm² beyond 10 meters. Samples collected from fields in Ontario immediately following the period of peak pollen shed showed pollen concentrations averaged 78 grains at the field edge.

This new research demonstrates that in actual practice in the field, the Bt corn is not a threat to the Monarch butterfly. This is good news since the earlier conclusion raised questions about the usefulness of this specific technology and also about unexpected side effects of genetic engineering in general.

To Continue To Conserve Water

On Dec. 5, Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) Secretary David E. Hess announced that 62 of Pennsylvania's 67 counties are now under a drought declaration as conditions continue to worsen despite recent rain. Thirty-one counties are now under a drought warning and 31 counties are under a drought watch.

A drought watch is the first of the three drought stages under the state's drought-operating plan. It calls for a voluntary 5-percent reduction of nonessential water use. A drought warning, the second stage, calls for a 10-percent to 15-percent voluntary reduction in water consumption; and a drought emergency, the third and most severe stage, imposes mandatory restrictions on water use. The drought emergency requires a declaration by Gov. Schweiker followed by action by the Pennsylvania Emergency Management Council.

"Groundwater levels are continuing to decline when they would normally be increasing," Hess said. "Now we're seeing streamflows dropping rapidly, reaching record-low levels in some cases, particularly in the southcentral and eastern portions of the state."

"We need significantly above-normal precipitation over an extended period of time in order for conditions to improve," Hess said. "It took several months to reach this point, and it may take several months to recover."

Twenty-two counties that previously were on the drought watch list were added to the drought warning list. They are Bedford, Berks, Bucks, Carbon, Columbia, Delaware, Fulton, Huntingdon, Juniata, Lehigh, Mifflin, Monroe, Montgomery, Montour, Northampton, Northumberland, Philadelphia, Pike, Schuylkill, Snyder, Union, and Wayne.

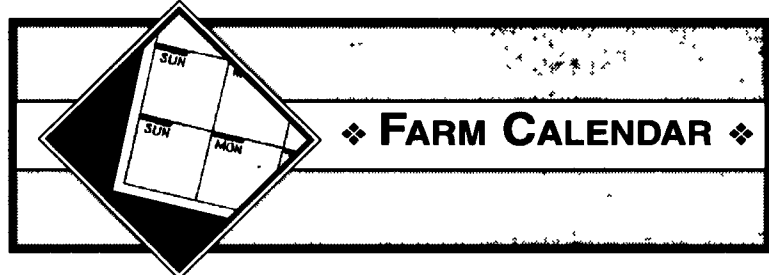

Seven counties — Fayette, Greene, Lackawanna, Luzerne, Somerset, Susquehanna, and Wyoming — are being added to the drought watch list which now totals 31 counties.

To Attend National No-Till Conference

The 10th Annual National No-Tillage Conference will be Jan. 9-12 in St. Louis, Mo. For details about the conference, check out the extensive program online at the following Website: www.lesspub.com/nntc. An educational program especially for spouses is offered.

The Mid-Atlantic No Till Conference is coordinating bus transportation from State College to the conference. For more information, call NRCS State Agronomist Joel Myers at (717) 237-2220.

The environmental movement is demanding, yet again, that we ban atrazine. But atrazine, an herbicide, is one of the safest farm chemicals ever discovered and one of the keys to the long-term sustainability of human society.

Amazingly, despite all this, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) just issued a skewed report that may be a prelude to an severely restricting atrazine use.

What's going on here?

I recently heard a senior EPA staffer utter that old bromide, "If we're being criticized from both sides, we're probably making the right decisions."

But let's suppose that one side

GUESS WHO'S COMING!

Background Scripture:
Isaiah 40:1-11.
Devotional Reading:
Isaiah 40:25-31.

Back in those days when there was only radio, we listened intently to the voices and our minds supplied the mental images. Similarly, in Isaiah 40:1-11, we read what is said, but there is no description of the time, place, or participants. There are only voices.

Some scholars believe that the scene is that of a familiar biblical image, the Heavenly Council. Others believe that it is an assembly of prophets. Perhaps further descriptive detail has been withheld so that we may concentrate on the message.

There are four distinct voices. The message of the first voice (40:1,2) is one of grace: "comfort, comfort my people..." Those listening are commanded to proclaim the good news that the time of suffering and punishment are over. In 586 BC, the people of Judah were carried away into Babylonian exile. Separated geographically from the Temple, they felt separated from their God. Through their exile they longed to return to Jerusalem and their God.

The emphasis here is not upon the "warfare," nor the "iniquity" of the people, nor what they have had to suffer; it is upon the fact that it is now "ended!"

The second voice is a call to preparation (vs.3-5): "In the wilderness, prepare the way of the Lord, and make straight in the desert a highway for our God..." It is not so much that they will return to God, but that he is going to return to them; he will lead the way: "And the glory of the Lord shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together..."

Not For Comfort Only

While we all love the word of comfort, many of us are less responsive to the call of preparation. As George Adam Smith wrote: "We are satisfied with the personal comfort of our God; we are contented to be forgiven and — oh, mockery! — left alone. But the word of God will not leave us alone, and not for comfort only is it spoken."

The third voice (6-8) proclaims the steadfastness of God's word: "All flesh is grass, and all its beauty is like the flower of the field... The grass withers, the flower fades; but the word of our God will stand forever." It is hard for human beings to realize that our earthly lives are so transient. As we mature, however, we begin to realize that death is even more certain than taxes. As Reily of radio's "The Life of Riley" used to say: "What a revoltin' development this is!" So our hope is based solely upon the Lord, who, unlike his creatures, is eternal.

Most of us have lived long enough to know that, although we must learn to trust one another, in the long run we cannot put our full trust in any human being(s) because all of us are flawed, make mistakes, fail and — yes — sin. We also learn that we cannot even depend solely upon ourselves. We fail ourselves as well as others. That is why we can comfortably trust only in God. As Robert Browning has put it, "Before man's First and after man's poet Last, God operated and will operate."

Everyone A Herald

The fourth voice is that of challenge (9-11): "Get you up to a high mountain, O Zion, herald of good tidings... say to the cities of Judah, 'Behold your God!'" It is at this point that the audience is expanded to include all the people of Jerusalem. Everyone is to be a herald of the coming of the Lord and proclaim what that coming means.

Advent is not just a time for the pastors and preachers to proclaim the advent of God, but all of us.

The God who comes is characterized in two different ways: the victorious Ruler of the world — "Behold, the Lord God comes with might..." — and as the compassionate Shepherd of his people — "He will feed his flock like a shepherd." Isaiah presents God in all his celestial grandeur and in all his saving grace as well. Both of these images are essential to our understand of the God who comes to us.

Because the Lord has so fully revealed himself in Jesus Christ, we no longer have to guess who is coming!

(Continued from Page A10) (the farming side) is made up of the hard-working, responsible conservationists who grow our food. (Higher crop yields have saved 15 million square miles of wildlands from being plowed for crops.) Let's further suppose, for the sake of argument, that the other side (let's call them eco-zealots, just to pull a label out of thin air) are certified, off-the-wall extremists.

If you, as a regulator, keep splitting the difference in a debate between responsible pesticide users and shouting ban-them-all demonstrators, you will gradually veer toward banning everything. You will eventually deprive your farmers of the key inputs needed to protect your food against bugs, bacteria, and weeds. That will ultimately force you to either starve millions of people, or plow down millions of acres of wildlands for low-yield crops.

Soil erosion has been the Achilles heel of civilization for the 10,000 years since we learned to farm. (Before that, our weakness was a tendency to kill all the game in the area and then start a war over hunting rights with the tribe next door.)

In the last 25 years, we solved the erosion problem with a system called conservation tillage. Conservation tillage uses crop residue to protect the soil structure and cuts soil erosion by up to 90 percent. Instead of burying weed seeds with the moldboard plowing that used to invite wind and water erosion, it uses herbicides to control weeds. The U.S. Society for Soil and Water Conservation noted that conservation tillage is a key part of "the most sustainable farming in human history."

Atrazine is the most flexible and cost-effective herbicide for conservation tillage. It's been used for decades, in at least 80 countries, on all sorts of terrain and circumstances, with no discovered health or environmental side effects.

The eco-zealots target atrazine because traces of it are often occasionally found in our groundwater. They make the usual cancer allegation. But the EPA itself recently reclassified atrazine as "not likely to be carcinogenic to humans." This echoes an earlier decision by the International Agency for Research on Cancer, which says atrazine cannot be classified as a carcinogen. That essentially means that atrazine is safer than the chlorine we use to purify our drinking water. Chlorine actually does cause tumors in rats at high doses. But it also kills the bacteria that would otherwise kill us.

Paracelsus 500 years ago laid down the basic rule of toxicology: "The dose makes the poison." Almost everything is dangerous at high levels, including table salt. Almost nothing is dangerous at low levels.

The U.S. permits only a tiny amount of atrazine in drinking water: 3 parts per billion (ppb) (That's like three aspirin tablets in an Olympic-sized swimming pool.) Great Britain allows 15 ppb. Australia has set the limit at 20 ppb. The French Minister of Agriculture has banned it — but that's a political gesture. He offers no evidence that atrazine is not safe.

The EPA has come up with a couple of pretty far-fetched accusations in its latest round of atrazine musings:

A. Atrazine may disrupt the homing instincts of salmon. (Science doesn't give much credit for "may," and salmon are exposed to virtually no atrazine.)

B. "Continued atrazine use is likely to pose a risk to health and integrity of some aquatic communities." (A single study claimed atrazine would kill the underwater weeds on which some marine creatures feed; but an independent scientific panel concluded "The inferred effects . . . cannot be confirmed from the published data, and were discounted in subsequent publications by the same researchers.")

All of this sounds like a pretty thin basis for banning restricting one of our most important conservation tools. Especially since the same eco-zealots who want to ban atrazine are defending a widely-used organic pesticide — pyrethrum — which an EPA science panel has classified as "a likely human carcinogen."

"We would use slats again if doing it all over!"

Harold Keeney; David, Nancy & Mark Wolfskill

Our original plan was to install scrapers. But after 10 minutes in a slatted barn in Somerset County, we changed our minds. Some people stay away from slats because of the initial cost, but that extra cost is made up for in the first couple years.

The one thing I like the most about slats is that there is no expense. I don't have any scrapers or drive units to maintain. I don't have to run scrapers every day or haul manure like we did in our previous tie stall barn. The cows' foot health has been a lot better, and the cows stay much cleaner. Our milk production is up and the somatic cell count has gone down. I give at least some of the credit to the slats because with less moisture on the floor, there is less bacteria.

Weekly Dairy Market Outlook

Ken Bailey
Penn State
Dec. 7, 2001

Butter, Cheese Markets Remain Weak Despite Holiday Sales

- Cheese prices weaken.
- Grade AA butter prices decline.
- Butter and cheese production up.
- International prices weaker.

USDA reports that holiday sales of dairy products are good, but not enough to boost sagging prices. At the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, clock cheese fell from $1.30 per pound earlier in the week to $1.26 per pound by Friday. Likewise, barrel cheese prices fell from $1.2650 per pound on Monday to $1.2150 per pound by week's end.

Even butter wasn't spared. Grade AA butter prices slipped from $1.26 per pound on Monday to $1.2325 by Friday. Western powder prices remained steady. Prices for Western nonfat dry milk ranged from $0.90-$0.9375 per pound, just above the support price level.

The October dairy products report provided a mixed bag. Despite milk production falling below year-ago levels, October butter production was up 6.9 percent and American cheese production was up 3.2 percent. The growth in butter production probably had more to do with availability of excess cream supplies. Total cheese production actually fell 1.1 percent as other cheese varieties dropped in production. Cream cheese and Other Italian cheese production fell 9.5 and 13.8 percent, respectively, in October relative to a year ago.

The Dairy Products report also indicated that manufacturers' stocks of dry dairy products such as dry whey, lactose, and nonfat dry milk were all down about 30 percent relative to a year ago. That's because demand for these products has been very strong. A lot of nonfat dry milk is probably being used in the cheese vat now that domestic prices have declined because of a reduced support price.

USDA reported this week in Dairy Market News that world prices for nonfat dry milk are also falling due to slow international demand. Prices for skim milk powder in Oceania are reported to be $0.77-$0.83 per pound. International buyers are shopping around now that the U.S. has announced the DEIP program.

So what does this mean for U.S. milk prices? The Class III futures at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange today averaged $12.31 per CWT for 2002. The historical two-year average Class III price (January 2000-November 2001) was $11.40 per CWT with a high of $15.90 and a low of $8.57. The five-year average Class III price (January 1997-November 2001) was $12.31 per CWT, with a high of $17.34 and a low of $8.57. Thus the current futures price of $12.31 per CWT for 2002 looks fairly attractive, especially if you think the milk supply will grow more than 2 percent in 2002.

As for the Class IV price, the 2002 average from the Chicago Mercantile Exchange as of today was $12.58 per CWT. This price does not have a very good historical comparison since the Class IV price is now just two years old. For the last 23 months, the Class IV price averaged $12.84 per CWT with a high of $15.59 and a low of $10.73. Given the outlook for lower nonfat dry milk prices and continued opportunities for butter imports in 2002, this also looks like a reasonable price for Class IV milk.

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Oklahoma Feeder Cattle Weekly

Oklahoma City, OK

Report Supplied By USDA

Oklahoma National Stockyards - Weekly Cattle Summary — Compared to last week: Feeder steers 2.00-3.00 lower. Feeder heifers 1.00-2.00 lower. Steer calves under 550 lbs steady; heavier weight steer calves and heifer calves 3.00-4.00 lower. Demand moderate for steers, light to moderate for heifers. Sluggish slaughter cattle trade, heavy losses in the feedlot, and lack of an aggressive slaughter mode has hampered demand from the feedlot sector. Quality plain to average. Bulk of calves weaned and in thin to moderate flesh. Feeders in medium to fleshy conditions with many out of grow lots. Weigh-ups of calves gaunt to average; feeders average to full. Receipts this week 13,025; last week 12,717; last year 6464. Supply consisted of 48% yearlings & calves over 600 lbs; 47% calves under 600 lbs; 5% cows and bulls. Heifers comprised 37% of feeder & calf supply.

Prices follow with weighted average weight and price in parenthesis.

ROASTED BEANS FOR PROFIT

Some of the many advantages of using Roasted Soybeans

- * All natural protein with no harmful chemicals or fillers
- * Very high bypass protein, unlike solvent soybean meal
- * Increases ration palatability to heighten dry matter intake
- * Includes a broad spectrum of the essential amino acids
- * High protein and energy, yet low neutral detergent fiber. (NDF)

Corn Belt Feedstuff

St. Joseph, Mo.

Report Supplied By USDA

CORN BELT FEEDSTUFF: Wholesale Bids. Truck or Rail dollars per ton. Feedstuff prices remained steady to weak as warm winter weather continued to slow feed usage. Lower soybean trade weighed on soybean meal prices as did a lower corn board on gluten products and hominy feed. Hay by-products showed slight advances due to tight supplies.

SOYBEAN MEAL: 44 percent rail bids 5.00 to 9.00 lower at 140.00-148.00. 48 percent rail 5.00 to 7.00 lower at 150.00-156.00. Truck 44 percent 5.00 to 7.00 lower at 144.00-151.00. 48 percent 5.00 lower at 153.00-160.00 per ton.

CORN BY-PRODUCTS: Gluten Feed 21 percent, Interior Points, steady at 58.00-72.00; Chicago steady at 64.00-75.00. 60 percent Gluten Meal, Interior Points, steady at 250.00-265.00; Chicago steady at 255.00-265.00 per ton. Rail Hominy Feed, Central Illinois Points, steady to 3.00 lower at 58.00-62.00; truck steady to 3.00 lower at 60.00-61.00. Crude Corn Oil steady to .50 higher at 22.50-23.00 cents per lb.

MIDDLINGS: Northwest 2.00 lower to 3.00 higher at 58.00-65.00; Buffalo 2.00 to 12.00 higher at 64.00-75.00 per ton.

ALFALFA PELLETS: Toledo, Ohio 17 percent dehydrated, steady to 2.00 higher at 147.00-179.00; 15 percent 2.00 lower to 15.50 lower at 132.00-160.00 per ton.

DISTILLER'S DRIED GRAINS: Central Illinois steady to 3.00 lower at 82.00-93.00; Chicago steady to 1.00 lower at 89.00-95.00; Lawrenceburg, IL steady at 92.00. Kansas and Nebraska 5.00 lower at 75.00-95.00; Minneapolis steady at 80.00-83.00 per ton.

BREWER'S DRIED GRAINS: Newark, NJ steady at 86.00; Williamsburg, VA steady at 76.00 per ton.

THE ADVANTAGES OF CROPSAVER-TREATED HAY VS DRY PRESERVATIVE-TREATED HAY

CropSaver-treated hay is greener and more moist. Improved hay bale quality brings a higher sale price. Cows love it and produce more milk when they eat it. CropSaver is chemically buffered, minimizing equipment rust. Dry hay preservatives are weaker usually labeled only up to 25% moisture, and are more difficult to apply evenly and consistently.

Craig enjoys spending much of her time in the barn, pasture, or training the horses. At Country Arabians, 11 Arabians and one Haflinger make their home on the farm.

Arabians

ino, crossed with an Arabian stallion, produced 19 foals in her lifetime.

"Fate gave me a great mare. I'm into the fifth generation of her bloodlines," she said. Craig's veterinarian, Richard Stoneback, Oxford, owned Ara-bians and opened her eyes to the breed after she purchased a horse from him.

"One led to two and two led to four," she said. All the purebred horses go back to the white mare and all the partbred horses go back to the Palomino. "It's a small line but very productive. It's all in the family, I guess," she said.

Craig has now raised approximately 100 foals on the farm. "I've sold several to good friends and it's fun to go to shows and watch them."

Several of the horses who "deserve a retirement home," she said, will permanently reside at Country Arabians. A 33-year-old gelding, for example, is allowed to wander the yard and

"be our lawn mower" before he is moved to the pasture in the afternoon.

"Arabians are good family horses. They are friendly and inquisitive and quite personable, but quite sensitive. They require a lot more finesse in handling them," said Craig.

Her mother, Gladys, owns the farm and her brother works the 80-cow dairy portion of the operation plus farms the cropland of the 267-acre farm, which the family moved to when Craig was four years old. The horses have the run of 20 acres of pastureland.

Show Season

Three-year-old Flag, who carried his tail high when he was a foal, earning himself the name, was the show horse for the season for Craig.

"He is the first one I've shown as a 3-year-old," she said. "He has a trusting personality and is tall and bold and can handle the environment. I've always enjoyed working with him."

Late fall of last year Craig began working with Flag, training him nearly every day for the show ring. "I usually pick one horse and show it through the entire season until I retire that one and show another," she said.

"I used to show a purebred and a partbred at one time," she added, "and I showed one until he was 22 years old."

The show season, which begins in April with a show in Bel Air, Md., ends in Harrisburg at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition (KILE). Craig mainly exhibits in Pennsylvania and neighboring states.

Three class A shows and five weekend circuit shows make a total of eight shows for Craig.

The International Arabian Horse Association rates the shows, and only experienced riders who have met certain qualifications may compete in the Class A shows. Winning riders accumulate points at shows to earn a berth at the national competition, which alternates locations.

Providing an alternative to the Class A shows, however, is the Eastern Amateur Arabian Horse Show Circuit, an organization Craig helped to found in 1976 with Stoneback. The shows are low-key and family oriented, according to Craig, since "the founders wanted an organization where families could show together."

"It was just a sitting-around-the-kitchen-table idea that grew," she said. "We had close to 200 members this year."

Originating in nearby Oxford, the group now includes members in Maryland and Virginia. Each region conducts its own show. "The furthest we travel is two and a half hours," she said.

The central club picked a list of 45 classes that each show should include. At the end of the year the high point award is given to a horse for the separate divisions.

Awards for the junior riders also help to promote future interest in the competition. The top point earner wins the horse of the year distinction, an honor Craig has won in the club since 1996.

Although registries for purebred and partbred Arabians are separated, the horses are allowed to compete together in the amateur circuit.

To learn the ins and outs of horse ownership and show competition, Craig, who never took any riding lessons, took the burden of her education upon herself.

"I learned by trial and error. I watched other people ride and saw what the horse was supposed to look like, then I'd go home and try to make my horse do it," she said.

Reading magazines also gave her training ideas. "If I didn't like it, I just found something else," she said. "I saw what the judges wanted and I'd go home and try to get the horses to go that way."

Craig not only rides her own horses in competition, she also shoes and fits them for the ring herself.

In Training

Careful, methodical training is the reason for her show ring success, believes Craig.

"To take raw talent and turn it into a good show horse, a good working partner, is quite rewarding," she said. Craig also believes another reason her horses are successful in the show ring is "because of their good manners, one of my fundamental things in training."

Craig trains all of her horses by herself, in addition to taking care of the animals. Reading books and observing others at shows helped to educate her on how to train animals. Also she is blessed by good-tempered animals, "which I raised from day one," said Craig.

Her long-running relationship has taught her how to communicate with each horse, a skill vitally important in the show ring. One of Craig's favorite classes, a trail class with an obstacle course, requires constant communication between horse and rider.

"To learn to do that well you have to really have good communication with your horse," she said.

"I've had the opportunity to watch the horse grow up in the herd and see the way they react with each other, so I can put myself in the position as a boss that they respect but are not afraid of.

"When I'm on their back they already know me. I become very firm and set standards and make those standards clear to them from the beginning," she said. "I develop a simple set of commands that they know and follow them.

"For the show ring, I pick a horse that is cooperative to work with. Flag was easygoing and accepting of guidance, besides being naturally gifted." Flag's training, although conducted every day, was not necessarily intense.

"Since younger horses are not developed — especially Arabians, who do not mature until they are five — I keep the work load pleasant."

Horses must learn to keep their head quiet, or held in position while performing different gaits and maneuvers in the ring.

In the hunter classes, the horse's head should be straight, almost vertical, and just above the withers. Judges are also looking for balance and the horse moving in a correct frame, which makes a pretty picture, she said.

In the English pleasure classes, the horse is more stylish and carries itself higher, and Western seat calls for shorter strides and a slower gait. Craig's horses may compete in these various classes. Country Cadilac, for example, won in all three divisions last year in the amateur circuit.

At the 2001 KILE competition, Craig again competed in the battle of the breeds, a seven-class event which pits a variety of breeds against one another in pleasure, hunter hack, pleasure driving, western pleasure, western riding, timed obstacle, and barrel racing classes.

Two judges evaluate the event. Twelve horses and riders competed in this year's event. Since 1990, the first year Craig competed in the battle of the breeds, she has won seven years on five different horses, taking home the last four titles.

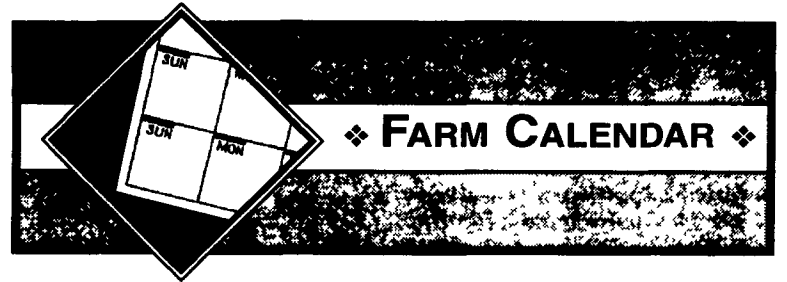

"I find this competition fascinating and fun. I've always enjoyed doing different things with each horse," she said.

At KILE's Battle of the Breeds competition, Craig has experienced success in the barrel racing class with her athletic animals.

A few younger horses that will appear in the ring in the future show seasons also reside on the farm.

Heat with Corn!

Burn Shelled Corn In This Biomass Furnace A BETTER ALTERNATIVE

The corn burning furnace has many advantages over wood and coal heat. The large storage bin holds up to 14 bushels of fuel, which is automatically fed into the combustion chamber as needed. There's no need to load the furnace several times a day. The use of corn also eliminates the bark mess, insects, splinters, and handling problems connected with the use of wood fuel, and the dust and dirt from coal. UL Approved.

Three directors serving on the board have agreed to serve another term. Scott Bailey, Ephrata, Nelson Beam, Elverson, and Kurt Good, Denver, will serve another 2-year term on the board of directors. Bailey will also serve as a state delegate on the Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council along with Scott Augsburg, Lancaster, and Brent Hershey, Marietta.

Each year the organization elects three representatives to the nine-member board.

Sow Reproduction

The forum featured Roy Kirkwood, from the department of large animal clinical sciences at Michigan State University. Kirkwood, a former resident of the United Kingdom and western Canada, educated the audience about the reproductive management of sows and gilts.

Artificial insemination, said Kirkwood, is not a cut-and-dried practice. "You can work with a recipe but you will improve performance if you make the breeding program specific for your herd," he said.

Seventy percent of the volume that is injected during AI, along with 25 percent of the sperm, is lost in backflow within two and a half hours of insemination. Practices to minimize backflow would be to stimulate the sow by having a boar present during the process.

"Her uterine contractions will move the fluid to her uterus and fallopian tubes, said Kirkwood, who also mentioned that producers should properly place the catheter and not force the semen up the tube, which may cause resistance and push the fluid out as backflow.

After insemination, use masking tape to secure the catheter. Leaving the catheter in for approximately 10 minutes will minimize backflow since there is a reservoir of the semen dose in front of the catheter. The sows should not be moved too soon and should not be upset, which may stimulate a hormone which blocks successful fertilization.

Estrus Detection

Fertility depends on the accuracy of estrus detection and timing of insemination during estrus, according to Kirkwood. The presence of a boar will make it easier to detect estrus and even prolong the duration of estrus.

If a boar is present all the time, however, such as hogs allowed fenceline contact, the ability to detect estrus is reduced. Kirkwood recommends a one-meter separation.

For optimal fertilization rate, and sometimes even a larger litter size, insemination should occur in the 24-hour window before ovulation, recommended Kirkwood.

"If that is true, multiple inseminations can take place at intervals of 24 hours during estrus and do not need to take place at 8-16-hour intervals," he said. "If you've got good semen, once every 24 hours is enough."

Another benefit to inseminating before ovulation is that the uterus is better able to dispose of contamination from the AI process before, rather than after, ovulation.

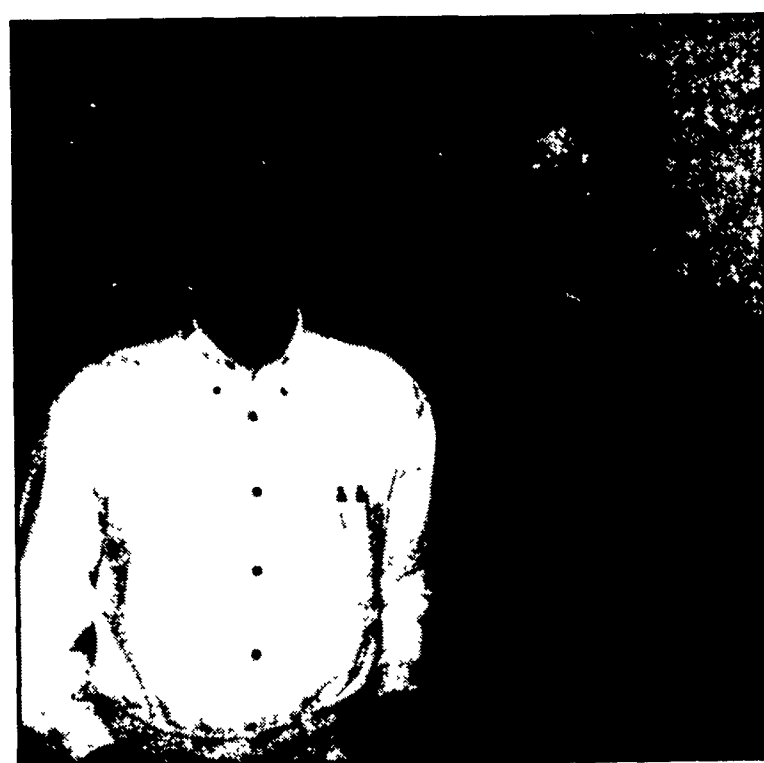

In a herd, 10-15 percent of the hogs may be early ovulators, or "single service sows" that have a shorter estrus period and ovulate soon after the onset of estrus. On the other hand, 20-25 percent will be late ovulators with a longer time of estrus.

Ovulation normally occurs two thirds of the way through estrus, independent of the duration of estrus.

"If you've got a good idea that the sow is going to be a late ovulator, you can breed that afternoon and even the next morning. If she's an early ovulator, do it right away, not even in two hours while you have your coffee," he said.

Gilt Management

"The greatest economic benefit is gained by breeding gilts

Speakers at this week's LanChester Pork Council meeting included Dr. Roy Kirkwood, Michigan State University, and Charles Francisco, Intervet USA representative.

sooner rather than later, but only if lifetime production is not compromised," said Kirkwood.

Producers have two options to stimulate earlier puberty in gilts: boar contact and exogenous hormones.

To maximize the "boar effect" the gilt must be old enough to respond, approximately 155-165 days. In addition, the boar must be old enough, 10 or more months, to be effective. However "you don't need your oldest, smelliest boar to do the job," Kirkwood said.

Full physical contact is more effective than fenceline contact, said Kirkwood, who recommended 15 minutes one to two times a day. "Greater frequency brings shorter days to puberty."

However gilts should be housed at least one meter away from the boars for more accurate estrus detection.

Ideally, move the gilts to the boar, he said, but if that is not an option moving the boar to the gilts is better than having no contact, he said.

The stimulus boar should be rotated, in case the boar is a lowlibido boar, so the boar effect is realized.

Additionally, "If the boar effect does not work, consider using hormones, a tool in the control of reproduction. They are not a substitute for good management," he said.

"It's commonly believed that maximum production is gained by delaying gilt breeding until the second or third estrus because it's supposed to increase litter size and longevity," said Kirkwood.

"My problem is that when you look at any science, there's absolutely no justification for this. There is not a lot of difference of the effect of age at the first service on subsequent performance," he said.

"Delaying breeding from the first to second estrus may get .7 of a pig but at the cost of 21 non-productive days, and it's the opportunity cost that's going to get you."

The cost of delayed breeding depends on the method of calculation but will be about 1.5 pigs per skipped cycle.

Beef To Be Included In Export Sales Reports

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Beginning Dec. 13, the USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service (FAS) will report information on U.S. export sales of fresh, chilled, and frozen muscle cuts of beef in its weekly U.S. Export Sales report.

The U.S. Export Sales report already includes certain grains, soybeans and products, wheat products, rice, flaxseed, linseed oil, cotton and cottonseed products, and cattle hides and skins. Beginning this month, U.S. exporters of beef also will report their export sales volumes and destinations to FAS. The data will be aggregated and published weekly to provide livestock producers, ranchers, and others with up-to-date information and data for analyzing foreign market conditions and consumer demand. Producers will be able to use the data in making economic forecasts and decisions on the flow of beef into both domestic and export markets.

State Ends West Nile Virus Surveillance

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The state has ended for this year its surveillance efforts for West Nile virus in mosquitoes, birds, horses and people.

"Temperatures now are cold enough across the state that mosquito activity has dropped off," Health Secretary Robert S. Zimmerman Jr. said. "Since mosquitoes transmit the virus to birds and other animals, there is no need to continue collecting samples until mosquitoes reappear in the spring."

"I want to thank residents for taking action to limit mosquito-breeding areas by preventing standing water on their properties and in their communities, and for reporting dead birds through the 1-877-PA-HEALTH toll-free hotline. We would not have been able to find as many positive birds, target remediation and alert the community about the presence of the virus without their help."

So far in 2001, West Nile virus has been detected in 357 birds, 43 mosquito samples, 6 horses and three people in 17 counties. There have been no human fatalities due to the virus in Pennsylvania.

"The county West Nile coordinators were tremendous in helping us track the virus and find mosquitoes this summer," Environmental Protection Secretary David E. Hess said.

"With their help we captured more than 700,000 mosquitoes, and sent more than 12,232 samples for testing. Most importantly, we now have a better understanding of where mosquitoes breed and where we need to target our control efforts."

Spanish For Dairymen

Program Set

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) and LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Many dairy farms across the Northeast have begun hiring Hispanic workers to meet their labor requirements. This approach has helped many farms deal with the challenge of maintaining a well-trained workforce on their farms.

However, bringing Hispanic workers on to the farm has presented another whole set of challenges, especially with the language barrier between the Hispanic workers and owners, managers, and employees.

The Capitol Region Dairy Team has organized a "Spanish for Dairymen" course that will be offered at the Lancaster County Farm and Home Center in Lancaster and at the Adams County Agriculture and Natural Resource Center in Gettysburg.

The courses will begin on Monday, Jan. 14, from noon to 4:30 p.m. at each location and run for 13 consecutive Mondays. Dairy farm owners, managers, and employees who work with Hispanic farm workers or who are considering this alternative will greatly benefit from the program. Cost of the entire 13-week program, including all books, materials, cassette tapes, and instruction is $525.

To register for or to request more information about the Spanish for Dairymen programs, please contact Vinton Smith at (888) 472-0261, ext. 312 or by e-mail to vsmith@psu.edu no later than Jan. 4.

Lancaster Farmland Trust President To Leave

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Board of Trustees of Lancaster Farmland Trust announced that President Thomas D. Stouffer has announced his intention to leave service to the organization at the end of March 2002.

Trustee Board Chair Lee J. Dmizak said, "On behalf of the trustee board, staff, members, and farmers who have preserved farms with Lancaster Farmland Trust, the organization thanks Tom for a job well done. Although we will all miss him a great deal, we all understand his desire to move on to new challenges."

A national search for his replacement will be undertaken in the near future.

Reflecting on his years at Lancaster Farmland Trust, Stouffer said, "I feel fortunate to have been a part of the tremendous success that farmland preservation has enjoyed in Lancaster County over the past five years. Thanks to the work of many dedicated individuals who have supported this important cause, farmland preservation has moved into the mainstream of Lancaster County agriculture."

Originally from Elizabethtown, Stouffer was appointed in September 1996. During his tenure, the Trust has experienced steady growth. The number of farms preserved increased from 58 in September 1996 to 136 through December 8, 2001. Preserved acreage increased at about the same rate: from about 3,650 to about 8,800. (Landowners have donated more than half the easements.) Trust active membership has also increased from less than 800 to about 1,100. Events such as the Trust annual dinner, summer picnic, and Pedal to Preserve have also enjoyed popularity.

Also during his tenure, gifts from supporting donors have enabled the Trust to develop its own GIS capability, making farm evaluations more objective and professional.

Although the Trust does not receive government funding to preserve farmland, Stouffer has worked closely with both county and state officials to ensure farmland preservation remains a legislative priority. Dramatic public funding increases in the past few years, coupled with the Trust's private efforts, have brought Lancaster County's preserved farm total to about 500 farms, the highest in the nation.

In presentations across the state and at regional and national conferences, Stouffer has consistently supported the development of a broad public policy agenda for farmland preservation centered on continuing economic benefits to farmers in exchange for the restrictions imposed by perpetual easements.

He chairs 10,000 Friends of Pennsylvania's Rural and Agricultural Policies Task Force, co-chairs the Agricultural Land Preservation Committee of the South Central Assembly for Effective Governance, and is a member of the Lancaster Rotary Club and the Lancaster Chamber of Commerce and Industry's Agriculture Committee.

Stouffer is also active in the Rt. 23 coalition sponsored through the Chamber. In that activity and in efforts to establish agricultural security areas in farming townships, the Trust has maintained close contact with Amish farmers-consistent with the fact that 40 percent of farms preserved by the Trust are owned and farmed by Old Order Amish.

Stouffer, a retired Marine Corps colonel, has no immediate employment plans, but intends to stay active in programs related to agriculture and land preservation.

Drought Expanded To Include 62 Of 67 Pa. Counties

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — DEP Secretary David E. Hess announced Dec. 5 that 62 of Pennsylvania's 67 counties are now under a drought declaration as conditions continue to deteriorate despite recent rain. Thirty-one counties are now under a drought warning and 31 counties are under a drought watch.

"Groundwater levels are continuing to decline when they would normally be increasing," Hess said. "Now we're seeing streamflows dropping rapidly, reaching record-low levels in some cases, particularly in the southcentral and eastern portions of the state."

Hess said 17 counties have precipitation deficits of more than 10 inches for the year.

"We need significantly above-normal precipitation over an extended period of time in order for conditions to improve," Hess said. "It took several months to reach this point, and it may take several months to recover."

Twenty-two counties that previously were on the drought watch list were added to the drought warning list. They are Bedford, Berks, Bucks, Carbon, Columbia, Delaware, Fulton, Huntingdon, Juniata, Lehigh, Mifflin, Monroe, Montgomery, Montour, Northampton, Northumberland, Philadelphia, Pike, Schuylkill, Snyder, Union and Wayne.

Reservoirs At Drought Levels; Emergency Hearing Set

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Storage in three large water supply reservoirs at the headwaters of the Delaware River has dropped from drought warning to drought levels, automatically triggering additional reductions in the amount of water released from the reservoirs into the river and the amount diverted out of the Delaware River Basin to New York City and New Jersey.

The reductions are required under the Delaware River Basin Commission's (DRBCs) drought operating plan which is based on storage levels in the three reservoirs - Cannonsville, Pepacton, and Neversink. The impoundments are located in New York State's Catskill Mountains region and owned by New York City.

A public hearing on whether to declare a drought emergency and implement additional water conservation measures is scheduled Dec. 18 at the commission's offices in West Trenton, N.J.

As of Dec. 3, combined storage in the three reservoirs was 66 billion gallons, over 100 billion gallons below normal, and 24 percent of capacity.

Under the commission's drought operating plan, which has been implemented in stages over the past month, the allowable water supply diversions to New York City have been lowered from a normal of 800 to 520 million gallons per day (mgd), and diversions to northern New Jersey through the Delaware and Raritan Canal have been lowered from the normal of 100 to 65 mgd. In addition, minimum flow targets in the Delaware River have been lowered from 1,750 to 1,350 cubic feet per second (cfs) at Montague, N.J., and from 3,000 to 2,500 cfs at Trenton, N.J.

Smaller cutbacks in the out-of-basin diversions and flow targets automatically took effect on Nov. 4 when falling reservoir storage triggered a drought warning.

"These water-conserving actions in place now save up to 540 million gallons per day of storage in the New York City reservoirs," noted Carol R. Collier, the DRBC's executive director.

More than 17 million people rely on the waters of the Delaware River Basin. New York City, which lies outside the watershed, gets roughly half its water from its Upper Delaware reservoirs.

In addition, Merrill Creek Reservoir, located near Phillipsburg, N.J., and constructed by a consortium of electric utilities in the late 1980s, has been releasing water to the Delaware River to replace evaporation losses caused by power generation. The releases are triggered by operating criteria approved by the commission.

Rainfall is approximately 10 inches below normal for the year in the upper basin. The last five months have been very dry in the central portion of the watershed, particularly in the Philadelphia area, central, and southern New Jersey, and in extreme northern Delaware. Southern Delaware has not been as hard hit by the dry spell.

Supreme Court Denies Request On Beef Checkoff Challenge

DENVER, Colo. — Recently, the U.S. Supreme Court denied without comment Kansas cattleman and order buyer Jerry Goetz's request for appeal in his claim that he should not have to pay the $1-per-head beef checkoff.

Goetz alleges that the beef checkoff program is unconstitutional.

The Supreme Court's refusal to hear the case is the second time the high court has refused to hear Goetz's appeal from a 1998 determination by the U.S. Court of Appeals that found the beef checkoff program to be constitutional. Further, it lets stand the appellate court's April 2001 ruling that Goetz must pay past-due checkoff assessments, late fees, and penalties for his intentional noncompliance with the beef checkoff law.

"The decision not to hear the appeal is appropriate and good news for beef producers who have invested in the beef checkoff program and the successful 'Beef. It's What's For Dinner.' promotion campaign," said Lynn Cornwell, Montana cattle producer and president of the National Cattlemen's Beef Association. "It seems to send a clear message to those who are trying to take away the industry's only self-help promotion and marketing program. We believe the checkoff is constitutional."

Goetz filed his latest request for appeal with the Supreme Court on Aug. 9, 2001, following previous rejections by the federal District Court in Kansas, the 10th Circuit, and the Supreme Court in 1999.

Goetz argued that the April 2001 ruling against him by the 10th Circuit Appeals Court should be vacated and reconsidered in light of the Supreme Court's June 2001 ruling in U.S. vs. United Foods, Inc. involving the Mushroom Promotion Act. The United Foods case considered the constitutionality of advertising conducted through the mushroom industry's checkoff program, which is written and administered differently than the beef checkoff program.

Pork Board Offers Producers Information On Drug Residues

DES MOINES, Iowa — Pork producers, through their checkoff investments, recently published a flier for veterinarians, packers, and other allied industry to place in checks to their producer customers.

This checkoff-funded educational information focuses on the increased consequences of drug residues.

"The consequences of finding drug residues in pork products have changed dramatically. Pork producers should work with their veterinarians to avoid residue violations," said Jill Appell, chair of the Pork Safety Committee.

The pork producer from Altona, Ill., said, "The new checkoff-funded educational information highlights new consequences the USDA is imposing on repeat residue violators, defines extra-label drug use, and gives steps for producers to follow to avoid the consequences of drug residues. The flier emphasizes the importance of a strong veterinarian-client-patient relationship in making medication decisions."

New consequences of residue violations include:

- USDA will publish the names and addresses of repeat residue violators on a USDA Website. (Repeat violators are defined as producers having more than one residue violation in a 12-month period.)

- Repeat violators will remain on the Website list for one year.

- Packers have an increased interest in residue avoidance by producers.

- Producers listed on this web site may experience difficulty in finding markets and packers willing to accept their animals and increased scrutiny when animals are marketed.

The flier explains that pork producers who are medicating pigs need to review their residue avoidance practices with a veterinarian. That's a long-standing practice for pork producers and is the basis for their Pork Quality Assurance (PQA) education program that started in 1989.

"More than a decade ago, pork producers started the Pork Quality Assurance (PQA) program. That educational program focuses on the 10 Good Production Practices, which include and tracking all treated animals and using drug residue tests when appropriate," Appell said. "Another good production practice is to use a valid veterinarian-client-patient relationship as the basis for medication decision-making."

To avoid drug residues in pork products, producers should use drugs according to label directions, observe the withdrawal time, observe the extended withdrawal times provided by a veterinarian when using products in an extra-label manner, identify and track treated animals, and maintain medication and treatment records.

For more information on this and other checkoff-funded programs, check the Internet at www.porkboard.org or call (515) 223-2600.

Tim Beck

Capitol Region Extension Dairy Program Coordinator
Feedout results have been analyzed on most of the samples included in this year's Capitol Region corn silage initiative, and several important silage management concepts were well-demonstrated.

Perhaps the most fundamental concept clearly shown was the importance of ensiling at appropriate dry matter to achieve high quality silage with high-energy value. A second concept also related to dry matter is its effect on the fermentation end-products produced in a silage sample. A third lesson is the differences in NDF digestibility that exist between corn silage hybrids and the effect this has on the potential energy value of the silage. Each of these issues will be discussed in more detail.

Producers must keep in mind the optimum dry matter for ensiling based on the storage structure, but ensiling corn silage outside the 30-39 percent optimum range can have clearly negative effects on silage quality. As kernel development advances, more starch is deposited in the ear, so sugar content declines while starch content increases. Silages ensiled below 30 percent dry matter in the study had 18.7 percent starch on average, while the optimum dry matter forages had 27 percent starch content.

But it's easy to miss optimum dry matter and risk undesirable silage fermentation without gaining significant energy value. The samples ensiled above 39 percent dry matter had slightly higher starch values at 30.5 percent, but milk per ton and net energy of lactation (NEL) were not significantly improved over the samples ensiled at optimum 30-39 percent dry matter. What was clear is these overly dry samples did not ferment as effectively as shown by a higher terminal pH, less titratable acidity in the sample, and lower levels of total volatile fatty acid (VFA).

It should be noted processing might improve the energy value of overly dry silages. The effect of processing is already considered in the Milk2000 calculation since different equations are used to calculate the predicted starch digestibility for processed vs. unprocessed corn silages.

For silage to be well-preserved and have good feed bunk stability, we need to achieve a good terminal pH between 3.5-4.0 that results in a high concentration of lactic acid compared to the other volatile fatty acids in the sample. Again, dry matter at ensiling is critically important. When silages are ensiled too wet, fermentation may be prolonged with excessive acetic acid and total volatile fatty acid production.

While this improves the bunk life of the silage because acetic acid prevents the growth of yeasts and molds in the bunk, it can also deplete the energy and protein content of the silage. Samples ensiled below 30 percent dry matter had higher acid production, more acetic acid, total VFA production, and higher ammonia levels. Ammonia decreases dry matter intake of silages significantly, as does acetic acid, and its presence indicates protein degradation has occurred during the prolonged fermentation that occurred.

Drier silages do not produce as much total acid during fermentation because packing is more difficult and sugar levels are lower in the crop. This was evident in the study samples, although all samples are within acceptable levels of lactic and acetic acid production.

Ensiling practices are like all management practices — we must strive for a balanced approach that optimizes as many desirable outcomes as possible. We need some acetic acid to have stable feeding characteristics, but prolonged fermentation depletes silage energy value and reduces dry matter intake.

Finally, the corn silage project clearly demonstrated the difference NDF digestibility could make on the energy value of corn silage. In the traditional approach to calculate net energy of lactation, neutral detergent fiber and acid detergent fiber values are used to calculate energy value. This method does not account for the differences that plant variety, growing conditions, and stage of maturity can create in the final energy value of corn silage.

We calculated the Milk2000 value of silages in the study and found that when looking at the neutral detergent fiber values of samples that were nearly identical, final Milk2000 values that use NDF digestibility in the calculation could differ by as much as 500-600 pounds of milk per ton of silage. This was especially true for silages that were ensiled too dry.

Traditional energy calculations alone did not adequately distinguish the energy value differences that existed between these silages. In one case, NEL for the silage was .73 by traditional methods, but the recalculated Schwab-Shaver NEL was .68 for the same sample when digestibility was considered. This difference would greatly influence the supplementation required to achieve similar milk production from this forage. It is important to note the Milk2000 calculation reflects both increased energy from improved digestibility and higher milk production potential from improved intake because the cow is able to consume more dry matter because NDF is not holding back intake.

To summarize, remember the major influence dry matter at ensiling has on final silage quality. This is a controllable variable that can be monitored and will result in consistently higher quality forages when properly managed. Second, when the dairy ration is not producing as much milk as anticipated, consider requesting some additional testing and recalculate the energy value of the corn silage using the Milk2000 approach. You may discover you've seriously overestimated your corn silage energy value and a new formulation of the ration may be needed.

Drought Of '99 Never Ended In Parts of Pennsylvania Groundwater Levels Still Suffer

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Groundwater supplies under much of Pennsylvania that dwindled to alarmingly low levels during the drought of 1999 never fully recovered and have fallen again during this year's extremely dry weather, according to a water resources extension specialist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

If central Pennsylvania does not receive at least normal amounts of precipitation in late fall and winter, said Bryan Swistock, the region will face a critical situation with groundwater supplies come spring.

Fifty-five Pennsylvania counties are under either a drought watch or drought warning issued by the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection. Dry conditions are most severe in the southcentral part of the state. Long-term weather forecasts by the National Weather Service are calling for no more than normal amounts of precipitation this winter.

"But we were supposed to get normal amounts of precipitation this fall, too, and we haven't," Swistock said. "If this keeps up through late fall and winter, we will be in trouble. Public surface water supplies have mostly held up rather well so far, but there are already problems with groundwater in places. Because we can't see groundwater, the public is mostly unaware."

Effects of the drought of 1999 were felt all over the state, but it was worst in the parched east.

"In the eastern part of the state — by any measure you care to use — the summer drought of 1999 was as bad as they get," Swistock said. "But ironically, in the fall of that year, the eastern part of the state received so much rain that there were flooding problems and the groundwater recovered. Here in central Pennsylvania, however, where rains were not nearly so heavy or frequent, the groundwater never completely recharged."

The worst-case scenario, warns Swistock, would be if we had a cold, dry winter, which would freeze the ground surface and not allow any recharging of the groundwater. "If that happened," he said, "the groundwater levels would continue to decline as they have all summer and they would reach critical levels come spring."

ter levels would continue to decline as they have all summer and they would reach critical levels come spring."

His biggest concern over the next few months is for people who depend on wells and springs. "We are not getting the fall rains we need and the groundwater levels continue to drop," he said.

"Wells are starting to go dry." According to Swistock, there are two windows of opportunity during the year for recharging groundwater: spring and fall. The fall window is now closing. In the winter, when the ground is frozen and most precipitation falls as snow, and in the summer when trees and other plants are absorbing huge amounts of water, groundwater normally doesn't recharge.

"We have tended in the last 10 to 15 years to have short-term, extreme droughts — we had them in '88, '91, the mid-'90s and '99," says Swistock. "That's different than in the 1930s and 1960s when we had much longer-term droughts. We had six or seven years in a row of well-below-normal rainfall then. That's a big worry, because if we ever get into a cycle like that now with our higher water consumption, we'd really be hurting."

Swistock believes development and growing population, especially in the southeastern part of Pennsylvania, are putting increased pressure on groundwater resources. "There is more competition in this state for water every day from development," he says. "We are putting more pressure on the water resources."

Groundwater mining — taking more groundwater than the system can replenish — is happening in places like Arizona and California, threatening long-term communities. In water-rich Pennsylvania, it is uncommon.

"But in the southeastern part of our state, groundwater mining is occurring and they have started to document continually declining groundwater levels," says Swistock. "A groundwater protection area has been established. Our groundwater supplies are not unlimited. In central Pennsylvania, we should hope for lots of snow this winter."

Media Beef Coverage Focuses On Safety

DENVER, Colo. — Stories about safety accounted for 57 percent of all consumer media coverage of the beef industry in fiscal year 2001, according to national media monitoring data collected for the Cattlemen's Beef Board by the National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA).

The total number of beef industry stories also increased by more than 1,000 over year 2000.

The national media monitoring program, funded by the beef checkoff, covers major market newspapers, wire services, national news and business publications and major network and cable news broadcasts. Data are compiled for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 and ending Sept.

30. Media coverage favorability ratings between 45 and 55 are considered balanced, or neutral.

"Beef safety stories typically account for around 40 percent of total coverage in a year, but 2001 was extraordinary," said Christina Pope, NCBA's director of issue research and analysis, who manages the media-monitoring program. "In 2001, BSE was mentioned in almost 1 out of 3 (29 percent) of all stories about the beef industry."

The increased number of safety stories also bumped up the total number of U.S. stories mentioning beef issues to 7,261, an increase of 16 percent over the fiscal year 2000 total of 6,255.

"The BSE outbreaks that began in Europe in late 2000 resulted in a substantial increase in U.S. media coverage of that issue topic that lasted into the spring of 2001," Pope said. "In fact, BSE coverage was up more than 200 percent over the previous year, with 2,093 stories that mentioned beef and BSE compared to only 676 last year."

Within the heavy BSE coverage, another topic also was frequently mentioned, Pope explained. New variant Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease (nvCJD), the human disease linked to BSE, together with classic CJD was the sixth most mentioned specific issue topic in 2001.

Foot and mouth disease (FMD) also was a prominent topic in 2001 media coverage, Pope added. "Foot and mouth disease didn't even show up last year," she said. "This year, even though U.S. coverage didn't begin until February, it was the fourth leading issue topic mentioned in 1,365 stories, accounting for 19 percent of our total coverage."

"The beef industry's intense efforts to get accurate information out about BSE and FMD is reflected in the neutral media favorability rating of 46 for the safety issue overall and 45 for BSE specifically," Pope said. "It could easily have been portrayed in the media as a highly negative food scare. We calculated that, in the first six months of calendar year 2001, NCBA staff and spokespersons conducted about 600 media interviews just on BSE and FMD."

In addition," she said, "consumer surveys conducted during the times of heavy media coverage showed consumer confidence in the safety of U.S. beef actually increased."

Economics was the second leading 2001 media coverage issue category by volume, mentioned in 2,830 stories or 39 percent of the total coverage.

Foreign trade was the leading topic in economics and the second leading topic overall with mentions in 1,707 stories. Favorability for the economics category averaged a 48 rating.

The category of Reinvent the Chuck/Round, which includes beef recipes and new product news, came in third by volume with 1,600 story mentions and the highest favorability rating of 62, strongly positive.

Nutrition and Health had 1,582 story mentions, fourth by volume, and accounted for 22 percent of total coverage. The nutrition coverage was at the upper end of the neutral favorability range at 55, but the topic of beef & fat/leanness had a positive rating of 59 and mentions of beef & cholesterol were strongly positive with a 62 favorability rating.

"The two smallest categories of media coverage by volume are environment and animal rights/welfare," Pope said. "The amount of U.S. media coverage on the issue of cattle and the environment continues to dwindle from its high of about 45 percent of total coverage back in 1995 to its current level of only 7 percent of the total. The 480 media story mentions of cattle and the environment were solidly neutral with a favorability rating of 49."

Animal rights/welfare coverage typically is the smallest category by volume, Pope said. "The animal rights coverage also has dwindled over the years. Back in the early 90s, this category accounted for 11 or 12 percent of total coverage and often had favorability ratings at 40 and below. In 2001," she said, "the 474 articles mentioning cattle and animal rights accounted for only 7 percent of total coverage and generated a slightly unfavorable rating of 43."

Success With New Commodities Promising For Ohio Farmers

PIKETON, Ohio - Several specialty crops being studied by Ohio State University researchers may prove to be promising new commodities for Ohio farmers.

Specialty types of sweet potato, Asian eggplant and bitter melon are the focus of horticulturist Matt Kleinhenz, plant pathologist Sally Miller, project research assistant Miranda Fout, and horticulturist Brad Bergefurd of OSU Extension. Last year, they identified opportunities and challenges in growing and marketing the specialty crops, and are continuing that work this year.

"Last year was rewarding and challenging," said Fout. "We ran into obstacles, many of which we eventually solved. We also established a good process for comprehensively evaluating these commodities."

Kleinhenz, project coordinator, also looks at last year as a valuable learning experience. "We learned a tremendous amount about the growing and selling of these commodities. That's the point of the project," he said. "We assume the risk of learning mostly so farmers don't have to and then transfer that information to them and others."

We're applying last year's information to this year's research. What we learn, farmers can benefit from."

This year's work wraps up the two-year study, funded through an Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center "New Enterprise Grant." The goal of the project is to help Ohio growers respond to farming-related challenges and opportunities.

For example, Ohio's population is nearly 12 million and growing, prompting some to think that farming will become less important in Ohio. "Ridiculous," said Kleinhenz. "The 12 million people in Ohio and millions of others in neighboring states need to eat. Many consumers may demand a fresh supply of locally, and perhaps organically, grown commodities often not found in most supermarkets. If demand is real and the crops can be grown here, Ohio farmers have additional opportunities."

Asian eggplant, bitter melon, and specialty sweet potatoes may have a niche in Ohio for a number of reasons: the crops appear adapted to the state's warm, humid climate; they appear tolerant or resistant to most pests and diseases; and market outlets may be as near as the next town or city. Asian eggplant and bitter melon, in particular, are used in Asian, Indian, or Mediterranean dishes that anyone can enjoy. Sweet potatoes without the ordinary skin and flesh colors also attract attention. "We have pink-fleshed sweet potatoes," said Fout.

Keep in mind, emphasize the researchers, that people often buy first with their eyes and later based on other qualities. Indeed, one of the difficulties the researchers encountered last year was the size of the sweet potatoes. "Last year's yield was less than we hoped for, mainly because we planted the crop late. We got a lot of small potatoes," said Kleinhenz. "But this year's plants are two to three times larger right now than they were all last year. And we decided to plant them on plastic which has done wonders for the plants and our ability to manage weeds."

The eggplants are being grown using conventional and organic methods and the sweet potatoes are being grown organically. Kleinhenz said the researchers ran into common fertility and weed management problems with last year's organically grown crops, which they rectified this year by using plastic and vermicompost. "Plastic limits weed growth, conserves soil moisture, and warms the soil," he said.

The researchers are growing two varieties of bitter melon, 12 varieties of Asian eggplant, and nine varieties of sweet potato. "The two varieties of bitter melon, Kiew Yoke and Bitter Long, were popular last year," said Fout. "Kiew Yoke was most popular because it's the fat, medium-length, light-colored fruit that many buyers tend to look for."

Eggplants are cultivated by numerous cultures throughout the world and it seems that nearly all have specific preferences for fruit shape, size, color and texture. The long, slender, nearly black-skinned fruit of Orient Express and Ichiban varieties may appeal to some, while the bulbous, milk-white fruit of Snowy appeals to others. Additional combinations of characteristics create an eggplant to suit any culinary interest.

Bitter melon, a vegetable grown extensively in South America, East Africa and Asia, is touted for its nutritional value, having twice the potassium as bananas, twice the beta carotene as broccoli and twice the calcium as spinach. It is also thought to have anti-diabetic and anti-leukemic properties. But the crop lives up to its name. All parts of the plant, including the fruit, taste very bitter.

"These commodities are unusual but they may represent an opportunity for farmers to establish identities in the marketplace," said Kleinhenz. "Our role is to test their biological adaptation in Ohio and provide basic market-related information." Last year's harvest was provided to stores, farm markets, and restaurants throughout Ohio, specifically in Columbus, Cincinnati and Cleveland, for evaluation by consumers, produce buyers and chefs.

Transplants given to grower-cooperators also gave farmers an opportunity to gain first-hand experience with the crops. "Working with grower-cooperators is one of the most important aspects of our work," said Fout. "Some are excited and others really don't know what to make of some of these commodities."

But Fout sees growing interest in specialty crops. "The tobacco market is decreasing. Specialty crops are providing farmers with alternative sources of income," she said, adding that the crops have had success under organic and conventional growing methods. "Smaller acreage farms are increasing. This fits well with growing specialty crops." Researchers are currently working with farmers in 10 counties across Ohio.

No-Till Conference Jan. 9-12

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Mid-Atlantic No-Till Conference is coordinating bus transportation to the 10th annual National No-Tillage Conference Jan. 9-12 in St. Louis, Mo.

Round-trip bus transportation costs $85 per person. Check must be received by Dec. 29, 2001.

Details about conference look at the extensive program online at www.lesspub.com/nntc.

An educational program especially for spouses is offered.

On Wednesday, Jan. 9, the bus will leave State College at 6 a.m. and 8 a.m. from Bedford. On Saturday, Jan. 12, the bus will leave St. Louis at 12:15 p.m. to return to Pennsylvania.

Conference registration (includes a ticket to the Friday luncheon and Friday night banquet): if you participate in this trip, you will receive a $50 discount for being part of the Mid-Atlantic No-Till Group. Your registration fee will be $144 to be paid at the door. Lodging is available at the conference location, Millennium Hotel St. Louis, (800) 222-8888. Reservations for three nights will be needed, Jan. 9-11, 2002. Room rate is $89, single or double occupancy. For guaranteed rate and space availability, make reservations before Dec. 17.

Please make your bus reservations by sending your check made payable to the "Mid-Atlantic No-Till Conference" to the York County Cooperative Extension Service by Dec. 28 to Mark Goodson, York County Cooperative Extension, 112 Pleasant Acres Road, York, PA 17402-9041. For more information, call Joel Myers at work (717) 237-2220 or at home (717) 237-2220.

Grants Available For Conservation Districts To Implement 'PEACCE'

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — PennAg Industries Association and the Lancaster County Conservation District will release funds through the Ombudsman grant to 17 county conservation districts across the state to implement the Pennsylvania Environmental Agricultural Certification of Excellence Program (PEACCE) in January 2002.

Conservation Districts who wish to participate in the PEACCE program will be granted $2,000 to assist in the certification process of up to three farms per county. Currently, the PEACCE program is a pilot program in Chester, Lancaster and Berks counties, with a goal to complete 20 certifications by Jan. 1, 2002.

The overall mission of PEACCE is to promote environmentally safe agricultural practices among livestock and poultry producers, to encourage them to minimize risks to the environment and in turn minimize personal liability, and to recognize those producers who meet or exceed standards as established by PEACCE.

The Pennsylvania sponsors of the PEACCE program include: PennAg Industries, Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, Pennsylvania Association of Conservation Districts, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Pennsylvania State University, and the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection. For more information on the PEACCE program, please contact Amy Van Blarcom at (717) 651-5920.

Mid-Atlantic Regional Watershed Roundtable Conducted

DOYLESTOWN (Bucks Co.) — With the support of EPA, the USDA Natural Resource Conservation Service (NRCS), the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), and additional sponsors including DEP, representatives from watershed programs and groups in seven states, and the District of Columbia attended the 2001 gathering of the Mid-Atlantic Regional Watershed Roundtable here Dec. 3-5.

The Mid-Atlantic Regional Roundtable covers the states of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, and the District of Columbia. It consists of a diverse group of stakeholders that engage in dialogue and information exchange to support collaboration on community-

The 2001 roundtable gathering was convened to improve coordination and to explore and strengthen the connections among grassroots river/watershed leaders, representatives of state and federal agencies, municipal government officials, planners, and business community representatives with an interest in watersheds.

In the last two years, the Mid-Atlantic Regional Watershed Roundtable has discussed goals common to watershed interests throughout the region and has set a long-range vision to improve coordination of efforts in the Mid-Atlantic states that could result in minimizing fragmentation and duplicated effort. To move this vision ahead, the 2001 gathering focused on three goals:

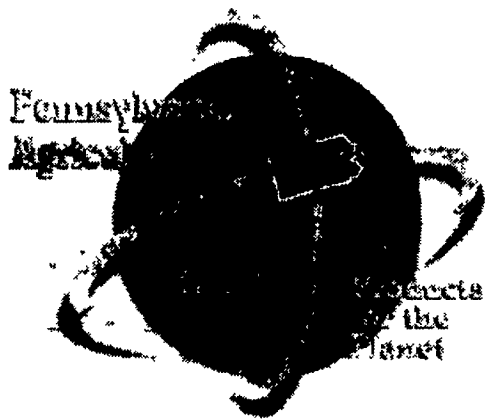

- To disseminate best practices and lessons learned for watershed associations and local planning efforts.

- To strengthen and integrate the watershed movement by focusing on the links between and across agency, governmental, and watershed boundaries.

- To further organize and sustain the Mid-Atlantic Roundtable effort and to create a mechanism to disseminate information.

The first day of the roundtable was devoted to a series of panels giving brief reports starting at the national level then zooming in to the region, the states and the local watershed level. Participants discussed the possibility of adopting some of the strategies and tools that other regional watershed roundtables are creating to benefit their constituents.

Regional watershed roundtables are convening across the nation. The watershed roundtables are regional networks of diverse stakeholders that engage in dialogue and information exchange to support collaboration on community-based watershed protection and restoration efforts.

Seed Vigor Test Refined To Measure Additional Plant Varieties

COLUMBUS, Ohio — An automated image scanning system developed to assess overall seed vigor of lettuce has been refined to measure half of all seedling plant varieties that exist and is nearly 80 percent accurate.

The system, developed by Ohio State University crop production and computer science researchers, is more rapid and accurate than manual tests and improves upon existing commercial automated systems. Initially designed to measure seed vigor of lettuce plants because of their simple root structure, the system can now assess seed vigor of soybeans and cotton and has the capabilities of measuring seedlings of plant varieties from crops to grasses to ornamentals.

"This is just an invaluable piece of technology," said Miller McDonald, an OSU seed scientist. "Farmers want good seed in their fields. If it's not good seed, the plant won't grow. This system tells you how fast a seed grows and how uniformly it grows, and that's the bottom line."

Seed companies conduct rigorous stress tests on seed varieties, including cold tests and accelerated aging tests, to determine which varieties have the highest percentage of germination, hence providing farmers and greenhouse growers the best opportunities for a larger yield. In the past, these tests were conducted by hand, a time-consuming, laborious and often faulty process. McDonald and other researchers were interested in developing a system that improved upon the manual tests.

The image scanning system combines an inverted flatbed scanner that records digital images of germinating seeds with a computer that then processes the data and gives a quantitative measurement of overall seed vigor. The process eliminates the need to conduct stress tests by hand. The system can calculate overall seed vigor within three to four days of germination as opposed to seven to 14 days if tested by hand.

The researchers believe the system is also an improvement upon existing commercial tests, which only examine certain seedling parts, such as root length or the cotyledon (the part of the seed that produces the plant's first leaves). The new system has the capabilities of measuring all seedling parts, providing more accurate and reproducible seed vigor data. It measures growth of the seed; the roots; and the hypocotyl, or the plant stem located just below the cotyledon. A numerical index of zero to 1,000 (zero indicating poor germination and 1,000 indicating ideal germination) is given to each plant part, and then a final number is given for the seed variety that identifies its overall vigor.

"We wanted to develop technology that will benefit the seed industry. With this system, seed companies can provide their customers with more accurate germination information, and hence, the highest-quality seed lot," said McDonald.

The refinements to the image scanning system have enabled researchers to classify the seedling being measured based on its root and hypocotyl structure. For example, lettuce seedlings are classified as type "I" because the roots generally grow in a straight line.

OSU horticulturist Mark Bennett said that the researchers believe most plant seedlings fall under the "I" category. "We feel that 40-50 percent of plant species fall under the 'I' type classification. With the right software, we envision this system to eventually be able to measure nearly all seedling types," he said.

The seedling classification will make it easier for seed companies to evaluate overall seed vigor, since some seedling root and hypocotyl structures, like corn and soybeans, are not so clear cut as lettuce. "It was pretty challenging for us to try to measure soybean seedlings," said McDonald. "Unlike lettuce, there is no clear demarcation line in soybeans that separates the root and hypocotyl from the cotyledon."

McDonald added that when measuring overall seed vigor, it's important to focus completely on the growing root and hypocotyl and eliminate the cotyledon, since it provides no information regarding seed vigor. "If we leave any part of the cotyledon in the measurement, you'll get an erroneous result," he said. "It's important to be able to distinguish where the root and hypocotyl end and the cotyledon begins."

The researchers believe that the image scanning system is an advantageous piece of technology for both farmers and seed companies.

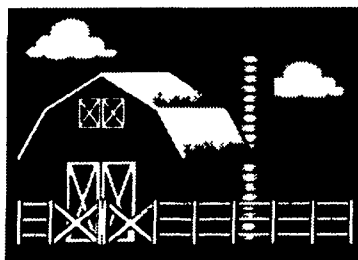

"Farmers want their seed to come up as soon as possible. The soil is a hostile environment. The quicker the seed comes up, the better chance the plant has to survive," said McDonald. "Also, farmers want uniform growth, especially when they need to spray their fields."

Said Bennett, "It's the same for the greenhouse plug industry. Companies want all of their plug cells to sprout plants. Any plant that doesn't come up is lost revenue for them."

Seed companies can also benefit from the image system in that it can assist them in moving inventory — ridding seed that has gone bad, selling a better product by being able to identify which seeds grow the quickest or which ones can withstand stress, and modifying orders to fit specific customer requirements.

"Its uses are endless," said McDonald. "And the best thing about the system is that it establishes a uniform standard of seed quality."

The researchers are still fine-tuning the image system. They are currently working on developing software that will measure corn and grasses, and are working with various seed companies to test the unit in the field. They expect to have the system patented by early next year.

Anthrax In Animals

W. DEE WHITTIER
Extension Veterinarian, Cattle
Va.-Md. Regional College Of Veterinary Medicine

Anthrax has historically been an important disease in cattle and sheep in the U.S. Effective control methods have decreased significantly the number of cases of anthrax in domestic animals so that it has become a rare disease in most areas of the U.S.

South Dakota, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas, and California have the highest incidence of the disease in livestock.

Cattle and sheep are the most susceptible to anthrax. Horses and goats also get the disease but are more resistant and dogs and cats are apparently quite resistant.

A 1955 survey of anthrax losses in livestock in 1955 showed nearly 20,000 US cases in the prior 10 years. However, by the 1960s, 100 cases or less a year were reported. The reasons for the decrease are believed to include better quarantine and hygiene and, when outbreaks do occur, use of antibiotics and vaccination.

Anthrax has sometimes been called "wool-sorters disease." This because there have been historical outbreaks of the disease in people working in woolen mills in the U.S. These were generally associated with imported wools. Experts now believe that these infected wools may have been harvested from animals that had died of anthrax and hence were highly contaminated with the organisms.

Outbreaks of anthrax in livestock are thought to usually be associated with spores that came from other animals dying of the disease. Because these spores do not form until some time after the animal dies, the disease is not contagious. These spores, tiny encapsulated forms of the organism, may survive in the environment for many years (37 years in one case). Flooding of areas where carcasses from anthrax infected animals decomposed carries spores to low-lying pastures where many severe outbreaks of the disease have occurred.

The anthrax organisms can enter the body through a cut in the skin, by being inhaled, or by being eaten or drunk. In studies, much smaller doses of the anthrax will cause infection if the organism is airborne and then inhaled. In actuality, however, the most common route of infection for livestock occurs by ingesting the spores when they contaminate feeds.

Thus it is easier for livestock to get the disease by inhaling it rather than consuming it, but since having airborne spores is rare most livestock actually get the disease by eating the spores.

Sudden death is the most common observation when livestock become infected with anthrax. Following an incubation of 1-14 days (usually 3-7 days) animals develop high fevers and become very ill. Most die with hours of developing the disease. Bloody discharges from the mouth, nose, anus and other body openings are common. Bodies of animals dying from anthrax contain huge numbers of the anthrax organism at death.

Veterinary personnel should examine any animal dying suddenly. Preventing predation of the carcasses will limit the number of spores that enter the environment. If anthrax is suspected samples are typically examined before an entire autopsy is performed since this will also limit the number of spores that are formed to contaminate the area.

In summary, anthrax is a disease that has become relatively rare in U.S. livestock. Its major manifestation is sudden death. Any case of sudden death in domestic animals should be investigated.

Biologists Solve Part Of Puzzle

ITHACA, N.Y. — Familiarity breeds contempt. Nonfamiliarity produces seed.

Just as humans have a natural aversion toward marrying kin, some food crop plants have genes that allow them to avoid being fertilized by "self-related" pollen. Now Cornell University's biologists have solved one more piece of the puzzle of how plants' self-incompatibility works on the molecular level.

The discovery, as reported in the journal Science (Sept. 7, 2001), could enable genetic engineers to short-circuit the reproduction process and more easily hybridize improved varieties of plants.

Many commercial crops are genetic hybrids. Obtaining seed to plant commercial quantities of these crops, such as tomatoes, for example, requires the labor-intensive work of manual crossing. Without the process of manual crossing, the plants would not have the desired qualities of hybrids. But nature has come up with an efficient system for making hybrid seed, which, when understood at the molecular level, can have applications on a commercial scale. This process, termed self-incompatibility, "prevents inbreeding and promotes out-crossing and variability in plants," says June Nasrallah, Cornell professor of plant biology, and the lead author on the Science paper.

In addition to Nasrallah, co-authors of "Allele-Specific Receptor-Ligand Interactions in Brassica Self-Incompatibility" include Mikhail Nasrallah, Cornell professor of plant biology; Aardra Kachroo, Cornell postdoctoral researcher in plant biology; and Christel R. Schopfer, a former Cornell postdoctoral researcher who now conducts research in Germany. Funding for the research was provided by a four-year grant from the National Institutes of Health for the purpose of understanding cellular communication systems. The Nasrallah group examined the reproductive processes of Brassica plants. Like humans and animal species, plants use eggs and sperm in order to make seed and multiply. On the plant's pistil is the stigma, which is the site for capturing pollen. Pollen, which carries the male sperm, is released by stamens and is carried by wind or insects, and it is drawn to a plant's stigma.

If genetically unrelated (non-matching) pollen lands on the stigma, the pollen germinates and produces a pollen tube that then runs through the plant's pistil and into the plant's ovaries.

Fertilized eggs then develop into seed ready to be grown in a garden or a producer's field.

However, if "self-related" pollen lands on the stigma, the stigma's outer (epidermal) layer genetically recognizes the type of pollen and precipitates a self-incompatible reaction that inhibits the pollen tubes from growing. The Cornell group found that pollen recognition is based on highly specific lock-and-key interactions between receptors (the lock) on the stigma surface and ligands (the key) on the pollen surface. "If the pollen is matching kin, the receptor on the stigma is activated to prevent pollen tube growth," said Kachroo. "If the pollen is nonmatching, the receptor is not activated and pollen tubes can grow."

With this revelation, scientists are one step closer to understanding the reproductive barriers of flowering plants and their evolution. "The potential is to finally grasp — at the molecular level — which genes are needed for pollen rejection," said Mikhail Nasrallah. "The ability to silence, mutate and transfer the genes that control the self-incompatibility barrier could be a boon to breeders. Even self-fertilizing crops like tomatoes and rice can benefit from increased genetic variability."

2002 Pork Checkoff Budget Approved By Board

DES MOINES, Iowa — The members of the National Pork Board have approved plans for spending $55.6 million in checkoff-funded programming in 2002. Of that, $45.8 million is for programming determined at the national level and $9.8 million will be returned to states for local checkoff-funded programs.

"Throughout the eight-month budgeting process, pork producers volunteered their time to share ideas and work with industry experts to determine the most efficient and effective ways to increase demand for pork in the U.S., increase exports, and to communicate those checkoff-funded programs with pork producers and others," explains Marlin Pankratz, a pork producer from Mt. Lake, Minn., and chairman of the National Pork Board Plan of Work/Budget Task Force. "Pork producers invest in the pork checkoff and direct how those funds will be used. Changes in overall spending targets for 2002 as compared to 2001 include pork producers' changing priorities."

Pork producers on the Plan of Work/Budget Task Force, including seven board members and five other pork producers, recommended increased expenses for programs related to biosecurity, animal welfare and communications. The National Pork Board approved these recommendations during a meeting in Des Moines. In other areas, funding for specific projects increased or decreased while the overall budget was stable. The 2002 pork checkoff budget is based on expectations for checkoff revenue of $49.1 million and expenses of $55.6 million, for a deficit of $6.5 million.

Overall for 2002, the producer leaders of the National Pork Board and state associations directed 59 percent of the checkoff funds be directed to promotion, 27 percent to research and 14 percent to consumer information.

Nationally, the Board directed 65 percent of checkoff programming for promotion, 28 percent research and 7 percent consumer information. At the state level, 40 percent of the checkoff programming is for consumer information, 37 percent promotion and 23 percent research.

The approval of the plan and budget by the volunteer producer members was the final step for the National Pork Board in the checkoff budget process, which began in the spring. Now the USDA must approve the budget, which is expected to occur in December.

Ornamental Plant Disease New To Ohio Poses Threat To Daylilies

COLUMBUS, Ohio - An ornamental plant disease, first diagnosed in Ohio recently, can pose a serious threat to daylilies.

Daylily rust, caused by a rust fungus of the Puccinia species, has been reported in Franklin and Cuyahoga counties. First reported in the southeastern U.S. last year, it also exists in Kentucky, Indiana, and other mid-western states, and poses potential problems for nursery, greenhouse and garden growers.

"Daylily rust is a pretty serious disease," said Steve Nameth, an Ohio State University plant pathologist. "In Florida, if the disease is found in a greenhouse, that greenhouse is immediately quarantined. The ODA (Ohio Department of Agriculture) hasn't made any quarantine decisions as of yet, but we are following the situation closely to see what will happen."

The disease germinates on daylily leaves, producing lesions that cause leaf dieback. Since photosynthesis, the process of how the plant obtains food, is conducted through the leaves, limited number of leaves on the plant reduces its chances of surviving through winter. The disease spreads easily from plant to plant via spores carried by wind-driven rain and has a short incubation period, infecting leaves two to three days after inoculation.

In addition, it can not only germinate on its host plant, but can also produce spores via a secondary host — a weed of the Patrinia species, which is also grown as a perennial. The presence of a secondary host increases the severity of infection. Six species of Patrinia are sold and grown in the U.S. as ornamentals.

Since little is known about the disease — its biology, exactly how it reproduces, and what is needed for it to survive — Nameth and OSU plant pathologist Mac Riedel will team up with Pat Henley, a daylily expert formerly with ODA, to conduct variety and fungicide studies beginning in September.

"We will study multiple varieties to see which ones show the most resistance to the disease. Pat has literally hundreds of varieties that we can use for the project," said Nameth. "We will also study which fungicides have the most impact on the disease. There are no fungicides on the market that are labeled specifically for rust on daylilies."

Nameth speculates that the wet spring aided in the development of the disease, which may have found its way to Ohio via transport of infected plant material. Growers concerned about the disease infecting their daylilies should cut the plants back to two to three inches above the ground, said Nameth.

The disease is characterized by a rusty spore mass that streaks along the leaf veins. Any leaves found with the disease should be removed from the plant and disposed of either through burning or placed in lawn bags and discarded.

"We are not recommending that people use the infected leaves as compost," said Nameth. "Also, prevent as much overhead watering as possible. Spores need moisture to germinate. If need be, water in the morning rather than at night so that the water has a chance to evaporate. If spores penetrate the leaves in damp conditions overnight, the plants will be infected by the next morning."

ANSWERS YOUR NEEDS

Kingsville Branch Serves Grapes, Growing Industry

KINGSVILLE, Ohio — There's more than one way to eat a Concord grape. You can suck out the juice, chew up the pulp, then spit out what's left of the pulp, seeds and skin. Or, simply, you can wolf it down whole.

Children discover these methods and more at the Grape Research Branch in Ashtabula County. The 25-acre facility, an outlying branch of Ohio State University's Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, hosts an estimated 600 visitors a year, most of them students. They walk the vineyards, taste the grapes and take home samples of freshly squeezed juice.

"The kids get a lot of senses excited," said Greg Johns, branch manager. "The tastes, the sights, the smell of the ripening grapes. The parents I run into say their kids talk all about it."

Including how to chomp a Concord. It's not like eating a Thompson Seedless.

"A lot of kids don't have a clue that grapes are grown in Ohio," Johns said. "They've never eaten a Concord grape. It's one of the things I bring up: How do you eat it? It's got seeds, the slip skin (the skin comes off like a bag), the insides are gooey and juicy, and between myself, the kids and the teachers, we talk about the different ways we've learned to eat them: whether you suck the juice out and spit the slimy part on the ground or eat the whole thing or what."

Concord is the most widely grown grape in Ohio. It's used mainly for jelly and juice. But its acreage has fallen because of low prices: $250 a ton versus $2,000 a ton for Pinot noir. Some Concord vines have been abandoned or have been replaced by higher-value wine grapes.

That's mostly the case at the Kingsville branch, where Concord serves as teaching tools but aren't used much for research.

Wine grapes, instead, are the focus. Studies look at pest, weed and disease control, the effects of compost, and the performance of a wide range of cultivars, clones, rootstocks, spacings and training systems. The grapes, picked in fall, are trucked to OARDC's Wooster campus, where they're analyzed and made into wine.

Why focus on wine grapes? Demand. Only about 30 percent of Ohio grapes are used for wine production, and Ohio wine makers, who import about half of what they need, are eager for more.

As a result, more Ohio grape growers are getting into wine grapes. And more Ohio wine makers are growing their own, too, to reduce reliance on imports and to better control quality.

The branch was established in 1984 when OARDC leased 25 acres on state route 84 from the Ashtabula County Commissioners. Planting began the next year.

The site was chosen for its closeness to Lake Erie and to grape growers. Lake Erie moderates the climate for grape growing; Ashtabula is Ohio's top grape-growing county.

The branch has four acres of wine grapes, among them Chardonnay, Riesling and Cabernet franc; a half acre of Concord; a shop/office/storage building; a recycling tunnel sprayer that slashes pesticide use and drift; a trickle-irrigation system for some of the rows; and a cold-storage unit. A new storage building is planned.

Johns is the branch's sole full-time employee. He coordinates the research, cares for the vines, and, as needed, hires part-time and harvest help. He also gives dozens of tours "We really hear good things about them afterward," he said and works with industry people.

"Grape growers and wine makers in Ohio are different than any other fruit growers," he said. "There doesn't seem to be the competition, the keeping of secrets, that I've seen among growers of other commodities. You can be starting a vineyard and a winery right next door to another vineyard and winery, and (the owners) will be helping you all along the way. They'll loan you their tractors and their sprayers, and they'll tell you how they did something."

"They're very friendly people," he said. "They share everything. They don't hold anything back. I love working with them."

Johns and colleagues respond in kind. They conduct research, tell what they learn, and save grape growers the cost and risk of doing the experiments themselves. Articles, bulletins and newsletters are published. Educational events — including Ohio Grape and Wine Day, Winter Grape School and the Grape Twilight Tour — are held.

"We provide the industry with a baseline of information," said OARDC Director Steve Slack on a recent visit to the branch. "The studies done here help form the foundation for a lot of what's done in the industry."

Details about OARDC's grape research program are at <http://www.oardc.ohio.state.edu/grapeweb/>.

For more information on projects and tours at the branch, contact Johns at (440) 224-0273 or johns.1@osu.edu.

OARDC is the research arm of Ohio State's College of Food, Agricultural, and Environmental Sciences.

Peterson Announces Funding For Dairy Research At Penn State

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. Congressman John Peterson (R-PA/5), a member of the House Appropriations Committee, announced that President Bush signed the FY 2002 Agriculture Appropriations bill into law yesterday containing funding which he requested for several dairy-related research projects at Penn State University.

The following funding requests were included in the bill:

- $294,000 for Dairy Farm Profitability — The dairy industry is a major component of Pennsylvania's agricultural sector, and dairy products constitute nearly two-fifths of the state's agricultural cash receipts. However, the organization and structure of the dairy industry are undergoing significant changes both within the state and throughout the country. This funding will enable Penn State to perform research into the economics of cow health, lactation performance, and overall farm profitability.

Research will also include risk analysis, the economic impact of implementing voluntary animal health programs, and practices that reduce the cost per unit while insuring profitability and minimizing environmental impacts.

- $389,000 for Improved Dairy Management Practices —

This funding will enable the university to continue to perform innovative research that will help dairy farmers adjust successfully to the significant changes needed to manage a 21st century dairy farm. New and improved management practices derived from this research, and their adaptation through education, are essential to helping dairy farmers improve management practices and maintain profitability. "This research will provide dairy farmers in Pennsylvania and across the nation with the tools and the ability to remain competitive in today's ever changing market conditions," according to Peterson.

- $600,000 for Milk Safety — This funding will help the university's food sciences department conduct research to improve our understanding of milk safety. The project examines the food system continuum, from cow to producer, processor, retailer/food handler, and consumer. "Diseases such as Bovine Mastitis cost dairy producers approximately $2 billion a year," according to Peterson. "This research will help us to gain a better understanding of milk safety and improve technologies that will be critical to reducing and eliminating milk contamination."

Disease Management Strategies At Regional Agronomy Meetings

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Ohio farmers struggling with phytophthora (soybean root rot) can seek advice during the "Disease Management Strategies for Maximizing Profits" seminar at Ohio State University's regional agronomy meetings.

The meetings, which will take place the weeks of Dec. 17 and Jan. 14 across Ohio, will provide management guidelines from Ohio State University Extension specialists on everything from insect control to guidance positioning systems to corn nitrogen management.

Phytophthora, an increasing concern among soybean growers, caused northwest Ohio growers to replant up to 40 percent of affected fields in 2000, said Anne Dorrance, an Ohio State University Extension field crop specialist. Soybean varieties with single gene resistance are not as effective as they once were because pathogens have adapted to the gene over time, she said.

The same problem occurred in the 1960s and late 1970s after pathogens adapted to resistant varieties planted annually, Dorrance said. Researchers have been monitoring changes in the pathogen population and are currently researching a new gene, she said.

Until the next resistant variety is available, Dorrance suggests using seed treatment, rotating field crops, and using tiling and tillage. Limiting moisture will inhibit phytophthora, which is commonly found in clay soils. Affected fields have been found near the old lake bed in northwest Ohio and around the Ohio River, such as Miami and Greene counties. "It's on a field to field basis," said Dorrance.

Phytophthora was identified in Ohio and Indiana in the 1950s, and has become a concern in Michigan, Iowa, Wisconsin, Indiana and the north central region, Dorrance said.

"As with phytophthora, the most economical way of managing diseases in field crops is through host resistance," said Dorrance. With production profits at a thin margin because of the markets, smart decisions have to be made to increase yield with reduced inputs, including disease management, said Dorrance.

"The meetings are aimed at increasing profits for farmers by giving unbiased research information that is biologically sound," said Dorrance, who will also discuss diseases concerning other field crops. Other topics will include insect control, improving corn nitrogen management, managing winter annual weeds, sprayer technology, guidance positioning systems and more.

Regional agronomy meeting preregistration ends one week prior to each meeting. The preregistered fee is $15 and $20 at the door, space permitting. Meetings will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the following locations:

- Dec. 18 — Bavarian Haus, Deshler, Ohio, contact Alan Sundermeier, (419) 592-0806, sundermeier.5@osu.edu.

- Dec. 19 — All Occasion Catering, Waldo, Ohio, contact Steve Ruhl, (419) 947-1070, ruhl.1@osu.edu.

- Dec. 19 — Champaign County Community Center Auditorium, Urbana, Ohio, contact Barry Ward, (937) 484-1526, ward.8@osu.edu.

Milk Marketing Board Continues Overorder Premium

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Milk Marketing Board (MMB) announced that the overorder premium of $1.40 per hundredweight will remain in effect until Feb. 19, 2002, at which time the $.25 per hundredweight fuel adjustment will terminate pursuant to Official General Order A-908.

At the time the $.25 per hundredweight fuel adjustment terminates, the overorder premium will increase to $1.65 until June 30, 2002. The overorder premium is paid on Class I (bottled) milk that is produced, processed, and sold within the state.

The action is the result of a hearing of the board on Nov. 28. Testimony was given by representatives on behalf of the Pennsylvania State Grange; the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau; Dairyalea, Dairy Farmers of America's Northeast Council, and Dairy Marketing Services; and Land O'Lakes and Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative.

Based upon the testimony presented, the board members determined that the $1.40 should be maintained because of adverse conditions affecting the Pennsylvania Dairy farmer. Although fuel costs have declined, drought conditions and increased cost of production will add costs for many Pennsylvania producers. Estimates of corn yields in Pennsylvania are down approximately 25 percent from last year and the alfalfa harvest down 10 percent, contributing to the increased cost of production.

Fall milk prices have declined and are expected to continue to fall by more than $1.50 per hundredweight for January, May, and June. Because farm blend prices are higher in the southeastern marketing orders, Pennsylvania milk is going to the southeast.

The Pennsylvania overorder premium of $1.65 is comparable to premiums being offered in the surrounding states and retail out-of-store prices remain on average — comparable or lower than those in New York, New Jersey, and Maryland.

THE LEADER IN THE FIELD

Official: State Seed Law Should Be Changed

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A lot has happened to the nationwide seed industry since Pennsylvania's seed law was adopted back in the mid-1960s.

One official thinks it's time to make some necessary changes.

Adaptations to make required labeling uniform across the country will impact state growers, and they are important enough for the Pennsylvania seed industry "to start making some changes to the seed law," noted Joe Garvey, seed program supervisor at the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Garvey spoke to about a dozen seed company representatives and other agri-industry specialists Tuesday morning at the PennAg Seed Council/Pennsylvania Seedmen's Association annual meeting at the Colonial Country Club, Harrisburg.

Garvey believes it could be time to make some major overhauls to the law, since it has "been so long," he said. Many sweeping changes are taking place throughout seed manufacturing and marketing laws throughout the country.

"With your support," he told the seed representatives at the meeting, "it will go a lot easier and faster."

Last July, amendments to the Federal Seed Act were proposed by the Uniform Labeling Task Force. The amendments made by the Association of American Seed Control Officials to the Recommended Uniform State Seed Law (RUSL) require a "SELL BY" date that permits a uniform period of sale of 15 months exclusive of the month of test that is consistent with the FSA. That would benefit the consumer, the state control official, and the lawn seed industry alike.

Proposed amendments to RUSL were made in July in Portland, Ore.

Many officials are reluctant to simply change the law because of the possible controversies that would result, noted several who spoke at the association meeting in Harrisburg. Simply opening the door and making major revisions could spell potential disaster.

But "why take what has been decided as a group in Portland and then changing it?" noted Garvey.

The working relationship state officials and industry continue to have should make adapting changes to the law a streamlined process.

Vince Snyder, senior technical associate, regulatory affairs, the Scotts Company of Marysville, Ohio, spoke about the RUSL amendments. The amendments address the sale of specified cool-season grass seed for a 15-month period following the test date.

Snyder hopes Pennsylvania can change its existing seed law, because labels will be affected. The amendments are only that — proposed at this time — and are not enforceable.

The RUSL decision, passed unanimously, is almost "a Good Housekeeping Seal of Approval" for officials and those who buy the seeds, Snyder noted.

But rather than opening up the floodgates to controversy over major changes to the existing state seed law, Snyder cautioned that more could get accomplished with less hassle if "you just let a little beam of light on the sections of the bill you want to change," he said. That would involve officials and seed industry people working closely, controlling discussion of the changes.

Speakers at the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Seedmen's Association in Harrisburg were, from left, Joe Garvey, seed program supervisor at Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture; Vince Snyder, senior technical associate, regulatory affairs, the Scotts Company; Joe Butwin, ASTA vice president, and Stokes Seeds Inc. U.S. sales manager; and Fred Mohr, chair of the PennAg Seed Council.

The key is to obtain "a restrictive title." A title could go something like this, according to Snyder: "An act to amend Section 285.3 of the Pa. Seed Act of 1965 and amendments to add a new labeling requirement for specific cool-season grass seed and to amend Section 285.4(1) of the Pa. Seed Act of 1965 and amendments to require the germination testing of specific cool-season grass seed within a 15-month period."

To look at copies of the amendments, those interested can check out the Website, www.seedcontrol.org.

Joe Butwin, American Seed Trade Association (ASTA) vice president, spoke about the concerns of irradiation of mail and how mail-order seed companies will be affected. Many of them now must rely on UPS or FedEx to ensure the viability of seeds, which are destroyed by the anthrax-ridding irradiation under way at the U.S. Postal Service.

ASTA moved to Alexandria, Va., and has a Website, www.amseed.org.

Forum: Plastics Industry Must Address Recycling Issues

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania horticulture industries use 12.7 million pounds of ag plastics annually.

Unfortunately, according to industry experts, the used plastics are a resource wasted, with 20 percent being illegally burned on-site and more than 10 million pounds landfilled.

Devising systems to recycle the use of plastics should fall on the shoulders of the manufacturing industry itself, noted several who spoke at the Landscape and Nursery Rigid Plastic Recycling Demonstration and Forum Wednesday at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

More than two dozen ag plastics manufacturers, ag and extension specialists, and agri-industry representatives attended the forum.

One of the first steps to determine the fate of ag plastics was taken this fall through a plastic waste audit conducted at several locations. This waste audit helps "quantify what we have," said Tim Breneisen, recycling specialist with the Lancaster Solid Waste Management Authority. "If we can re-use this stuff, we don't have to dispose of it or openly burn it."

State laws prohibit the open burning of ag plastics.

The audit was conducted at several locations, including Esbenshade's Greenhouse, River Valley Landscapes, Octoraro Native Plant Nursery, Roots Nursery, Stony Bridge Landscaping, and Hershey Nursery. The audit determined the amount of plastics used and the cost of disposal.

Several landscape company managers at the meeting noted they were looking for alternative disposal methods. Some agreed they would do it, even at a break-even cost.

Tipping fees average about $50 per ton of material. Those costs can add up in volume over the long term.

John Roulston, of the Canadian Polystyrene Recycling Association, Mississauga, Ontario, near Toronto, helps manage a program with 250 greenhouses, many from the northeast and north central U.S. and Canada. The association recycled polystyrene plug trays provided by growers in two Canadian provinces and 32 U.S. states.

The "cutoff" size of operation is about five acres under greenhouses. "It's difficult to get the quantities to make the program commercially viable with growers of less than five acres size," Roulston said.

The program had enjoyed about 30-40 percent growth per year, but came to a virtual standstill prior to the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks.

The association, which opened in 1991, attracts about 5,000-6,000 people per year for tours, mostly school-age children.

About 60 percent of the recycled product is sold back to manufacturer of trays. Forty percent is sold for molded parts, including car parts, vacuum hose, and accessory business.

Although about 15-20 percent of the product comes from the horticultural industry, a large percentage of the plastic received comes from curbside waste programs, the recording industry, graphics, and other areas.

A challenge facing the association, noted Roulston, is the proliferation of alloyed-type plastics;

The company deals with pure polystyrene, though sometimes the growers don't separate out trays that are made of various "other" components. Other types of plastic the association doesn't handle are mixed in with newer components in the plastics.

The association has a Website, www.cpra-canada.com.

"Pennsylvania has developed one of the most comprehensive recycling systems in the nation," said Tom Boushel. Boushel noted that new "barrier technology" plastics are combined in with the collection of consumer plastics in traditional recycling programs, which poses a challenge.

Still, new plants are having success in recycling plastics. He pointed to the PREI-Recycle America consumer plastics system.

It's time to close the loop, Boushel said, in Pennsylvania, and connect recyclers to manufacturers and apply that system here and elsewhere.

"The major barrier is cost," he said. But the industry must come up with the answer. This is called "product stewardship," Boushel noted.

"To some manufacturers, that's a dirty word," said Boushel.

One major soft drink company, Boushel noted, had an attitude problem: they didn't care what happened to the containers once they were used by the public, and if they could make another one twenty-fifth of a cent more by ignoring recycling, so be it.

Luckily, he noted, "that attitude is changing everywhere."

The trend increases as larger corporations get bigger and increase their market share.

"In Europe, product stewardship is very much the case," he said. "Germany, Holland, England, France — you can make whatever you want, but you have the responsibility that if you build this container, it gets recycled. You put in place a system that gets it recycled."

He pointed to the work of Volkswagen in "de-manufacturing" and building these types of recycling plants. There is no discernible difference between the manufacturing and the recycling plants.

Cooper Herd Earns York DHIA Recognition

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent
BAIR (York Co.) — April Cooper gathered up an armful of honors at the York County DHIA annual recognition meeting, then headed home after the evening's dinner and awards program to milk the family's dairy herd.

The Coopers, April and Scott, three-times-daily milk York County's highest-producing herd on their farm near Delta. Their dedication to the 75-head herd of registered Holsteins, plus raising their two small children, leaves little spare time for this successful young dairy couple to sit back and relax on their laurels.

At 28,504 pounds of milk and 835 pounds of protein, the Cooper herd topped York County's DHIA listing, plus claim several individual production honors. Their Elke cow, highest Holstein producer and topping all breeds in production, had 41,153 pounds milk. She was also the high protein producer in her 305-day lactation with 1,197 pounds of protein.

Three of the Cooper's former herd members were among the top four in the county recognized for lifetime milk production achievement. Candy, with six lactations, topped the lifetime list with 267,398 pounds of milk production. Second was Midge, with 223,997 pounds milk over eight lactations. Fourth in the county was Cooper's Frolic, finishing seven lactations with 210,585 pounds milk.

Second high honors, in several categories, went to the Smyser family's Richlawn Farm, York. The Richlawn herd, owned by brothers Rodney and Robert Smyser, averaged 28,172 pounds milk and 821 pounds protein. Their herd average increase of 1,803 pounds, a 25-pound increase in average protein production, combined with various other herd accomplishments earned Richlawn the county's top DHIA herd management award with a 119-point score ranked by a formula weighing various criteria.

Third high in the county in both milk and protein production was Walk-Le Farms, owned by the Leroy and Brenda Walker family, Thomasville, with 26,695 pounds milk and 806 pounds protein. Rutter's herd, York, was fourth, with 26,541 pounds milk and 793 pounds protein. Fifth was Leonard Greek, Delta, with a herd average of 26,209 pounds milk and 787 pounds protein.

Finishing behind Smyser's Richlawn Farm for overall herd management were Walk-Le, second with 101 points, Scott and April Cooper, an even 100 points, Rutter's Guernsey herd, 89 points and David Myers, 84 points.

High producers in eight different dairy breeds garnered awards for a half-dozen of participating test herds. Glenn and Dawn Anderson, Glen Rock, own the high Ayrshire, Gretchen, with milk production of 21,495 pounds, and top Lineback, Lauren, with 22,810 milk pounds. The Rutter herd milked both the high Guernsey, Lily, with 25,365 pounds milk, and the top mixed-breed animal, Dolly, with 24,820 pounds milk.

Dale Clymer's Jersey, Ginny, topped that breed with 18,692 pounds milk. Brown Swiss high production cow was Lily, owned by Lisa Jones, Delta. Honors for high Red and White cow went to Perrydell Farms, with #186's record of 26,723 pounds.

High 2-year-old milk producer was Dorsi, from the Walk-Le herd, with a completed first lactation of 34,306 pounds milk. Glenn and Dawn Anderson's Dixie, a Brown Swiss, was high colored breed 2-year-old with 25,489 pounds milk.

Low somatic cell achievement, a measure of milk quality, earned the Pomraning family of My-T Farm, Delta, a first place with an average of 124,000. Second was Tay-Acres, at 159,000 SCC, Leaspring Farm and Fordville Farm, tied at third with 234,000 SCC each, and Kate Ann Farm, fifth, with 242,000.

David Myers, Thomasville, stepped out of his role as program emcee to accept an award for most improved herd protein production, climbing 92 pounds over the 12-month period ended in October. Second was Larry Robinson, Delta, with a 54-pound increase. Kate Ann was third with 39 pounds and Stump Acres, fourth with 36 pounds.

Average herd milk poundage increases were similar, with David Myers gaining 3,582 pounds of production over the year. Second was Larry Robinson with a 2,258-pound increase. Smyser's Richlawn was third, increasing 1,803 pounds milk, Walk-Le finished fourth with 1,543 pounds added, and fifth was Stump Acres with a 1,509-pound boost.

Herds recognized for protein averages of more than 750 pounds included Walk-Le, 806 pounds; Rutter's, 793 pounds; Leonard Greek, 787 pounds; Earl Furhman, 757 pounds; and Lynn Wolf, 750 pounds.

York County's DHIA board includes David Myers, president; Leroy Walker, vice president; and directors Glenn Anderson, Ed Cottrell, and Paul Rauhauser.

Stakeholders Conduct Meeting During Conference

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — Approximately 200 dairy industry representatives gathered early Thursday morning for a business meeting at the Holiday Inn, part of the Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders 2001 Conference.

Allyn Lamb, treasurer, gave the treasurers report followed by Ralph Heffner, chair of the nominating committee, who offered board member nominees. Members include Chuck Cruickshank, Allyn Lam, David McCorkle, and Paul Semmel. The term limit is six years for the board of directors, who meet four times a year.

Joe Rotz highlighted the Business Planning Assistance Program (BPAP), introduced three years ago. The program has awarded $40,000 in grants to 30 Pennsylvania dairy farm businesses. Producers use the money to hire consultants to develop a business plan for their operation.

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture has also given financial support to the program.

Results from a phone survey to acquire feedback about the program, said Rotz, showed that 50 percent of participants reported increased profitability as a result of the program.

Ernie Gelsinger, who along with his two brothers and nephew operate a 160-cow dairy along with 100 steers and 1,500 acres, reported on their experience with BPAP.

"We were looking for the point that yields maximum return for the amount of resources that we have," he said. A feasibility study with the consultant helped him realize "how things fit together," which prompted them to work on plans to build a new facility.

The partnership has also recently acquired a neighboring farm, so they are milking at two facilities.

Ralph Heffner recognized this year's Pacesetter Award recipients, who were named at Ag Progress Days. "This award recognizes those who are visionary, innovative, progressive, and described by excellence in performance," he said.

One of the Pacesetter Award recipients is John Hess, his wife and four children, in partnership on Jobo Holsteins Farm.

The 500-cow, 900-acre farm has a "vision to build a business to include the next generation," according to Heffner. The family hires consultants, adopts new practices, hosts tours and educational meetings, and allows 4-H'ers to house their calves on the farm.

Among other goals, they are focused on profitability, marketing a quality product, and community involvement.

Tom and Sherry Craig, Murmac Farms, Bellefonte, capitalize on outside expertise with an outside advisory team and use experts from inside and outside agriculture to train workers, said Heffner. They also provide English classes for the farm's Hispanic workers and host Penn State classes and internships.

Sam Hayes, secretary of agriculture, also spoke to the group. Hayes reported about his recent trip to Mexico with a group of students in the "Export for Scholars" program, which centers on exchanging dairy information and animals.

Hayes also highlighted BPAP, noting that "there is no way that one could be a success in the 21st century without a business plan — we cannot expect to compete by happenstance and good luck."

Robert Steel, dean of Penn State College of Agricultural Sciences, is encouraged by the forward movement of agriculture and urged producers to "get better by keeping very much aware of what's going on around you and playing to whatever your future might bring,"

"When we look ahead, it's really quite exciting, particularly when you are looking at the long view, to see the economy moving from a petroleum- to a biology-based economy. My questions is, what's the pace of that change?"

"If we are ready for it, we will capitalize on it," said Steele.

Richard Waybright, president, remarked that "it's gratifying to see how far we've come," but added that "I think we underestimate what we can accomplish. I'm impressed by the opportunities that I have seen happen in the dairy industry in Pennsylvania."

Waybright broadened his view to foreign soils, however, by adding, "it's our opportunity to invite young people abroad to come experience agriculture here. Those are the kinds of experiences that will give us fuel to accomplish what our true potential is in Pennsylvania."

House Passes HR 3005, TPA Bill

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. House of Representatives recently passed HR 3005 with a vote of 215 in favor and 214 opposed. There were six members abstaining. If passed by the Senate and signed into law, this legislation will allow negotiators to work for cattle producers to provide increased access to international markets and provide for wider U.S. participation in the global marketplace.

"The Trade Promotion Authority legislation passed by the House will enable U.S. negotiators to provide leadership and negotiate for increased access to global beef markets and will expand opportunities for American agriculture," said Chuck Lambert, National Cattlemen's Beef Association's (NCBA) chief economist.

"U.S. agriculture is the most productive and efficient in the world, but many markets remain out of reach simply because of trade barriers," said Lambert. "U.S. beef faces tariffs of 38.5 percent and 40 percent, respectively, in Japan and Korea and the EU is the world's largest user of beef export subsidies. The only way to eliminate those barriers and unfair trade practices is through determined negotiation."

Trade Promotion Authority provides a partnership between Congress and the President to achieve the best possible result for U.S. interests in international trade negotiations. With Trade Promotion Authority, the President has the authority to efficiently move forward on trade issues while continuing to consult with Congress.

Dairy Stakeholders Review Issues, Honor Producers At Conference

industry representatives Wednesday evening at the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association annual awards banquet. The banquet was in conjunction with the Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders Conference at the Grantville Holiday Inn.

Even soy is a product to compete with, Schriver noted. "Whoever thought you'd have to worry about soy as a beverage?" he said. These products cater to one constant — change.

DFA has about 37,000 dairy producers/members, Schriver noted, in 45 states. They market 44 billion pounds of milk annually.

Schriver's "soapbox," he noted, 10 years ago was product packaging. The focus remains — except this time with new emphasis on product partnerships.

One such partnership is with Pepsi on long shelf-life milk products such as Frappuccino, also in partnership with Starbucks Coffee.

Even using milk to make biodegradable containers using lactose can be one way to market milk.

Change is inevitable. Schriver spoke about how some dairy managers couldn't comprehend moving to 100 or even 500 cows.

Now, one DFA-member dairy has to manage 40 tankers a day.

Working together for some people to direct the course of an industry, can be "a real challenge," Schriver said. We have to work on "our attitude," and not just think "I am just a farmer," he said. "You are in the dairy business. It's a way of life and a business."

Awards were presented during the Wednesday evening banquet. Jay Houser, Penn Dell Farm, was honored with the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association 2002 Charles E. Cowan Memorial Award. The award is presented to a dairy producer who has demonstrated superior management capabilities and provided outstanding leadership qualities with the dairy industry.

Penn Dell consists of 287 acres and 150 Holsteins. The herd of 75 milking cows, on its most recent DHIA test, had a production average of more than 29,000 pounds milk, 1,200 pounds of fat, and 875 pounds of protein. Houser has bred and developed more than 160 cows that have lifetime production totals above 100,000 pounds of milk. Thirty have exceeded 200,000 pounds.

The farm has had 30 homebred cows scored Excellent in the Holstein breed classification program. Stating with a score of 101 in 1964, the herd now has a Breed Age Average (BAA) score of 108.

Houser, who took over management of the family farm in 1963, has received the Holstein Progressive Breeders Award for each of the past 29 years. The herd has also received the association's Progressive Genetics Award each of the 11 years since it was created in the early 1990s. More than 30 young herd sires have gone into the progeny testing programs of a number of AI units.

Houser has been director and officer of the Centre County Holstein Club, member of the national association since 1957, and member of the county DHIA and local AI unit since 1963. He recently served as president of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association and was named, in 1998, to the Pennsylvania Holstein Hall of Fame.

Houser noted the importance of his family, and the "unity of family on the dairy — you can't do it without unity."

The Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association 2002 Extension Award was presented to Arlyn (Jud) Heinrichs, who grew up on a small Holstein farm in Sullivan County, N.Y. Heinrichs obtained his undergraduate degree in animal science from Cornell in 1977 and earned his master's and doctorate degree in dairy science from Ohio State.

Heinrichs was appointed to the faculty of Penn State in 1982 as assistant professor, associate professor in 1988, and to professor in 1994. His work has centered on the nutrition and management of dairy heifers and the proper management of forages for dairy cattle.

Heinrichs has conducted numerous applied research studies on calf and heifer management. His strong interest in dairy forage quality led to his being a co-inventor of the Penn State Forage and TMR particle size separator. This device is an important tool for modifying management practices in feeding dairy cattle.

Heinrichs' recent work has focused on the housing needs and the nutrient requirements of dairy heifers that will allow them to calve at or before 24 months of age with adequate body weight and optimal mammary development.

Recipient of the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association 2002 Distinguished Dairy Women Award is Rita Kennedy of Valencia.

In 1977 she was the first woman in its 68-year history to be elected president of the Butler County Cooperative Extension. Between 1975-1989, she served three terms on the board and finished her second term as president.

Kennedy has served on the board of the All-American Dairy show since 1992, chaired the advisory committee, and serves as vice president of the show. Her dedication and service has led to the improvement and growth of the All-American Dairy Show, the largest dairy show in the country. She received the All-American Dairy Show Image Award.

Kennedy is a member of the National Brown Swiss Association and was elected as a national director to its board in 2000. She served on the board of directors of the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association from 1993-2000, where she was elected vice president from 1998-2000. Kennedy was named to the National Dairy Board in 1999. She is National Dairy

Meat Goat Producers Conference Scheduled

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension in the Northeast Region is sponsoring a regional meat goat producers conference on Sat., Jan. 26, 2002, in the Scranton area. This conference is intended for meat goat producers and those interested in investigating meat goat production as an alternative farm enterprise.

Conference topics include: Getting Started in Meat Goat Production, Nutritional Needs of Meat Goats, Meat Goats on Pasture, Goat Herd Health, and Meat Goat Marketing.

Featured speakers include Tattiana Stanton, Sheep and Goat Extension Association, Cornell University; Dr. Robert Van Saun, Extension Veterinarian, Penn State University; and Dr. Bob Herr, meat goat owner and broker; and Mark Toda, NE PA PENNTAP program. Conference attendees will also receive an informational packet on meat goat production.

The conference will be conducted at the Iron Skillet Restaurant in the Petro Shopping Center near Scranton (exit 178B off I 81). The cost of the program is $12 per person which includes lunch.

To register, send your name, address, phone number, and number attending along with a check for $12 per person to Meat Goat Program, Penn State Cooperative Extension, 925 Court Street, Honesdale, PA 18431. Checks should be payable to "Extension Special Account." The registration deadline is January 22. You can also register by calling Dave Messersmith at the Penn State Cooperative Extension office in Wayne County at (570) 253-5970, ext. 239.

Juniors Get Ready For A Challenge In 2002

ALTOONA (Blair Co.) — Even though we just came through another harvest season and are looking forward to the wonderful celebrations of the holidays, it's not too soon to be making plans for the Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Association Convention.

This year's convention committee has put together an exciting and educational weekend, promising to be a great break from the midwinter doldrums. The committee wishes to invite juniors from around the state to join them in Altoona, Feb. 8-10.

The theme for the weekend will be "Challenging You In 2002." From the moment juniors arrive at the convention headquarters, Ramada Inn Altoona, they will be challenged to have a fun time while learning something new.

The highlight of the activities will be an ongoing "Survivor Scavenger Hunt," a challenging game that will involve teams of juniors earning points to win monetary prizes at the close of the convention. Juniors are encouraged to come to the convention with their "Survivor gear," — hats, vests, etc. — in order to earn five points for their team and get a head start on the challenge.

Another easy way to get a head start on the Survivor Scavenger Hunt is to bring someone who has never attended a Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Convention. Both the new attendee and the friend who invited them will receive five points each for their teams.

Among Friday's features will be the opening of the Dairy Bar and Commercial Exhibit areas, interviews for the Distinguished Junior Member contest, seeding for the Dairy Bowl Contest, and the Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Annual Meeting. The focus turns to entertainment late Friday evening as the opening night "Survivor Dance" gets under way, complete with snacks and a balloon artist on hand.

Saturday's activities are sure to challenge all junior members, regardless of their interests. The morning activities include the Dairy Bowl Contest and the Public Speaking Contest. There will also be a workshop about completing the Distinguished Junior Member Contest applications and other Pennsylvania Junior forms. For those not participating in the contests, there will be transportation available to the Blue Knob Ski Resort for snow skiing and tubing.

Saturday's other activities feature the Dairy Bowl finals at the hotel, transportation to visit two large modern dairies, Blue Knob Ski Resort for tubing and the Blair County's new indoor ice skating facility, Galactic Ice.

Juniors who chose the farm tours will visit Pleasant View Farms in Martinsburg and Penn England Farms in Williamsburg. Pleasant View Farms is a large family operated dairy consisting of 3,600 acres and more than 3,000 Holsteins. Rodney and Gretchen Metzler and their grown sons and their wives, Troy and Jennifer, who are Pennsylvania Junior Convention co-chairmen, and Marshall and Holly, are active in the day-to-day operation of this modern marvel of dairy technology.

In 1998, Pleasant View Farms underwent an expansion that includes a Surge double 25 parallel milking parlor, a plate cooling system, and direct loading of milk onto trailers.

Penn England Farm, located outside of Williamsburg, is owned by Frederick and Cynthia England. Many members of the England family, including children, nieces, and nephews, are active in the day-to-day operations of this 1,300-head dairy farm. Penn England farm consists of approximately 1,800 acres of cropland, the bulk of which is rented. They began building in their state-of-the-art Surge double-16 Herringbone parlor in January 1998.

Saturday evening will include a dinner at the Ramada Inn, featuring the winning Public Speaking Contest presentations and a dance. Sunday morning the convention will close with the awards banquet, including recognizing many juniors for the accomplishments over the past year. The prizes will also be given for the Survivor Scavenger Hunt game.

It's not too early to make your hotel reservations and order your convention tickets for this fun-filled weekend in central Pennsylvania. For more information and applications for the contests, interested persons should contact the Pennsylvania Holstein Association office in State College at (814) 234-0364 or visit the association's Website at www.paholsteins.com.

Dairy Alliance Offers Training

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Penn State Dairy Alliance is accepting reservations for its 2002 DHIA Information Analysis Training Program for professionals serving Pennsylvania dairy producers.

The goals of this program are to improve participants' understanding of key indicators of herd performance, teach participants how to interpret paper DHIA reports using the key performance indicators, and improve participants' skills in analyzing DHIA records through the use of various computer information systems.

As a result of participating in this program, industry professionals will be better equipped to assist producers in the use and interpretation of the production information systems on their farms.

Last summer, professionals from several companies participated in the pilot series of day-long sessions in which they received training in DHIA records analysis and hands-on training in the use of PCDART or Dairy Comp 305 to troubleshoot herd performance problems. According to Dave Zimmerman, district sales manager of Genex/CRI, "The basic information analysis and the advanced PCDART training sessions have been extremely popular with and much appreciated by our field staff. The structure of the training sessions provides our field staff the opportunity to network and team up with professionals from other agribusinesses."

According to Dairy Alliance Information Management Specialist Brad Hilty, the objective of the program is to "enhance the use of information systems and the exchange of ideas for improving herd performance between dairy producers and their advisers."

Future sessions are planned for January through May of 2002. The workshops will be offered on the Penn State Campus and at the Cumberland County extension office in Carlisle. Dates and locations are listed on the Dairy Alliance Website, www.dairyalliance.org. The cost is $95 per individual per session. A discounted cost of $225 for three sessions is available for individuals wishing to attend multiple sessions. Individuals or companies interested in registering for the 2002 sessions, or agribusinesses interested in training for their field staff, should contact Tammy Perkins at (888) 373-PADA.

For additional information about the DHIA Information Analysis Training, call the Dairy Alliance Office at (888) 373-PADA or e-mail bhilty@psu.edu.

Internet Technology Aids Farmers

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

ADAMSTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — "Farming With Technology," an educational event featuring seminars with computer-related topics, drew more than 40 farm operators, extension agents, business consultants, and EPA representatives here to Weaver Market's banquet facilities.

Sessions offered topics such as on-line, interactive computer training, locating on-line agricultural supplies and information, palmtop computers, field record software, better record-keeping ideas for dairy operations, and making field maps.

Technology As Farm Equipment

"Technology is just like any other piece of farm equipment," said Phoebe Bitler, Vista Farm. The Bitler family milks more than 80 cows on their Fleetwood operation.

"Once you make the initial investment it is wise to find a trusted source to be your adviser," she said. "Having something in your possession that you don't know how to operate is completely worthless. Those dollars that you spend to pay a trusted someone is money well spent," she said. "Spend time and money right away to learn how to use it."

Also like other farm implements, technology equipment needs regular maintenance, such as a virus scan, and updates to allow operators to get more and faster information.

E-mail and cell phones have become essential elements of the Bitler operation to gain and share information, she said. The Internet has offered them the ability to look for parts for the tractor her son was restoring.

They were also able to become part of a global economic outreach program where the Bitlers got feed test results for a missionary in Mongolia. The Internet also allows them to put the pedigrees and photographs of their cattle on the Internet. The Bitlers keep records, pedigrees, and farm maps on the computer.

She has also used her computer and scanner for 4-H projects or gifts. This equipment cannot, however, replace handmade presents. "Technology is great but giving something that's a part of yourself is still a measure," she said.

Information Source

Bonnie Wenger, Wen-Crest Farms, and her husband Steve operate a livestock and crop farm in Schaefferstown. Wenger offered her ideas on finding information on the Internet. The www.Agribiz.com page, for example, offers markets and analysis and a daily update on LDP rates. Useful farm chemical information is available at www.greenbook.net. Weather conditions, news, and market analysis are found on Agweb.com.

Farm Service Agency programs and manuals are online at FSA.usda.gov.

The Wenger family has also had experience in marketing freezer beef on the Internet. Wenger recommends the avenue for a nonperishable product, as they found that beef was impractical to package and send long distances.

Representatives from Internet marketing company Sharp Innovations also shared Internet ideas. Alex Borgen highlighted www.joefarmer.com, and www.agfind.com, www.ageze.com, and www.agri-surf.com as search engines that will help limit search results to agriculturally-related topics. Alex recommended formulating a question of what the searcher is looking for and identifying important concepts within the question to limit the number of results.

"The information is out there," he said. "If somebody doesn't have it on today they'll have it on tomorrow," he said.

Benchmarks

Since technology is important in gathering, synthesizing, and analyzing information, Brad Hilty, information management specialist with Penn State Dairy Alliance, detailed ways of using information to make operational decisions.

Phoebe Bitler, Vista Grande Farm, Fleetwood, offered her insights into farm technology during her presentation. She is standing beside a presentation board that features photographs and text created on their farm's computer.

He emphasized the use of benchmarks, information management, and accurate record-keeping on the farm during his presentation.

A benchmark, said Hilty, is "how you are doing as compared to other business, or last year, or since you've made changes."

Once benchmarks are established, a producer can compare results to industry standards and use information (i.e., farm records) to make better management decisions.

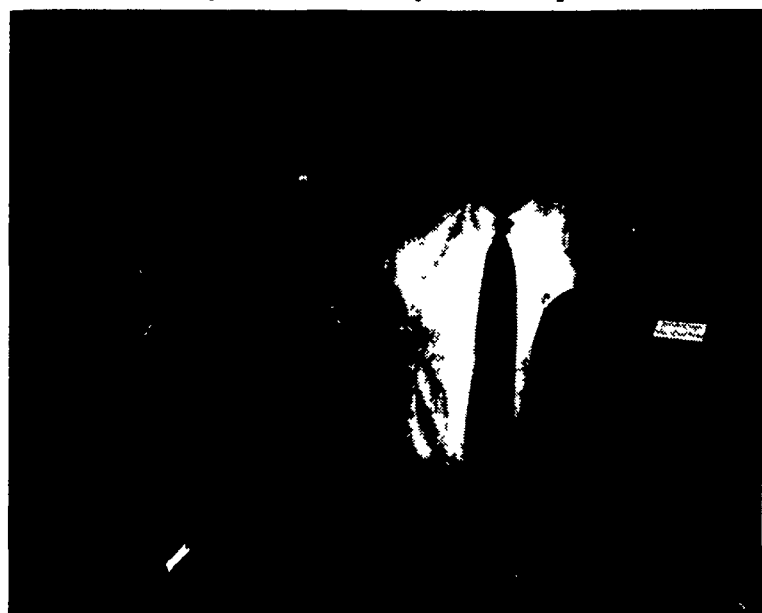

"Beware of averages," he said. "If you are shooting for average, you're setting yourself up to not be in business in the next ten years. It puts you in the danger zone. Look at what the top 15-20 percent are doing, because that's where you want to be."

With tighter management controls, farmers will reap profitability. "If you can measure it, you can manage it," he said. "You can collect all this data, but if you are not using it to make decisions, it's useless. Use it to get a better idea of how you are performing."

Accounting systems, production records, analysis systems, and advisors are sources of information.

As examples, Hilty highlighted the statistics of dairy businesses. In 1995, averages dairy businesses exhibited an average of 4.5 percent return on assets, while top herds checked in with an average of 15 percent return on assets.

In summary, good benchmarks require accurate data and accurate data requires sound data management, said Hilty, who encouraged producers to reconcile accounts on a monthly basis.

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Summary

St. Joseph, Mo.

Report Supplied By USDA
NATIONAL FEEDER CATTLE SUMMARY for week ending Dec. 7. Receipts this week 245,200; last week 156,060 year ago 249,000. Compared to last week, yearling feeder steers and heifers sold mostly steady on limited offerings. Calf prices trended steady to 3.00 higher on heavy receipts, with Southeastern calves under 450 lbs as much as 5.00 higher. The volatile feeder prices were much calmer this past week and the word "steady" reappeared on many market reports across the country. Which is refreshing, after the bucking that this feeder cattle market has undergone over the last month. The next ten days in Las Vegas at the National Finals Rodeo will seem mild compared to the "wild ride" that feeder cattle buyers and sellers have been experiencing. Large runs of calves helped buyers put loads together, especially at the single-head auctions of the Southeast. Buyers have now caught up on orders for wheat cattle, following the rush brought on by brief periods of rain and snow in the Southwest. However, the Plains remain very dry and the winter wheat crop conditions are not good at this point in the growing season. The lack of wheat pasture does not seem to be curbing the demand for calves, since backgrounders have learned how to make use of growing yards and cheap feed over the last few years. Many calves are showing up at the markets in some stage of weaning and in favorable flesh conditions for buyers. Direct country trading continues to be relatively light for this year's spring calf crop; amid uncertain market conditions. Most calves are going to the auction markets, although it doesn't seem that long ago that people were saying there is no longer a place for salebarns in this world of direct, video, and internet marketing. This week's numbers show that there is still a need for the sounds of a yelling ringman, a cracking whip, and clanging gates; along with the smells of manure, cigarettes, and greasy hamburgers. Nearly 17,000 head of feeder cattle were sold at the Oklahoma City Stockyards and OKC West in El Reno, Oklahoma; two auctions in La Junta, Colorado, sold over 14,000 head this week. Around 29,000 head of feeder cattle made their way through the ring at the Joplin Regional Stockyards this past week, with the addition of two special Wean-Vac auctions where calves sold at a 4.00-6.00 premium. Fat cattle prices leveled off this week to trade 1.00 lower at 65.00, after advancing 6.00 in the two previous weeks. This week's reported volume included 34 percent over 600 lbs.

Farming Forecast

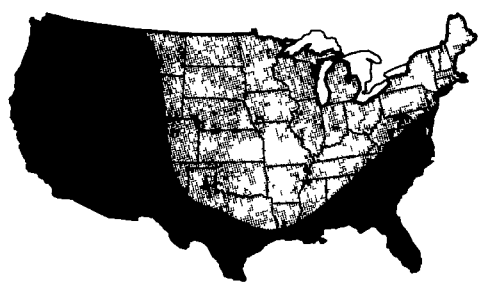

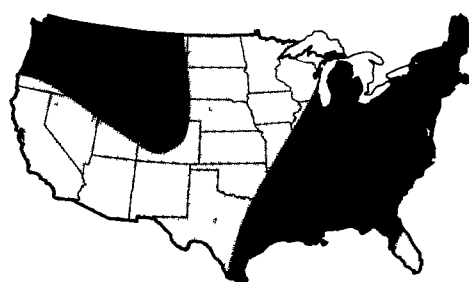

Clouds will increase Sunday as another storm moves into the region. There will be sleet and snow at the start of the storm, but it will change over to rain as Monday arrives. There may be a couple of slushy inches on the ground before the change to rain, but most of the icy mess will get washed away Tuesday will be blustery and colder, so there may be flurries on the back of this storm.

Thanks and congratulations to Jeff VanderGroef and Rob Lange on the construction of a new forest green 62 x 19 Slurrystore® System for VanderGroef Dairy, Sussex, NJ.

Jeff says there were three main reasons for his choice of a Slurrystore System from Penn Jersey:

Space restrictions requiring storage that could be built high instead of wide.

The Slurrystore's expandability.

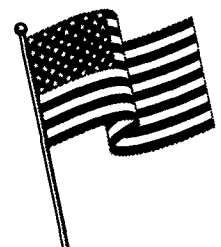

The ability to sell and dismantle the structure if the farm were converted from dairy.

In addition, landowner Rob Lange liked the way the green color blended in with surrounding trees!

Pennsylvania Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program

What is CREP?

The Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program (CREP) is a federal/state partnership with a goal of enrolling 100,000 acres of highly erodible cropland and pasture in conservation plantings to improve water quality and provide improved wildlife and fisheries habitat.

What Are My Obligations?

Farmers and landowners must agree to establish and maintain grass, shrubs or trees for the life of the contract (10-15 years). No harvesting is allowed except for emergency purposes as declared by the Secretary of Agriculture. Once cover is established, no maintenance mowing is permitted during the primary nesting season of April 1 - July 15.

Will My Land Be Open To Public Access?

You maintain control of your land except for USDA access to inspect for contract compliance.

CREP is sponsored by the following partnership:

USDA Farm Service Agency	State Conservation Commission
USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service	Ducks Unlimited
Pennsylvania Dept. of Agriculture	Chesapeake Bay Foundation
Pennsylvania Dept. of Environmental Protection	Center for Rural Pennsylvania
Pennsylvania Game Commission	Pheasants Forever
Pennsylvania Dept. of Conservation & Natural Resources	Governor's Sportsman Advisory Council
Pennsylvania Fish & Boat Commission	Pennsylvania Farm Bureau
Pennsylvania Assoc. of Conservation Districts	Pennsylvania State Cooperative Extension

Benefits of CREP

- Reduced soil erosion
- Improved water quality
- Increase in farm income on marginal land
- Improved wildlife and fisheries habitat
- Improved herd health

EXAMPLES OF PA CREP RENTAL RATES PLUS INCENTIVES

Average Rental Rates		Average Rental Rates
County	$/acre/yr.	County	$/acre/yr.
Adams	114	Franklin	102
Berks	137	Lancaster	177
Chester	144	Lebanon	147
Cumberland	102	York	131

What Land Is Eligible?

All cropland or marginal pasture within 180 feet of a stream is eligible. Highly erodible cropland farther than 180 feet from a stream may also be eligible.

What are my costs?

Just a willingness to get involved in conservation. In addition to your annual rental payment, USDA, the Commonwealth of PA and Chesapeake Bay Foundation/Ducks Unlimited will reimburse up to 100% for a variety of Conservation Practices (CPs).

For Crep information in Southeast contact Bob Thomas, PGC CREP outreach coordinator at 610-584-2065.

In addition to your annual rental payment, USDA, the Commonwealth of PA and Chesapeake Bay Foundation will reimburse you for up to 100% of the costs of establishing CPs.

Note: These are only the approximate average rental payments for CREP counties in southeastern PA. Rental rates will vary for different soils types. Actual rental rates are calculated by producer using the three predominate soil types for the land offered.

Eligible Practices Under CREP

Cool Season Grasses and Legumes (CP1)
Native Warm Season Grasses (CP2)
Hardwood Trees (CP3A)
Wildlife Habitat (CP4D)
Grassed Waterway (CP8A)
Shallow Water Area For Wildlife (CP9)
Wildlife Food Plots (ex. annual grains) (CP12)
Contour Grass Buffer Strips (CP15A)
Filter Strips Next To Streams (CP21)
Forested Riparian Buffers Next to Streams (CP22)
Restored Wetlands (CP23)

Additional incentive payments are available for CP2, CP8a, CP9, CP15, CP21, CP22, CP23.

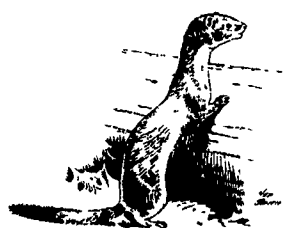

How do I participate?

Lemon-Gingerbread Bars

Heat oven to 350°F. Grease 13x9x2-inch rectangular pan. Make dough as directed in Master Recipe. Press in bottom and 1/4 inch up sides of pan. Bake 10 minutes. Meanwhile, beat 1 cup granulated sugar, 1 tablespoon grated lemon peel, if desired, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, 1/4 teaspoon baking powder, 1/4 teaspoon salt and 3 eggs with wire whisk or spoon about 1 minute or until well mixed. Pour over hot crust. Bake 20 to 25 minutes or until set. Cool completely. Sprinkle with powdered sugar. Decorate as desired. For bars, cut into 6 rows by 4 rows. Store tightly covered.

Stained-Glass Cookies

Heat oven to 375°F. Line cookie sheet with aluminum foil; generously grease foil. Make dough as directed in Master Recipe. Roll 1/8 inch thick on lightly floured surface. Cut into desired shapes with cookie cutters. Place about 2 inches apart on foil. Cut out center of each cookie using sharp knife, smaller cookie cutter or small round glass or lid. Flatten Pectin Sanded Christmas Mix candies with rolling pin on surface sprinkled with sugar. Cut candies into small shapes to fit centers of cookies; place in centers of cookies. To hang cookies as decorations, make hole in each cookie 1/4 inch from top with end of plastic straw. Bake 7 to 9 minutes or until candies are melted. Cool 5 minutes; carefully remove from cookie sheet. Cool completely. Decorate as desired. Store in airtight container (do not stack decorated cookies).

GINGERBREAD FUN

Holiday Gingerbread Master Recipe

- 1/3 cup Grandma's Molasses
- 1/4 cup packed brown sugar
- 2 tablespoons shortening
- 3 tablespoons cold water
- 1 3/4 cups all-purpose flour
- 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon ground allspice
- 1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
- 1/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 2 tubes (4.25 ounces each) white decorating icing
- 6 tubes (0.68 ounces each) assorted colors decorating gels
- 2-6 oz. jelly beans, Red Apple, Kiwi, Lemon, Coconut and Candy Cane flavors
- 2-4 oz. Goelitz Confections, Reindeer Corn and Pectin Sanded Christmas Mix

Stir together molasses, brown sugar and shortening in large bowl. Stir in cold water. Stir in flour, baking soda, ginger, salt, allspice, cloves and cinnamon. Use dough as directed in one of these variations. No changes in variations for high altitude. Decorate with icing, gels and candies.

To save time, double the recipe and freeze half for later use.

Gingerbread dates back to ancient Egypt, where bakers developed a recipe calling for crumbs, syrup and spices. Seafaring traders brought gingerbread to Greece, and from there it spread to the Middle East. Crusaders returning from the wars brought it to medieval Europe. Many years later gingerbread-making was recognized as a profession, and in the seventeenth century, gingerbread bakers had the exclusive right to make it—except during Christmas and Easter. During those holidays, people would prepare their gingerbread in a variety of ornamental and religious shapes. Some of those shapes were often in the form of saints, which became the precursor to the gingerbread man.

Gingerbread People

Heat oven to 375°F. Grease cookie sheet. Make dough as directed in Master Recipe. Roll 1/8 inch thick on lightly floured surface. Cut into desired shapes with cookie cutters. Place about 2 inches apart on cookie sheet. To hang cookies as decorations, make hole in each cookie 1/4 inch from top with end of plastic straw. Bake 7 to 9 minutes or until set. Cool 1 minute; remove from cookie sheet. Cool completely. Decorate as desired. Store in airtight container (do not stack decorated cookies).

Gingerbread Pizza

Heat oven to 350°F. Grease 12-inch pizza pan. Make dough as directed in Master Recipe. Press in pan. Bake 10 to 15 minutes or until set. Cool completely. Beat 2 packages (3 ounces each) cream cheese, softened, 2 1/2 cups powdered sugar and 1/2 teaspoon vanilla with wire whisk or spoon until smooth and creamy. Spread over pizza. Decorate as desired just before serving. Cut into 12 wedges. Serve immediately.

TIPS

Easy stick: To make the candy stick, use a dab of tube frosting or royal icing as a base.

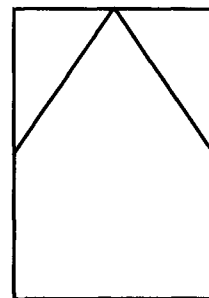

Smooth lines: To create the appearance of a smooth line, lay jelly beans side by side.

Easy to make brown sugar: To make 1 cup brown sugar, use 1/2 cup molasses plus 1 cup granulated sugar.

Gingerbread House

Heat oven to 350°F. Grease 13x9x2-inch rectangular pan. Make dough as directed in Master Recipe. Press in pan. Bake about 15 minutes or until no indentation remains when touched in center. Cool 5 minutes; turn upside down onto cutting surface. With sharp knife, cut angles from 2 corners of rectangle to form roof of house; trim remaining edges to straighten if desired. Reserve corners for use as supports for back of house. Cut openings for windows if desired. Cool completely. Decorate house front as desired; let dry. Attach supports to back of house with decorating icing.

On Being a Farm Wife

Joyce Bupp

'Tis the perfect season for procrastination.

But soon there will be no more putting off 'til tomorrow what should have been done yesterday.

It will be too late.

No, this year's procrastinating hasn't been over holiday preparations.

Holiday chores — sort or, more or less, as best we can — just get wiggled in between the daily chores and all those surprise jobs that crop up and need prompt attention. Herd checks and bill paying. Freshening cows and tending new baby calves. Spending a whole afternoon upgrading The Farmer's cell phone service when his obsolete pocket-side-kick finally died. Implementation of a long-delayed conservation improvement in a pasture.

Wedge between the routine and the not-so-routine are those fun holiday opportunities that pop up: picking up special things for the grandchildren, finding a sale on pretty, seasonal plants, dropping off a surprise for a special friend.

This year's procrastination is the doing of Mother Nature, reluctant (like us!) to let go of sun-splashed balmy days and gentle, comfy evenings. Which means outside yardwork keeps going on. And on. And on.

So here it was, mere shopping-day countdown time until the year's biggest holiday season. And I find myself bopping around the lawn on the mower, cutting lush green grass, laying low the scruffy weeds and chopping into infinite bits the maple leaves which finally departed the trees.

Leaves around the house rarely fall much before Thanksgiving, meaning that an early snow or a sudden freeze often leaves us with a littery-looking lawn for winter's duration. At least until it gets covered with snow. But, thanks to the extended period of weather procrastination, we now have a tidy lawn for the holidays and a neater landscape to look out upon until spring.

On another September-like recent afternoon, my guilt and I lugged a spade to the garden to dig up the gladioli bulbs. The chore had been postponed earlier, when the soil was brick hard. And then, simply forgotten. Until one of those soggy, sodden days of welcome moisture, when the thought of the bulbs — still undug — popped into my mind.

No worse for their extended underground storage, the bulbs were like little treasures turning up in spadefuls of soil perfect for digging. The ground was a pleasure to work in, moist, crumbly, and smelled absolutely wonderful. Most of the bulbs had at least doubled, each reproducing two fat clones of themselves. Every couple of years, they multiply right out of our available space, until I pester friends to take the excess. What other kind of treasure can you bury that doubles itself in a couple of months time?

A day later, another planting procrastination jogged my memory. Lugging the spade to a different corner of buried treasure yielded up dahlia roots. One was apparently growing or confused over procrastinating weather and was already pushing out little green sprouts.

Roses planted in the fall, and pruned back weeks ago in anticipation of winter, have since thumbed their thorny noses at the calendar and pushed out lush fresh foliage. Another, missed in that early round of pruning, poked up a five-foot shoot, after languishing in the summer drought. Dandelions have been happily blooming around the yard for the past few weeks, some of them even going to seed.

And, back under the big old Norway spruce, where some well-aged tomatoes apparently were pitched, at least a half-dozen stocky, sturdy tomato plants have sprouted into foot-high wannabees. Would a few potted and held over until spring give us the earliest ripe tomatoes in the neighborhood next June? Or maybe just become straggly, stemmy, buggy plants? We may find out, if I get a few potted up, without procrastinating too long about it.

While Mother Nature has been procrastinating around about the seasons, the mail-order seed folks haven't. In the past, the spate of colorful, enticing seed catalogs usually began arriving just as the Christmas card deliveries stopped. This year, we already have at least three of them stacked and waiting on the to-read pile.

With a little more procrastination on Mother's part, despite a few frosty-white morning setbacks, we may just get caught up enough on the outside chores to start getting serious over studying those garden wishbooks.

In the meantime, it's been great weather for putting up outside holiday decorations.

And...I just remembered another batch of dahlia roots still buried in the ground.

Lancaster Society 18

On Nov. 17, Roberta Shepherdson, Landisville, was hostess to Lancaster Farm Women Society 18. Refreshments and social time were enjoyed as members arrived.

Mary Lou Shelton led in devotions. Members answered roll call by telling who was the inspiration for their first and middle names. Some reported they were called nicknames, others were given a family name for the first or second name or named after a relative.

After a business meeting led by Ruth Landis, president, committees presented reports.

The interesting "show and tell" program involved all members. Each showed photographs of parents and grandparents and an item received from them.

Prepare To Capture The Blue At The Pennsylvania Farm Show

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Each year, the Pennsylvania Farm Show receives more than 1,500 entries in its Family Living Department on the second floor of the Northeast Building during its annual rendition in Harrisburg.

The Farm Show dates this year are Jan. 5-10.

In order to encourage more entries in the Family Living Area for this 2002 show, a special supplement, the "Family Living Premium List," has been compiled. In this supplement, all open class areas are listed. They include canned foods, dried fruits and vegetables, baked products, clothing, and crafts, as well as 4-H and youth categories.

These contests have something for everyone. Whether it be the prize-winning jar of bread and butter pickles where the blue ribbon winner receives $12, the drop sugar cookie with its $10 prize, a homemade woman's blazer with its $25 prize, or the patchwork quilt with its $40 award, the competition is keen; but it's fun and rewarding to compete, and be the best in Pennsylvania.

We encourage everyone in Pennsylvania to consider entering some items in the show.

There are no prerequisites for entering. Just bring entries or send your entries to the Farm Show building. Entries must arrive by Thursday, Jan. 3 between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. The entry tag which is included in the new premium list must be filled in and enclosed with the entry. For those who are mailing in entries, there are special instructions printed in the booklet.

To receive a family living premium list, contact Gerri Moore, family living chairperson, P.O. Box 33, Hookstown, PA 15050 or call her toll free at (888) 385-4471.

Dennis Grumblin, executive director of Farm Show, and Gerri Moore, family living chairperson, hold a copy of the special supplement intended to encourage more family living entries.

Ressler Mill Foundation Seeks Applications For Grants

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Ressler Mill Foundation has available funds for non-profit organizations that have a potential educational program to offer. Each year the Ressler Mill Foundation assigns a portion of its trust income to promote widening educational opportunities.

While all non-profit organizations recognized by the Internal Revenue Service will be eligible, the grants will be restricted to those providing a learning experience. Thus, for example, a museum display, essay contest, library funding or health education support, would be considered by the board of directors.

Applications must be bona fide in educational goals. Thus, capital improvements or general fund campaigns will not qualify. All applicants will need to supply a copy of their 501(c)(3) certification by the IRS along with a completed grant application.

During the past year the Ressler Mill Foundation has awarded 35 grants exceeding $140,000.

Requests for grant applications should be submitted in writing to Ressler Mill Foundation, Grant Office, 29 East King Street, Room 14, Lancaster, PA 17602. The deadline for completed applications is Jan. 15, 2002.

This grant program encourages education in memory of Anna Ressler, a co-founder of the operating foundation. Ressler was a schoolteacher and principal who returned to Mascot to provide a home for her brother, Franklin Ressler who operated the grain mill.

The mill continues to operate as a museum and is located at the intersection of Stumptown Road and Route 772 (Newport Road) in Ronks. Each year more than 10,000 visitors tour the mill and adjoining homestead. There is no charge to visitors and tours are provided every day but Sunday from May through October.

Why Be Sick, Tired & Overweight When You Could Be Healthy & Energetic With The UNI Wellness Program?

Americans have some of the worst health problems in the world, because most food is grown with chemicals, weed killers, insecticides, and processed with chemicals to increase shelf life. These toxic poisons hinder the immune system from protecting your health and fighting off diseases. Fried and food baked with white flour, sugar and high calories, will produce high cholesterol and plaque in the arteries, and cause overweight and heart attacks. There is a better way.

Why not try the UNI Wellness Program? This includes organically grown Juice Plus fruits and vegetables in concentrated capsule form are guaranteed to be 99.9% pure (no chemicals or toxins). These "all natural" products and live enzymes supply ALL your body's daily nutritional needs. You don't need any other vitamins, minerals or supplements. Costs much less than supplements and the toxic produce you buy at the supermarket. The first 2 items shown below are to help prevent health problems. "An ounce of prevention (good nutritious food) is much better and costs considerably less than an attempted cure (doctor and hospital bills)". The other 2 solution items are to help people who already have a health problem. Select a plan according to your age and health condition.

Wellness Program Basic Plans 1 month supply	#	Each	Amount
#1 Prevention Plan for people under 30 No problem		39.50
#2 Prevention Plan for people over 30 No problem		55.45
#3 Solution Plan for people under 30 With a problem		49.95
#4 Solution Plan for people over 30 With a problem		65.90
Shipping cost is $5.00 for one item, plus $1.00 for each additional item.	Shipping

Raising Children In Today's World

For this holiday season, I'm suggesting a gift parents can give themselves. James Garbarino, one of my favorite authors on parenting issues, has co-authored a new book for parents — "Parents Under Siege: Why You Are the Solution, Not the Problem in Your Child's Life."

Dr. Garbarino and Claire Bedard share their observations in helping parents recognize their own potential influence on their children. Parenting, in the face of the "toxic" societal conditions of today to which our children are exposed requires lots of tools.

They have designed a parent's "toolbox" of ten conceptual tools that you might want to investigate as other potential gifts to use in parenting your children. Listed below is a sampling of their suggestions: An intellectual microscope for looking at the world of children.

A periscope for seeing the world through the eyes of each child's individual temperament.

A developmental calculator to tally the accumulation of risks and opportunities in a child's life.

The glue stick of resilience for holding together a child's world in difficult times.

A psychological tape measure for mapping a child's world.

A social Geiger counter for isolating cultural poisons in the child's experience.

A psychological jack for supporting children as they build character and competence.

A set of multicultural keys for unlocking cultural resource to meet a child's social challenges.

The authors suggest children can serve "as the weather vanes and social indicators of what is going on. If we know how to look, we can see it in every message they send."

This book helps parents decipher the messages their children are sending.

The authors' research shows that "young children's exposure to violence reduces a child's confidence that he or she will survive into old age." This suggests reasons why youth tend to live for the moment and willingly participate in "risky" behavior.

As parents, we need to help

Fun Facts And Figures For Real Christmas Trees

• There are more than 33 million real Christmas trees sold in North America every year.

• Approximately 330,000 real Christmas trees are sold via e-commerce or catalogue and shipped mail-order.

• North-American real Christmas trees are grown in all 50 states and Canada. Most artificial trees are manufactured in China, Taiwan, or Hong Kong.

• Real trees are a renewable, recyclable resource. Artificial trees contain non-biodegradable plastics and possible metal toxins such as lead, cadmium, and organo-tins.

• Consumers can locate the nearest recycling program by logging onto www.realchristmastrees.org or calling 1-800-CLEANUP.

During this special season encourage your children to "Share a Random Act of Kindness" as we strive for Peace on Earth.

• For every real Christmas tree harvested, two to three seedlings are planted in its place the following spring. In spring 2001, more than 73 million real Christmas tree seedlings were planted.

• There are about one million acres in production for growing Christmas trees. Each acre provides the daily oxygen requirements of 18 people.

• There are about 15,000 Christmas tree growers in North America, and more than 100,000 people employed are full or part-time in the industry.

• It can take as many as 15 years to grow a tree of average retail sale height (six feet), but the average growing time is seven years.

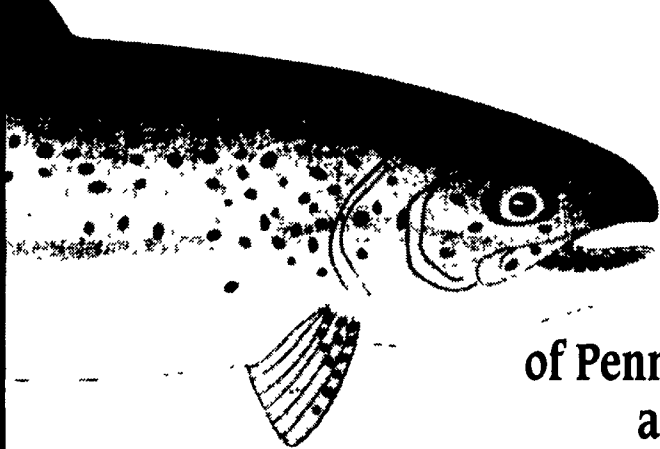

• The top Christmas tree producing states are Oregon, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Washington, and Wisconsin.

• The top selling Christmas trees in the Maryland area are Douglas-fir, Fraser fir, Balsam fir, Scotch pine, White pine, Blue spruce, Norway spruce and White spruce.

Stream MAPS

of Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, Michigan and New England (CT, MA, VT, HR, RI)

Why every fisherman and boater needs these maps

It is estimated that 10% of all the anglers catch 90% of the fish. Regardless of which group you fall into — there's a sure way to up your odds — simply try new fishing waters. Fish where few ever fish.

Pennsylvania is loaded with great fishing waters — many of them overlooked. From Lake Erie tributaries to the Delaware River — thousands of miles of streams, lakes and rivers are now easy-to-locate on one map.

Professor Higbee's Stream Map of Pennsylvania is the first and only highly detailed map of its kind.

This 3-foot-by-5-foot color map shows virtually all of the 45,000 miles of Pennsylvania streams plus lakes.

The STREAM MAP OF PENNSYLVANIA was completed in 1965 after a thirty-year effort by Howard Higbee, a former Penn State Professor.

The map is known as the LOST STREAM MAP to some anglers.

Professor Higbee succeeded in creating a map of the highest detail possible...a map that shows every stream and lake. He painstakingly plotted by hand the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto a 3x5 map.

The map sold extremely well — until it was lost several years later. Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's 30 years of work to a landfill.

The few remaining dog-eared copies became a prized possession. Professor Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps. And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key.

Experts told Professor Higbee that reprints were impossible, because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue.

Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true. Computers made it possible to reprint the map. Howard said, "I never thought I'd live to see this day"

RAVE REVIEWS

"It is amazingly detailed and names some creeks in the Mohawk Valley that can't even be found on topographic maps."

- John Pitarres, OBSERVER-DISPATCH-Utica

"If you're looking for the most definitive maps ever created depicting every single creek, river, stream, pond and lake...then "Professor Higbee's Stream Maps" are without question the finest."

- Howard Brant, THE
LEDGER

"It is in showing where to find out-of-the-way trout streams that makes the map such a treasure to the fisherman."

- Joe Gordon, TRIBUNE-

Homemade for the Holidays

Caramel Marshmallow Brownie Torte

Prep: 25 minutes
Bake: 40 minutes

- 1 pkg. (12 oz.) semi-sweet chocolate chunks or 1-1/2 pkg. (12 squares) semi-sweet baking chocolate, coarsely chopped, divided
- 3/4 cup (1-1/2 sticks) butter
- 3/4 cup sugar
- 3 eggs
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- 1/3 cup flour
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- 1/2 cup walnuts or pecans, chopped (optional)
- 25 caramels
- 2 tbsp. milk
- 1 cup miniature marshmallows

HEAT oven to 350°F. Grease and flour 9-inch round cake pan. Line bottom of pan with waxed paper.

MICROWAVE 1 cup of the chocolate chunks and butter in large microwavable bowl on HIGH 2 minutes or until butter is melted. Stir until chocolate is completely melted. STIR sugar into chocolate mixture until well blended. Mix in eggs and vanilla. Stir in flour and salt until well blended. Stir in nuts. Pour into prepared pan.

BAKE 40 minutes or until toothpick inserted in center comes out with fudgy crumbs. DO NOT OVERBAKE. Cool in pan 5 minutes. Run small knife around side of pan to loosen edge. Invert cake onto serving platter. Remove waxed paper. Cool slightly.

MICROWAVE caramels and milk in medium microwavable bowl on HIGH 2 minutes or until caramels begin to melt. Stir until mixture is smooth. Sprinkle marshmallows and remaining chocolate chunks over torte. Drizzle with caramel mixture. Makes 12 servings.

Cranberry Pear Cobbler

Prep: 20 minutes
Bake: 30 minutes

- 5 cups sliced peeled pears
- 1 cup dried cranberries
- 2/3 cup sugar
- 3 tbsp. Minute Tapioca
- 1/4 tsp. ground ginger
- 1 cup water
- 2 tbsp. butter
- 3/4 cup flour
- 2 tbsp. sugar
- 1 tsp. baking powder
- 1/8 tsp. salt
- 1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter or margarine, chilled, cut into pieces
- 1/4 cup milk

HEAT oven to 375°F.

MIX pears, dried cranberries, 2/3 cup sugar, tapioca, ginger and water in large saucepan. Cook on medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to full boil. Pour into 8-inch square baking dish. Dot with 2 tbsp. butter.

MIX flour, 2 tbsp. sugar, baking powder and salt in large bowl. Cut in 1/4 cup butter until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Stir in milk until mixture forms soft dough. Drop dough by tablespoonfuls onto hot pear mixture.

BAKE 30 minutes or until topping is golden brown. Serve warm with thawed whipped topping or ice cream, if desired. Makes 8 servings.

Cranberry Apple Cobbler: Substitute apples for pears and 1/2 tsp. ground cinnamon for the ginger.

Molten Mocha Cakes

Prep: 15 minutes
Bake: 16 minutes

- 1 pkg. (8 squares) semi-sweet baking chocolate
- 1 cup (2 sticks) butter

- 2 cups powdered sugar
- 1/2 cup flavored instant coffee, any flavor
- 5 eggs
- 4 egg yolks
- 3/4 cup flour
- Raspberries (optional)

HEAT oven to 425°F.

BUTTER 8 (6-oz.) custard cups or soufflé dishes. Place on cookie sheet.

MICROWAVE chocolate and butter in large microwavable bowl on HIGH 2 minutes or until butter is melted. Stir with wire whisk until chocolate is completely melted. Stir in powdered sugar and flavored instant coffee until well blended. Whisk in eggs and egg yolks. Stir in flour. Divide batter among prepared custard cups.

BAKE 15 to 16 minutes or until firm around edges but soft in centers. Let stand 1 minute; run small knife around cakes to loosen. Carefully invert cakes onto dessert dishes. Sprinkle lightly with additional powdered sugar. Garnish with raspberries. Makes 8 servings.

Make Ahead: Prepare and bake as directed, cool slightly. Cover custard cups with plastic wrap. Refrigerate up to 2 days. Place custard cups on cookie sheet. Reheat in 425°F oven for 15 minutes or until warmed.

Golden Raisin and Apple Pie

Prep: 30 minutes
Bake: 50 minutes

- 6 cups thinly sliced peeled Golden Delicious apples
- 3/4 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup golden raisins
- 2 tbsp. Minute Tapioca
- 1/2 tsp. ground cinnamon
- 1/4 tsp. ground nutmeg
- 1 pkg. (15 oz.) refrigerated pie crust
- 1 tbsp. butter

As the traditional carol goes, "There's no place like home for the holidays." And, there's nothing more satisfying than baking homemade holiday desserts that elicit "oohs" and "aahs" from family and friends.

Amid the hustle and bustle of the season, however, it can be difficult to find enough time to bake batches of brownies, cascades of cookies and perfect pies. That's why these six recipes are perfect for today's holiday baker. Each takes less than 30 minutes to prepare, but the results are so rich and indulgent, people will think you spent hours in the kitchen.

So this holiday season, treat your family and friends to home-baked goodies from scratch—without the hassle! For additional recipes like these, be sure to visit www.bakerschocolate.com or www.minutetapioca.com.

HEAT oven to 400°F.

MIX apples, sugar, raisins, tapioca, cinnamon and nutmeg in large bowl. Let stand 15 minutes.

PREPARE pie crusts as directed on package for two-crust pie, using 9-inch pie plate. Fill with fruit mixture. Dot with butter. Cover with second pie crust; seal and flute edge. Cut several slits to permit steam to escape.

BAKE 45 to 50 minutes or until juices form bubbles that burst slowly. Cool. Makes 8 servings.

How To Make Lattice Top Crust:

Cut second pie crust into 10 (1/2-inch) strips with pastry wheel or knife. Place 5 of the strips over filling. Weave lattice crust with remaining strips by folding back alternate strips as each cross strip is added. Fold trimmed edge of lower crust over ends of strips. Seal and flute edge. Bake as directed.

Death by Chocolate Cookies

Prep: 15 minutes
Bake: 14 minutes

- 1 pkg. (8 squares) semi-sweet baking chocolate
- 3/4 cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter softened
- 2 eggs
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- 1/2 cup flour
- 1/4 tsp. baking powder
- 1 pkg. (8 squares) semi-sweet baking chocolate, coarsely chopped or 1-1/2 cups semi-sweet chocolate chunks
- 2 cups walnuts, chopped (optional)

HEAT oven to 350°F.

MICROWAVE chocolate squares in large microwavable bowl on HIGH 2 minutes. Stir until chocolate is melted and smooth. Stir in sugar, butter, eggs and vanilla with wooden spoon until well blended. Stir in flour and baking powder. Stir in chopped chocolate and nuts. Drop by scant 1/4 cupfuls onto ungreased cookie sheets.

BAKE 13 to 14 minutes or until cookies are puffed and feel set to the touch. Cool 1 minute, remove from cookie sheets. Cool completely on wire racks. Makes about 18 large cookies.

Note: If omitting nuts, increase flour to 3/4 cup to prevent spreading. Makes about 15 large cookies.

Variations:

Everything-But-The-Kitchen-Sink Cookies: Prepare as directed, substituting 2 cups total of any of the following for the nuts: raisins, toasted Baker's Angel Flake coconut, dried cherries, chopped macadamia nuts, dried cranberries, toasted slivered almonds, dried chopped apricots or dried mixed fruit bits.

Bar Cookies: Spread dough in greased, foil-lined 13x9-inch baking pan. Bake at 350°F for 22 to 24 minutes. Cool completely in pan on wire rack. Makes 2 dozen.

Smaller Cookies: Drop by heaping tablespoonfuls onto ungreased cookie sheets. Bake at 350°F for 12 to 13 minutes. Makes about 2-1/2 dozen smaller cookies.

Make Ahead: After cookies are completely cooled, wrap in plastic wrap and place in an airtight plastic container or zipper-style freezer plastic bag. Freeze cookies up to 1 month. Bring cookies to room temperature before serving.

How To Freeze Cookie Dough:

Freeze 1/4 cupfuls of cookie dough on cookie sheet 1 hour. Transfer to airtight plastic container or zipper-style freezer plastic bag. Freeze dough up to 1 month. Bake frozen cookie dough on ungreased cookie sheet at 350°F for 20 to 23 minutes.

Chocolate Chunkoholic Cookies

Prep: 15 minutes
Bake: 15 minutes

- 1-3/4 cups flour
- 3/4 tsp. baking soda
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- 3/4 cup (1-1/2 sticks) butter softened
- 1/2 cup granulated sugar
- 1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 1 egg
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- 2 pkg. (12 oz. each) semi-sweet chocolate chunks

HEAT oven to 375°F.

MIX flour, baking soda and salt in medium bowl; set aside.

BEAT butter and sugars in large bowl with electric mixer on medium speed until light and fluffy. Add egg and vanilla; beat well. Gradually beat in flour mixture. Stir in chocolate chunks. Drop by scant 1/4 cupfuls onto ungreased cookie sheets.

BAKE 14 to 15 minutes, or just until golden brown. Cool 1 minute, remove from cookie sheets. Cool completely on wire racks. Makes about 22 large cookies.

Make Ahead: After cookies are completely cooled, wrap in plastic wrap and place in an airtight plastic container or zipper-style freezer plastic bag. Freeze cookies up to 1 month. Bring cookies to room temperature before serving.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

December must surely be a busy time for the mail carriers. Most people send Christmas greetings to friends and relatives. Some of us send more than others. By this time a roll of stamps for $34 is not quite enough. And, I have post cards from long ago when one cent was sufficient postage. However, I mail cards and letters all year long. My daughter gave me a box of 50 cards a few months ago and most of them have been sent. One problem is addresses as today people are constantly on the move. From Indiana to Maine, from Virginia to Delaware and even from one place in Georgia to another in the same state.

Just the other day, a letter that I sent to Baltimore in June was returned to me. Now that is definitely poor service. Of course, I don't think about all the times that letters are delivered on time.

They say letter writing is almost a lost art since we have telephones and E-mail. At one time people lived closer to their relatives and could keep in touch easier. They could simply ring the bell on top of their house if something happened that needed immediate attention.

Babies To Receive Free Hearing Test

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania State Grange congratulates the Pennsylvania General Assembly and Governor Mark Schweiker for the passage of SB 100. This legislation allows for all newborn babies born in Pennsylvania to have a hearing test free of charge.

"We feel newborn hearing screening should be considered standard of care," Brenda Shambaugh, legislative director stated. "Three to four children out of every 1,000 births in the U. S. is born with a hearing loss. These babies will not be able to hear and it will most likely be undetected until they are 2 to 5 years old."

Hearing loss is the most common newborn birth defect. It is often considered an invisible handicap. If detection is denied, significant speech, language, social, and emotional delays may result. Technology has advanced and a simple test of newborn hearing can be done prior to the infant's discharge from their birth hospital quickly and reliably.

It was once thought that hearing loss in newborns only pertained to those infants in the neonatal intensive care nurseries that had risk factors for hearing loss. We now know that 50 percent of the infants identified with newborn hearing loss are from newborn nurseries with no risk factors, and hearing loss was not supposed to exist.

"We now know better. Every baby deserves a hearing screen," Shambaugh said.

"Data collection is essential to measure the strengths and weaknesses of newborn hearing screens. This bill is not just about newborn hearing, but tracking infants with hearing loss to ensure intervention and identify health care needs," Shambaugh concluded. "As a result of universal newborn hearing screening, new technologies will develop and will affect society as a whole. Creating new technologies for implantable hearing devices, better improved hearing aid technology, hair cell regeneration, and cochlear implants that will impact each and all of us."

The PA State Grange is a rural, grassroots community service organization with 20,000 members in 66 counties. The Grange has a Deaf Activities Department, which advocates deaf services for all Pennsylvanians.

Do You Suffer From Fibromyalgia?

When I was introduced to New Image I was 50 pounds over weight and suffered from fibromyalgia I was so depressed and in pain the majority of the time I was taking steroids and four other medications, one of which made me so 'groggy' I could hardly get out of bed and another gave me ulcers I began taking New Image secretly because I thought my family would make fun of me After a month, I discovered I had lost eight pounds and seven inches Wow! Then it dawned on me, I was feeling better, the depression and pain were gone In two months I was off all medications "I feel SUPERIFIC!" Now, two years later I have lost 43 pounds and 30 inches Thank you New Image for giving me a new life again Judy Swift - Mt Washington, KY

ANSWER — Thanks to David Ott, Township, for sending in recipes for holiday entertaining.

Coconut Shrimp

- 2 pounds shrimp, peeled, deveined
- 1 cup flour
- 2 cups coconut
- 1 can coconut milk or coconut Lopez mix
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 egg

Marinate the shrimp in the coconut milk overnight. A plastic bag with a ziplock is good for this. Drain the shrimp and dredge in flour. Mix salt and egg into the remaining marinade, and dip the shrimp into the mixture, then coat with coconut. Deep fry until golden brown and tender. Good to dip into peach or pineapple yogurt. Serves 20-30 people.

Baked Brie

- 1 wheel French brie
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 9-inch pie crusts or puff pastry sheets
- 1 egg
- 2 tablespoons milk

Brush the brie with melted butter, then encase it with the dough. Mix the egg and the milk and brush the pastry well. Bake at 400 degrees for 25 minutes or until golden brown. Let stand 10 minutes before serving. Serves 6.

Pizza Bread Italian Style

- 2 cups flour
- 3/4 cup yellow corn meal
- 2 teaspoons yeast
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 2 teaspoons sugar
- 3 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 cup warm water
- 1 1/2 cups diced cheese cubes
- 1 cup dried tomatoes, diced
- 3/4 cup sliced pepperoni
- 1/4 cup black olives, or green if desired
- 1 teaspoon oregano
- 1/2 cup chopped onions
- 1/4 cup Romano cheese, shredded for top

In large bowl combine flour, cornmeal, salt, yeast, olive oil, and water. Mix until a dough forms, then knead for 10 minutes by hand. Turn the soft dough into a greased bowl, cover and let stand 1 1/2 hours or until the dough doubles in size. Remove and work all the other ingredients (except cheese) into the dough. Let rise again. Top with cheese and bake at 350 degrees for 45-50 minutes or until golden brown. When cool cut into small cubes and serve with hot Italian red sauce. Serves 10-15.

Trillionaire Candy

- 12 1/2 ounce jar caramel ice cream topping
- 1 cup chopped pecans or other nuts
- 3 dozen Ritz crackers
- 1 package (12-ounce) semi-sweet chocolate chips

Combine caramel and nuts, cook over medium heat until mixture thickens, 3-5 minutes. Remove from heat and cool, 5 minutes. Spoon 1 1/2 teaspoon mixture on each cracker. Melt the chocolate chips. With tongs, dip the bottom of the cracker into the chocolate and place on wax paper until cool, then refrigerate for one hour.

Here's a holiday recipe from Mindy Faschnadt, Ephrata.

Frosty Cappuccino Pie

Crust:

- 9 reduced-fat chocolate cream-filled sandwich cookies

Filling:

- 3/4 cup skim milk
- 3.9-ounce package instant chocolate pudding and pie filling
- 2 tablespoons Kahlua liqueur or orange juice
- 3 teaspoons instant coffee granules
- 12-ounce container fat-free whipped topping, thawed, divided
- 2 tablespoons chocolate-flavored syrup

For crust, finely crush cookies in a sealed plastic bag using a rolling pin.

Lightly spray a 9-inch pie plate with vegetable oil. Sprinkle cookie crumbs evenly onto bottom of pie plate, pressing gently up sides. For filling, whisk together milk, pudding, Kahlua or orange juice, and coffee granules in a 2-quart bowl. Fold in three cups whipped topping. Pour mixture into cookie crust. Garnish pie with remaining whipped topping, if desired. Freeze for 6-8 hours. Just before serving, drizzle pie with chocolate syrup.

Serves 8.

Substitute: 2 tablespoons milk for Kahlua. Increase coffee granules to 4 teaspoons.

ANSWER — For the reader who requested a great tasting and easy to make pizza crust recipe, here is a favorite one from Mrs. David Weaver, East Earl.

Stir-N-Roll Pizza

- 2 cups all-purpose flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 3/4 cup milk
- 1/4 cup salad oil

Heat oven to 425 degrees. Measure flour, baking powder, salt, milk, and 1/4 cup salad oil into bowl. Stir vigorously until mixture leaves sides of bowl. Gather dough together and press into a ball. Knead dough in bowl 10 times to make smooth. Divide dough in half. Roll each half into 13-inch circle on pizza pan or baking sheet. Turn up edge 1/2-inch and pinch or pleat.

Brush circles with salad oil. Layer pizza toppings on circles in order listed. Bake 20-25 minutes.

- 1/2 cup grated parmesan cheese
- 8-ounce tomato sauce
- 1 tablespoon chopped onion
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon oregano
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1/2 pound shredded mozzarella cheese

Or, can your own pizza sauce. This is the recipe Mrs. Weaver prefers:

- 1 basket tomatoes, cored, cut up
- 2 large celery stalks, cut into 1-inch pieces
- 10 onions, cut up
- 2 peppers, cut up
- Cook until soft, stir often. Put mixture through food mill. Add to pureed mixture:

- 1/2 cup salt
- 1 teaspoon paprika
- 6 teaspoons oregano

Boil and add:

- 3 cups Clear Jell (thinned with water). Put mixture into jars and screw on lids. Cook in boiling water bath for 10 minutes.

Here is Shirley Schwoerer's, Wysox, favorite pizza crust recipe.

Easy-As-A-Mix Pizza

- 2 tablespoons yeast
- 3 cups flour
- 3 tablespoons oil
- 2 teaspoons sugar
- 1 1/2 teaspoon salt

Dissolve yeast in water. Stir in flour, oil, salt, and sugar. Beat 25 strokes and mix by hand if needed. Cover with plastic wrap or towel and let rest about 5 minutes. Divide dough in half and with floured fingers press each half thinly in pans that have been sprayed with non-stick coating and cornmeal.

Makes two regular-size pizzas. Bake 10 minutes at 425 degrees. Add toppings. Bake additional 13 minutes.

Holiday Entertaining

Thanks to the anonymous reader who sent in these recipes for holiday entertaining.

SEAFOOD DIP

- 1 cup flaked imitation crabmeat
- 1/2 cup shredded cheddar cheese
- 1/4 cup cream cheese, softened
- 1/4 cup mayonnaise
- 1/4 cup sour cream
- 1/4 cup grated parmesan cheese
- 1/4 cup sliced green onions
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1/4 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1/2 cup bread crumbs

In a bowl, mix the first 10 ingredients until smooth. Spread in a 9-inch pie plate. Sprinkle with bread crumbs. Cover and bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes or until bubbly. Uncover and bake 5 minutes more. Serve with crackers, celery sticks, or other raw vegetables. Yield: 6-8 servings.

STUFFED BAKED POTATOES

- 3 large baking potatoes (1 pound each)
- 1 1/2 teaspoons vegetable oil, optional
- 1/2 cup sliced green onions
- 1/2 cup butter, divided
- 1/2 cup light cream
- 1/2 cup sour cream
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon white pepper
- 1 cup shredded cheddar cheese
- paprika

Rub potatoes with oil if desired. Pierce with a fork. Bake at 400 degrees for 80 minutes or until tender. Allow potatoes to cool to the touch. Cut potatoes in half lengthwise; carefully scoop out pulp, leaving a thin shell. Place pulp in large bowl. Sauté onions in 1/4 cup butter until tender. Add to potato pulp along with light cream, sour cream, salt and pepper. Beat until smooth. Fold in cheese. Stuff potato shells and place in 13x9x2-inch baking pan. Melt remaining butter; drizzle over potatoes. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake at 350 degrees for 20-30 minutes or until heated through. Yield: 6 servings.

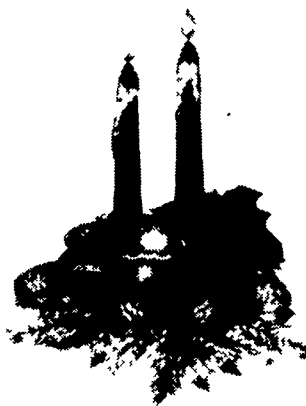

Note: Potatoes may be stuffed ahead of time and refrigerated or frozen. Allow additional time for heating.

CHRISTMAS PARTY PINWHEELS

(Can be made ahead)

- 2 packages (8-ounces each) cream cheese, softened
- 4-ounce package dry mix ranch salad dressing
- 1/2 cup minced sweet red pepper
- 1/2 cup minced celery
- 1/4 cup sliced green onions
- 1/4 cup sliced stuffed olives
- 3-4 flour tortillas (10-inches)

In a mixing bowl, beat cream cheese and dressing mix until smooth. Add red pepper, celery, onions, and olives; mix well. Spread about 1/4 cup on each tortilla. Roll up tightly. Wrap in plastic wrap. Refrigerate at least two hours. Slice into 1/2-inch pieces. Yield 15-20 servings.

Consuming Thoughts

Berks Co.

The holidays are a wonderfully joyous time when we all love to entertain friends and family. Make life easier by providing a busy cook with some head start foods for weekday cooking.

If you need a hostess gift, give a quart of your special home-made spaghetti sauce and a canister filled with pasta. Make a quiche, then give in an attractive ceramic pie plate for a double-de-light gift.

For an easy side dish to serve with any main course, give an attractive canister filled with uncooked rice mixed with dried herbs and spices.

If you don't have a lot of time to bake lots of cookies, arrange a cookie swap with five friends. Each bakes six dozen cookies, swaps varieties, and leaves with lots of cookies and new recipes. You can have fun eating them too.

When choosing a recipe for the holiday gift-giving season, or for your family's enjoyment, consider when you will make the recipe and how long it must stay fresh before you give it. Use the following guidelines for holiday food storage.

Master Gardener Program Accepting Applications

W. PITTSTON (Luzerne Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension in Luzerne County is now accepting applications for the Penn State Master Gardener Program. This program consists of a volunteer training course designed to provide experienced home gardeners with the information and skills necessary to share their experience and knowledge with others. Weekly classes will be conducted from 1 p.m.-4 p.m., beginning Feb. 5 and ending April 9.

In exchange for 30 hours of indoor instruction, candidates must agree to donate 50 hours of volunteer service to Penn State Cooperative Extension within the first year. To maintain the status of master gardener, candidates must attend eight hours of update training and donate 20 hours of volunteer time each year after the first.

There is a $45 fee to cover the cost of the training manual and other materials.

For more information, contact the Luzerne County Cooperative Extension at (717) 825-1701, (717) 602-0600 or toll free at 1-888-825-1701.

Remembering An Unhappy Christmas

AMY MOYER

Pa. Alternate Dairy Princess
LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — It was December 23, 1998. Two days before Christmas. I awakened to realize it was the last day of school. The holiday vacation was tomorrow.

I did my daily routines getting ready for school & eating breakfast. During breakfast my Mom walks into the house stops at the kitchen doorway. She was red in the face and I could tell she was cold, but forgetting that she was cold she had news for me.

Hannah, my first Holstein calf I owned and showed, had her first calf. I was so excited that I almost jumped out of my chair. But I got excited too soon. Mom said the calf did not make it. It was a hard birth, and by the time they got had the calf out it was not breathing.

My heart shattered into pieces and tears began to stream down my face. I was crying too hard and I was too upset to finish my breakfast. I slowly got up off the chair, grabbed my coat and went outside to see Hannah and her calf.

I went into the barn and headed to the box stall where from a distance I could see the calf. I could only look twice. My eyes were filled with tears and began to fall even more. My heart was hurt.

I slowly made my way toward the stall that Hannah was in. She looked confused and worn out, but happy to see me. Her ears went forward as soon as she caught sight of me. I was still crying when I walked up to her and gave her a hug. She was going to be all right, but for me I was not okay.

I had dreamed, prayed, and hoped for Hannah to have a heifer calf for me and what she would be like. My dream was shattered, my prayers were not answered and my hopes were gone. I was really upset that morning and did not want to go to school. But Mom and dad insisted that I do. It's not worth sitting at home and crying. So I went to school. I did my best at being strong, but the harder I tried the more the tears came. I went to the nurses' office and talked to the nurse about what happened. She comforted me and allowed me to stay with her until I was okay to go back to class.

Both Amy and Hannah are a few years older and still together since their unhappy Christmas in 1998. Amy said the unhappy event taught her that life must go on and she needs to be strong even when things don't go as planned.

When I returned back to class my Best friend Jess came up to me. She gave me a hug and comforted me. It felt good to know I had friends who cared.

Most of the way home on the bus, my eyes were full of tears and a few kids did not make it any better.

When I got home and walked in the door Vince Wagner was there. Vince is a good friend to me and he was the guy I bought Hannah from. Anyway...the tears were falling and Vince came up to me and gave me a hug and said everything will be okay.

After the hug, I went out to do the evening chores as best I could. I could not stop crying.

Vince came out and talked to me. He said, "Hannah looks great and you should be happy that she is alive."

I felt a smile coming on, but it did not show. I was very thankful that Hannah was okay. I said it then, and I say it now. "If anything would have happened to Hannah I would be more hurt than I have ever felt. I thank God that he spared her life."

Christmas of 1998 will be remembered. It was the unhappiest Christmas I have ever had. I received many wonderful gifts that year, but the one gift I really wanted was gone.

It took a few weeks until I realized that life must go on and I need to be strong. There are still sometimes I think about that everyday, especially when Christmas is near.

Even though it was an unhappy December 23rd, Hannah and I are still living happily, strong, and together.

Hannah is now 5 years old. I still have had no luck of getting a heifer calf out of her, but at least they were live bulls. I am also happy to say that I also own Hope, a sister to Hannah. Hope is 3-years-old and has had two live heifers for me. Hannah and Hope have brought much happiness to my life. And I have enjoyed showing them. In 2000 they won PA All-American Produce of Dam.

And Hope and her daughter, Hodina, won Hon., PA All-American Dam & Daughter. Maybe someday Hannah and her daughter will do the same.

I want to thank my parents for their comfort and love, my friends for understanding, Vince Wagner for selling me two wonderful Holstein cows, and God for everything that he has done for me.

Christmas Crafts

Ideas From Lebanon Extension

CORNSTARCH DOUGH ORNAMENTS

Mix, roll, cut, decorate-but don't eat!

1 cup cornstarch
2 cups baking soda
1 1/4 cups water

Mix all ingredients in a saucepan and stir constantly over low heat until mixture resembles mashed potatoes (10 to 15 minutes). Remove from heat. When cool enough to handle, roll dough to 1/8 inch thickness and cut with cookie cutters. Poke a hole in the top for easy hanging, and then let them air dry for at least a day. Decorate with acrylic paint, glitter, sequins and ribbons.

CINNAMON ORNAMENTS

Drain excess liquid off applesauce using coffee filter and add equal parts ground cinnamon. Add about two tablespoons of white glue per cup of mixture and knead into stiff dough.

Roll dough to 1/8 inch thickness and cut with cookie cutters.

Poke a hole in the top for easy hanging, and then let them air dry for at least a day.

TREE MOUSE

You won't mind having this mouse hanging around your house. To make one, you'll need half a walnut shell, a small pom-pom, a pair of googly eyes, two acorn caps, and a short piece of twine.

Use a hot glue gun to attach the pom-pom to the pointed end of the shell for the nose.

Next, glue on the eyes and set the acorn caps on top of the shell for ears. Finally, attach the twine to the other end for the mouse's tail.

To hang, tie a piece of thread around the mouse ears and make it into a loop.

WOODEN SPOON ANGEL

Materials
1 kitchen towel and matching hot pad

1 wooden spoon
Approximately 1 yard of gold cord

8 inches of star garland
Needle and thread

Hot glue optional

1. Gather hot pad and wrap twice with a 14 inch piece of gold cord and knot. Tie to back to wooden spoon below head. These are the angel wings.

2. With needle and thread tack hot pad to spoon to secure. This prevents hot pad from flopping. You can hot glue at this point, but then will not be able to take apart and use towel and hot pad.

3. Take towel, fold in half and accordion pleat in about one-inch pleats.

4. Measure down from top of folded pleated towel two inches. Lay towel on front of spoon below head and with a 20-inch piece of gold cord, tie around both spoon and towel pulling tight to secure. With ends of cord tie a bow in front.

5. Take an 8-inch piece of star garland and attach to the top of spoon for halo. Twist to secure. Arrange ends as desired. This can also be hot glued if not taking apart.

Where Do Birds Go During The Winter?

Dear Twig:

Where do birds go in winter?

Many birds migrate. In fall they fly to where it's warm or to where there's more food and water. These birds are called migratory.

Warblers, vireos, and orioles are among them.

Other birds don't go anywhere. They're called (you guessed it!) non-migratory. They can find enough to eat and drink, and are tough enough to survive the cold, in the same place all year long. Examples include wild turkeys, northern cardinals, and some of our woodpeckers.

And some birds migrate, or not, depending on how much food's around. Eastern bluebirds often do this. They stick around when there's lots of berries and bug out when there's not. Waxwings, snowy owls, and song sparrows (among others) do this, too.

They stay or go based on the food supply.

So where do birds go at night in winter? Some sleep in holes in trees, alone or with other birds. The idea is to conserve body heat.

Some spend nights in sheltered places, like evergreen trees. Getting out of the wind is the key.

And, when it's really cold, at least one species, the ruffed grouse, is known to bury itself deep in the snow, which acts as insulation.

I don't know whether grouse wear long johns.

Twig

Smart Stuff.

with Twig Walkingstick

Dear Twig: I've heard that poinsettias are poisonous. Is it true?

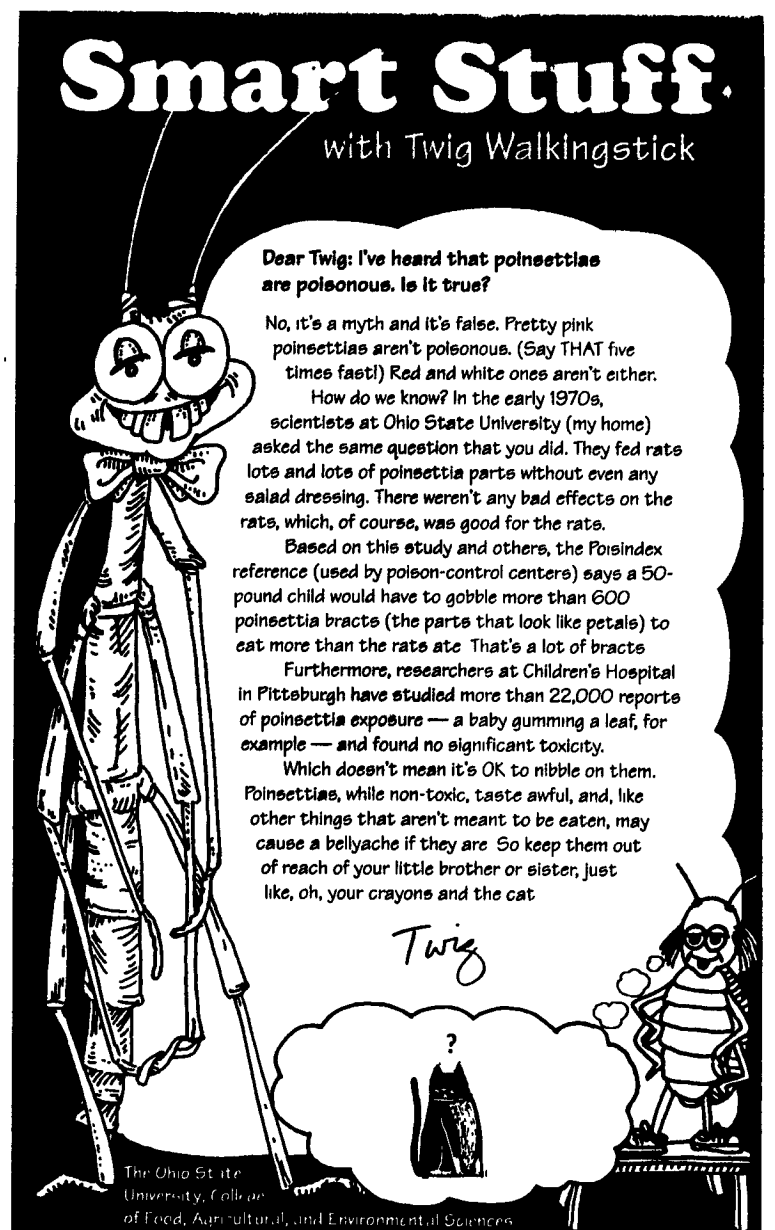

No, it's a myth and it's false. Pretty pink poinsettias aren't poisonous. (Say THAT five times fast!) Red and white ones aren't either.

How do we know? In the early 1970s, scientists at Ohio State University (my home) asked the same question that you did. They fed rats lots and lots of poinsettia parts without even any salad dressing. There weren't any bad effects on the rats, which, of course, was good for the rats.

Based on this study and others, the Poisindex reference (used by poison-control centers) says a 50-pound child would have to gobble more than 600 poinsettia bracts (the parts that look like petals) to eat more than the rats ate. That's a lot of bracts.

Furthermore, researchers at Children's Hospital in Pittsburgh have studied more than 22,000 reports of poinsettia exposure — a baby gumming a leaf, for example — and found no significant toxicity.

Which doesn't mean it's OK to nibble on them. Poinsettias, while non-toxic, taste awful, and, like other things that aren't meant to be eaten, may cause a bellyache if they are. So keep them out of reach of your little brother or sister, just like, oh, your crayons and the cat.

Register For Quilting Class

Managing Money, Resources For Holidays

TUNKHANNOCK (Wyoming Co.) — Celebrating holidays and other special occasions often causes families to expend large amounts of money and other resources. Having realistic holiday expectations can prevent a lot of problems. Gifts are not always a sign of love and caring. A family can have a memorable celebration without spending an exorbitant amount of money. Using your savvy and managing all available resources (your money, time, energy, talent, skill) can help you have a happy holiday and avoid overspending.

Look at the big picture. The amount you spend may vary depending on family values. Spending at the last minute, or spending haphazardly without limits leads to overspending. Spread costs for holidays and celebrations throughout the year. When it comes to holiday spending, some months are more expensive than others. Keep holiday expenses from interfering with your ability to make ends meet, especially in December, by setting aside an equal amount each month. For example, if you estimate that you spend $1,200 total per year for holidays and celebrations, set aside $100 each month. Take out what you need for varying months throughout the year, setting aside the bulk of the money for months such as December when you might spend more.

• Plan holiday spending. Once you know how much you can spend for the year, decide how the money will be used. Start by making a list of the holiday and special occasions you plan to celebrate. Determine how much of your holiday money you wish to spend for each special occasion, and don't forget to set aside money for unforeseeable occasions, such as baby showers, graduations, and housewarm-ings. Keep in mind that it's the thought that really counts.

• Use credit wisely. If you use credit cards for holiday shopping, consider several factors to avoid over indebtedness. Charge only an amount that you can safely repay in a few months. If you have multiple credit cards, limit your charges to one card. This will help facilitate bill paying when the bill comes due, and will provide a clear picture of your spending. Evaluate your overall credit picture before shopping for the holidays. Trade cards with higher annual percentage rates and annual fees for cards that offer lower rates and no annual fees.

• Shopping. Shop early for gifts that you purchase. Practice wise consumer strategies. Comparison shop. Compare price, quality, and warranties. Read labels and handtags. Watch for sales. Plan shopping by making a list, checking ads in newspapers and flyers, and shopping at stores that are in close proximity to one another to help you save time and energy.

• Gifts. The best gifts don't always have the biggest price tag. They are fun or useful, and chosen with the recipient in mind. Using your talent and skill to create gifts from your sewing room, craft corner, kitchen, or garden adds a special touch of love. A gift of time is the most precious gift. Why not start a gift shelf in your home? Throughout the year as you shop and find wonderful items on sale or as you create hand crafted items, place them on a shelf for use when you need a special gift, or to give for a holiday occasion. A gift shelf can save you shopping time and money.

• Greeting cards. It's easy to have a large bill for the purchase of greeting cards and postage throughout the year. Consider these ideas.

Look for ways to prune your list. Send cards to only out-of-town family and friends you are not likely to see on the holiday. Make your own greeting cards using blank cards and special stencils and stamps. You can avoid shopping trips and extra costs by purchasing a supply of greeting cards for all occasions from the discount card and party store.

• Decorations. The best time to buy holiday decorations is after the holiday. Or better yet, look for ways to make decorations or use the items you already have. Properly stored decorations can be used from year to year. To create new decorations look around your house for items that can be used to create a wreath, centerpiece, or decorate a tree. Use your imagination and talent to create a wonderful holiday atmosphere without spending a lot of money.

• Entertainment. Social gatherings highlight holiday seasons as calendars filled with parties and activities. Consider co-hosting an event with another family member or co-worker to consolidate time, effort, and expense. For special events, evaluate the necessity of a meal. Consider appetizers or snacks instead. Also consider a potluck dinner as opposed to a lavish buffet.

• Travel. Visiting family and friends can be an expensive part of holiday plans. Shop early for the best airfares. When estimating travel expense, include gasoline and car maintenance when driving and airfare when flying, as well as lodging and meals.

• Charitable Donations. Remembering the less fortunate is an important part of many holidays. Some families donate money to selected charities on behalf of other family members rather than buying gifts for one another. While a contribution of money is always appreciated, a donation of time is also valuable.

A realistic and affordable plan for spending your money and your time should always be at the center of your holiday plans. Develop a plan and carry it out. Make your holidays a time for living, laughing, loving, sharing, caring, and learning.

One Hill Farm: Home To Pennsylvania Alternate Dairy Princess

LOU ANN GOOD

WOMELSDORF (Berks Co.) — One Hill Farm is home for the Moyer family, including Pennsylvania Alternate Dairy Princess Amy Moyer.

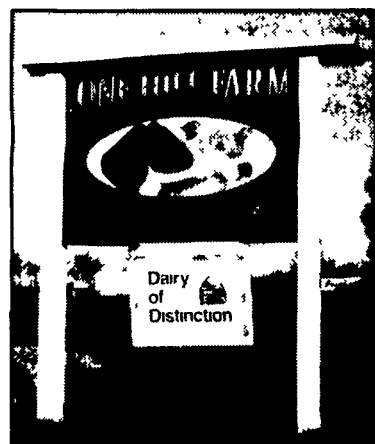

Although the farm sits in Berks County, it is on the edge of Lebanon County, which results in the Moyer family participating in ag-related activities in both places.

In fact, 18-year-old Amy, a Berks County high school graduate, was first crowned Lebanon County dairy princess before capturing the state alternate title.

Several years ago, the Moyers were honored as Berks County Family of the Year but they are also active in Lebanon County's Holstein Club and 4-H, with mom serving as a leader and Amy and siblings, Jeffrey, 19; Kristen, 13; and Sarah, 12, as members.

The family owns a 128-acre farm that her grandfather purchased in 1980. They have the top-producing DHIA mixed herd in the state with their top cow producing 32,983 pounds. Their 62 milking cows are made up of Holstein and Brown Swiss.

The Moyers started with all Holsteins, but in 1989 Amy received a Brown Swiss heifer calf from a friend and her first cow was a Brown Swiss.

One Hill's Brown Swiss and Holstein Farm is named DHIA's top-producing mixed herd in the state.

"Brown Swiss seem friendlier and have a pet-like attitude. Holsteins are more standoffish," Amy said. She added with a laugh, "But in 1997 I saw the light, as people say. I got my first Holstein and now I prefer Holsteins."

Advantages of having a mixed herd, from Amy's perspective, are that Holsteins make more milk but Swiss add higher butterfat and protein.

Amy said that she began helping in the barn when she was six or seven years old. "When I was tall enough to reach the pipeline and hook up the milkers, that became my job."

In addition to owning their own farm, her dad, in partnership with his brothers, farm 1,100 acres.

"Dad's gone most of the day, working in the partnership, so I often take care of things at home," Amy said.

Last year, her dad flipped the tractor on the big hill for which their farm is named "One Hill Farm." He had surgery on his shoulder and has recuperated.

Amy also milks for a neighbor. Between the home and neighboring farms, Amy said some days

"My dad says if I like milking so much, we should expand," Amy said. "But I'm not ready to be tied down to that yet."

"When everything runs smoothly, I'm relaxed and calm. But when there's a problem with the cows, I say get rid of them," she confessed.

Amy said that she has been responsible for feeding the calves and heifers and milking since she was in sixth grade.

"For awhile I got into the bad habit of saying I had lots of homework, so my parents would let me come into the house to do homework; instead, I watched T.V."

But that habit has been replaced with responsibility. Since she graduated, Amy is working full-time on the family farm. Her daily chores include sweeping troughs, scraping crates, feeding and bedding heifers, preparation for milking, and milking. Amy is responsible for registering Holsteins and preparing classification.

Last February, Amy learned how to breed cows and assists her mother in that duty.

Amy started fitting dairy cattle in 1997, and has several regular customers. She also assists the Holstein Club with fitting.

"I can't do as well as professional fitter, but I'm learning," she said. She assists a professional fitter when requested.

She has shown dairy animals at local fairs, Southeast District Championship, state, and at the World Dairy Expo.

Amy credits FFA participation as the impetus for becoming a vocal spokesperson for the ag community. She said, "I was really shy, and hid in the corner rather than talk."

When Amy became active in Conrad Weiser FFA, she found the adviser tough but nice, which meant that she needed to participate instead of hide. Still, Amy shied away from public speaking. During her senior year, Amy was FFA president and needed to do most of the speaking at the annual FFA banquet with 300 people in attendance.

Surprisingly, she discovered she enjoyed speaking before a crowd. She was encouraged to run as dairy princess. Amy's first reaction was that she did not have the time, but she called up the pageant coordinator who invited her to an informative tea about the program. Amy decided to compete in the dairy princess pageant for Lebanon County.

Amy worked on her speech, a requirement for the pageant. Both her ag and English teachers help her perfect it. Although Amy was the only contestant at the county level, she found out just how good her speech was when she competed for the state crown. In Harrisburg, Amy received the outstanding speech award out of 31 contestants.

Amy's speech stresses the importance of the Real Seal for consumers and the dairy industry. To the nonfarming community, Amy explains the steps that farmers take to ensure quality milk.

Amy's award-winning speech helped thrust her into the finalist's circle at the state dairy pageant, where she was crowned second alternate.

In dairy promotions, Amy enjoys meeting people. "I like when people ask questions and don't just stare at me," she said.

After her year of dairy promotion is over, Amy is considering taking a short course in dairy management at a college in Madison, Wis. "I plan to attend one year, and after that consider if I want to continue," she said.

"I thought about being an ag teacher, but I don't want to attend school that long," she said.

"I'd really like to own my own farm and, as they say, live happily ever after," Amy said with a laugh. "I'd also like to breed good cows and hope to get first in the state someday."

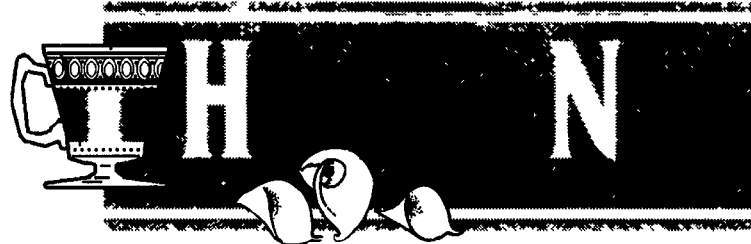

Amy has participated in 4-H dairy judging and enjoys visiting sales and barns to evaluate animals.

The Moyers are active in church. Amy and her brother started a Sunday evening Bible study for youth in their home.

Other interests for Amy include attending rodeos and antiques shows with her mother. Amy enjoys art, especially stippling, which is a picture formed in dots. Favorite sports include volleyball, tubing down the creek, and sledding.

She also enjoys traveling and has been to Madison, Wis. for the World Dairy Expo in 1997 and 2001; to Louisville, Ky. for the National FFA Convention in 2001; and to Florida and Canada.

"My favorite holiday is Christmas, not because of the gifts I get — well, I do like to open presents, but I mostly enjoy Christmas because of the music, decorations, dressing up in Christmas gowns, family gatherings, the love that blossoms in the air, Christmas cantatas at church, and the magical celebration of Christ's birth," Amy said.

Here is a recipe for a creamy, sweet, cool-tasting dessert that Amy said is great for holiday gatherings.

She promises, "Your family and friends will love it. And don't forget the cheese and crackers. Have a 'Dairy' Christmas and a Happy 'Moo' Year!"

ECLAIR DESSERT

24 graham crackers
2 3-ounce boxes instant vanilla pudding
3½ cups milk
8-ounces whipped cream topping

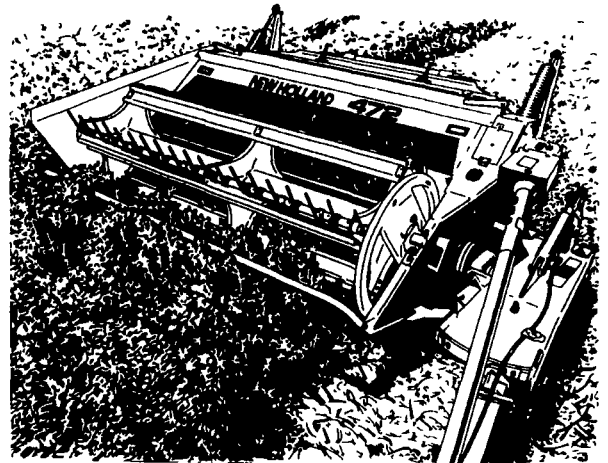

Frosting:

6 tablespoons cocoa
2 teaspoons light Karo syrup
3 tablespoons butter
½ cup confectioners' sugar
3 tablespoons milk
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 tablespoon oil

Mix pudding with milk; fold in whipped topping. Line bottom of greased 9x13-inch pan with graham crackers. Put half the pudding mixture on top. Put another layer of graham crackers on, then the remaining pudding. Top with another layer of graham crackers.

Chill dessert for two hours before frosting it. Beat together frosting ingredients until smooth. Put frosting on top of crackers. Refrigerate 12-14 hours before serving.

Columbia County 4-H horse club members Amanda McCollin, Elizabeth Runyan, Alexis Schrock, Justina Wolfinger, and Dorothy Meyer also competed in the state contest and received recognition. Charles D. Gale, extension agent, pointed out that competition gave 4-H'ers an opportunity to display their skills in horsemanship and proper horse grooming.

Calcium In, Lead Out Campaign

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Did you know that the calcium found in milk not only helps build strong bones and teeth, but can also help prevent lead absorption?

If you said no, you're not alone. Spreading that important message to consumers is why ADADC teamed up with a number of health organizations recently.

Lead poisoning is a major health problem in America, which affects an estimated four million children. Subtle lead intoxication is associated with decreased academic achievement; increased school dropout rates; decreased attention spans, and anti-social, even aggressive behaviors.

In fact, one in two Newark, N.J. children (43,000) have high blood lead levels. Surveys show 40 percent of these children do not meet their calcium needs. ADADC partnered with the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey to launch "Calcium In, Lead Out," a multifaceted campaign that includes ongoing research, community outreach, and media publicity. Calcium and dairy messages were targeted to the residents of Newark, and to health professionals — primarily NJWIC nutritionists and pediatricians.

ADADC also took part in a kick-off event celebrating the Awareness Discover Box, a traveling program that will educate more than 800 students. The day's activities featured an original play.

Gift Ideas For Ill, Elderly Friends, Relatives

TUNKHANNOCK (Wyoming Co.) — Sometimes it is difficult to come up with thoughtful and creative holiday gift ideas for ill or elderly friends and relatives. A little imagination, however, is all it takes to think of many clever and useful items. Here are a few ideas to help you brighten up the lives of some very special people.

The ill and elderly have a difficult time getting out to stores to buy cards and they often don't wish to bother others with shopping needs. Over time they begin to lose touch with friends and family members. So help them share thoughts and greetings with others by giving them greeting cards and note cards. Select several get well, birthday, thinking-of-you and sympathy cards and perhaps one wedding, anniversary and baby shower card. Include some attractive note cards with space to write a few sentences. Remember to include stamps, too.

Then the cards can be picked up and be on the way to bring greetings and best wishes to friends and loved ones. This helps them maintain an active role in the community and family and not feel isolated from happenings and events.

Remember, they often have problems getting to stores, so everyday toiletries and other items are greatly appreciated. Think of combs, brushes, socks (cold feet are common), hose, slippers, soap, notepads and pen or pencil, and bookmarks. Current issues of favorite magazines will certainly be appreciated. Attractive sweat-

shoulders or knees help keep them comfortable on cold winter days or in cool air-conditioned rooms.

Consider comfortable and attractive sleepware in natural fibers or brushed satin. (The slick satin helps them turn easily in bed while the brushed nap on the inside feels soft and cuddly, a boon for those with sensitive skin or with difficulty in turning over in bed). Bed jackets and new easy-to-use clothing in their favorite colors make elderly people feel unique and special.

A bed or chair caddy — purchased or easily sewn from fabric scraps — with extra long "tails" that tuck under a mattress or weighted to throw over the arm of their favorite chair keeps things in easy reach. A comfortable pillow to tuck behind their head or to help support their back provides comfort. Bags or carriers that attach to a walker or wheelchair can help them keep track of their belongings as they move around.

Special convenience items can make an elderly person's life easier. Hospital supply shops and specialty catalogues have many items such as reachers for picking up things that are on the floor, on high shelves or simply out-of-reach. Some reachers even have magnets on the end to pick up paper clips or other metal objects without bending or getting out of a chair. A flashlight provides a feeling of security — just in case the lights go out. Large-handled hairbrushes help those who have trouble holding smaller handles. Clocks that reflect the time in large numbers on the ceiling mean no turning to look and no glasses needed, even in a dark room.

Other ideas with lots of meaning but little cost:

A telephone call, a poem, or a special prayer just for them or a visit with your family dog may be just the ticket to bring comfort, cheer and a smile for the day. It's also an event that gives them an opportunity to share news.

Write a series of short letters to your loved one. Vary the themes. Tell jokes, pass along cartoons, or relate funny stories. Share fond memories. Tell your loved one what you admire about him.

Share a favorite poem or scripture. After you have finished all letters, number, seal and stamp them. Then every few days, one by one, drop them in the mail.

Gifts that are much appreciated include rides out in the country or to places they enjoy, or for brief shopping trips if they are ambulatory or in wheelchairs. An occasional ride to church or a special community event such as a parade, Fourth of July fireworks display, or special community dinner can invigorate those who have been inside for a time.

The very best gift is yourself — the gift of your presence. Regular visits, even when brief, mean so much. Your presence says, "I care...you're important to me...I love you." When distance separates you, pick up the phone to say hi and share news often.

FDA Advisory On Methyl Mercury In Fish

The FDA has advised pregnant women and women of child-bearing age who may become pregnant on the hazard of consuming certain kinds of fish that may contain high levels of methyl mercury.

The FDA is advising these women not to eat shark, swordfish, king mackerel, and tilefish. As a matter of prudent public health advice, the FDA is also recommending that nursing mothers and young children not eat these fish as well.

Fish such as shark, swordfish, king mackerel, and tilefish contain high levels of a form of mercury called methyl mercury that may harm an unborn baby's developing nervous system. These long-lived, larger fish that feed on smaller fish accumulate the highest levels of methyl mercury and therefore pose the greatest risk to the unborn child. Mercury can occur naturally in the environment and it can be released into the air through industrial pollution and can get into both fresh and salt water.

Northumberland Conservation Communication Contests Begin

SUNBURY (Northumberland Co.) — The Northumberland County Conservation District has announced the beginning of the 26th annual Conservation Poster Contest and the sixth annual High School Speech Contest.

Furman Foods, Inc. will sponsor the Poster Contest, and Zimmerman Motors will sponsor the Speech Contest.

The contests are designed to encourage students to research conservation topics, evaluate personal choices, and develop valuable communication skills. All county teachers have received flyers regarding the contests. The winners are rewarded with recognition and cash prizes, which are provided by the sponsors.

The Furman Foods Poster Contest, open to students in kindergarten through 12th grade, offers young people an opportunity to express their thoughts on natural resources through the medium of art. The themes for this year's contest are "The Gift of Trees" and "Exploring Nature in Your Neighborhood."

The posters will be judged in five grade categories: K-1, 2-3, 4-6, 7-9, and 10-12. First place winners will be forwarded to the state competition. Poster entries must be in the conservation district office by Feb. 4, 2002.

The Zimmerman Motors Speech Contest is intended to give high school students an opportunity to research natural resource conservation while gaining public speaking experience. The recommended themes are "Introduced Species and Their Effect on Biodiversity," "Soil Erosion, Causes, Effects, and Prevention," "A Watershed in Northumberland County," or "White-tailed Deer Population Management."

Rd., Fleetwood, PA 19522, wants to know the value of an Avon collection with more than 65 pieces. She is interested in selling hers.

QUESTION — Josie Seitz would like to find personalized quart milk bottles from the dairy operated by her father, Joe Beishline, in Benton in the early 1950s. She would like each of her four children to have one. If you have one or more to sell, contact her at 14046 Cross Roads, Felton, PA 17322, (717) 993-2886.

ANSWER — Margaret D., 43 Newbury Drive, Southampton, NJ 08088-1051 wanted crochet instructions for an oval tablecloth, size about 54 inches by 67 inches or larger. Thanks to Ruth Miller, Halifax, who writes that Ames Department Store has a book with directions for four different oval designs. The book, Tablecloth Elegance, by Annie's Attic sells for $5.95. Ruth crocheted the pineapple design, which is very pretty, she writes.

ANSWER — For the reader who wanted to know where to purchase sparrow traps, Kenneth Kensinger, Martinsburg, recommends The Bird's Paradise, 20835 Morris Rd., Conneautville, PA 16406. Call 1-800-872-0103 for a catalog on both sparrow and starling traps.

Other current agriculture and environmental themes will be accepted with approval.

Registration forms are due Dec. 14, typewritten manuscripts are due Jan. 17, and oral presentations will be conducted on Feb. 7, 2002. The first place winner will present his/her speech at the conservation district's annual awards banquet scheduled for March 21, 2002.

For rules and regulations, students should contact the Northumberland County Conservation District office at 286-7114, ext. 4. Speech contest information can also be obtained at Zimmerman Motors, Market St., Sunbury.

The amount of sugar was not listed for the recipe, Drop Sand Tarts, which appeared on page B7 of the Dec. 8th issue. Here is the complete recipe.

DROP SAND TARTS

1 cup butter
2 cups sugar
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
2 1/2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder

Cream together butter and sugar, add eggs and vanilla, and beat well. Stir in flour and baking powder. Chill dough about 30 minutes. Drop from a teaspoon or shape into a ball and place on greased cookie sheet. Flatten with the bottom of a glass dipped in sugar. Decorate as desired with 1/2 a candied cherry. Sprinkle with chopped nuts, or colored sugar, or cinnamon. Bake 8-10 minutes in a preheated 375-degree oven.

Lancaster Farming Antiques Center

Joyce's love of cows caused her to start a small collection of antique or collectible models. This particular one was a Bedford fair premium in the 1950s.

Auctioneer Clerk, Dairy Farmer, Antique Picker Describe Joyce Barners

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent
BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — Joyce Barnes lives in a historic house in the historic district of a historic town.

A hand-painted antique ironing board decorates the front door quickly introducing you to the unique individual inside.

Antique lover, Joyce has the ideal job for finding antiques to fill the big house. She is an auctioneer clerk and from this stemmed a side vocation of being an antique picker.

"There are antique dealers and crafts people who specialize in certain items. I keep an eye out for these items and buy them at auctions or sometimes at estates. Along the way, I see a lot of things to buy for myself. Consequently, even a house the size of this one gets full," Joyce said.

There are several craft ladies in Virginia who make chenille teddy bears and Joyce finds the bedspreads. Another specializes in farm tools and another person makes items from old quilts. Some people specialize in doing over old furniture.

Joyce said, "You have to know your market. I usually have a good idea where every item I purchase is going."

And how does Joyce let the auctioneer know she is interested in an item while clerking?

"Oh, that's easy," she said with a smile. "I just kick or pinch him. I'm sitting right beside him."

The main advantage of being a sale clerk is that you get to see every item up close.

"I actually prefer to buy at estate sales, but they are in big demand by all antique dealers."

Joyce collects dolls, lamps, and antique furniture.

"That is what I look for myself," she said.

"I try to be selective when collecting. For instance, all of my dolls are good ones...German. My best doll has her mouth closed. They are worth more that way because most dolls have their mouths open.

"China or bisque dolls are rare at rural auctions," she explained. "Most country children played with rag dolls."

Of furniture, Joyce said, "I like Victorian furniture, but I love anything made from curly maple. I have been fortunate to find several good pieces."

Joyce said, "I got into the antique business many years ago. I always liked antique furniture and when I started attending auctions, I would often buy something and then not have a place to put it. I started selling at a profit and my interest got deeper. It just grew from there.

"I made a lot of mistakes and learned from them. I don't think anyone could be in the antique business and not make mistakes. But, once you pay a $100 for something that you can only sell for $50, you learn. I have shelves full of books on antiques but have learned the most by just doing."

In addition to the person to person selling, Joyce also has a booth at Founder's Crossing, an antique and craft mart, in Bedford.

"I do get carried away just a bit," Joyce laughs as she displays a collection of three chests, one piled on top of the other according to size, and added, "And, they are all full."

Her collections offer side benefits in addition to enjoying the pieces she collects. She said, "I figure it is all part of my retirement. Or, when I need some money in a hurry, I just sell something."

In addition to buying, selling, and clerking at antique auctions, Joyce is also a farmer.

Joyce and her husband own a farm, which was featured on the cover of the Bedford County telephone book for 2001.

In addition, Joyce hauls hay and milks cows for her brother, Larry Beegle, who lives on the farm which has been in the family for more than 240 years.

"I love cows," Joyce said. "I name them, baby them, and we keep them until they drop. To me, it's a sad day when one of my cows dies."

She loves the farm so much she is willing to put up with the inconvenience of milking twice a day despite her hectic antique schedule.

Joyce's husband, Bob, owns a tire and realignment shop near their home.

Joyce's doll collection peers down the stairs from a comfortable position on an antique love seat.

The master bedroom is an antique lover's delight. Currier and Ives prints of children adorn the walls. The boxes are all handcrafted and add a colorful touch.

An antique clock is one her latest purchases. Joyce said, "I was delighted to tell this lady I would never sell it. A bill of sale showed the clock sold for $20 in 1916."

Curly maple is her favorite wood and Joyce is proud to own several pieces.

Other bird prints, such as those done by John Gould, a less familiar name, sell for far less. When floral prints by English artist Dr. Robert Thornton make a rare auction appearance, their pre-auction estimates can be as low as $300/500. However, as a recent Skinner auction proved, for the knowledgeable collector, those low estimates were a golden opportunity. Out of the six Thornton floral prints, one sold for $1,092.50 and another for $3,105. There was a good reason.

Antiques Questions And Answers

Can you advise us on selling the items in the enclosed photos that belonged to my grandmother and great aunt?

Before you can sell antiques you have to have an idea of value. From your photos you appear to have late 19th century furniture. Pay a personal property appraiser, preferably belonging to one of the Appraisal societies, such as American Society of Appraisers, listed in the yellow pages under antiques appraisers. Get the appraisal in writing, signed and dated and ask the items be appraised at resale value. (Half of retail). You can always run an ad and do an "estate sale". If the appraiser tries to say your pieces aren't worth anything, but he'll take them off your hands, throw him out. From your photos you have some quality pieces, though not worth thousands.

I have an aluminum tray and waste basket both marked "Wendell August forge" received as wedding gifts in 1936. Where can I find an appraiser?

be the most expensive flower prints, the engravings from his Temple of Flora (c.1799-1804) number only 35. The first and best printing consisted of not more than 400 copies of each.

These were from the Temple of Flora. Obviously the buyers had done their homework.

Print collecting in general can be a risky business, where old prints are involved. It is certainly a truism that when an antique or

First you need to know the name of the patterns. Of the many makers of aluminum in the 1930s, 40s, Wendell August is among the finest. Generally his wastebaskets sell in shops from $150 to $250. His trays run from $100 up. Most any dealer can appraise these with a simple Price Guide, once the pattern is identified.

Would you know the value of this small, mahogany cabinet purchased in the 1920s, 30s? The bottom half has a metal interior and once had a humidior. I've never seen anything like it.

L.F. - Miami, FL

This is a humidior, popular with cigar smokers of the 1930s. Today it could fetch over $2,000 at auction.

This is one of a pair of porcelain Capodimonte lamps, with raised flowers purchased about 50 years ago. I would like to know the value so I can sell them.

R.S. - Coral Gables, FL

While your lamps are very beautiful they aren't antiques. They could sell for around $150-250 the pair at auction. You might contacting Sloan's Auctioneers Miami, 8861 NW 18th Terrace, Suite 100, Miami, FL 33172. Send clear photos, measurements.

art form becomes popular, fakers won't be far behind. The faking and copying of prints plagued Albert Durer back in 1512, when copies of his works were so widespread that the Nuremberg town council wrote a decree making this a crime. Woodblocks and copperplates made reprints easy even then and is a snap these days.

CLUES: Botanical or floral prints became so popular in the 1920s-1930s, that reproductions were sold even in Woolworth's for a couple of dollars. Printed in great quantities they are still around at budget prices, at garage sales and flea markets.

Prints were hand-colored until about 1850 when they were color lithographed. Since then thousands of re-strikes have been made. There are several ways to identify the early 20th century re-strikes. When a strong magnifying glass or jeweler's loupe is used the print will show an overall pattern of tiny dots. However, since the 1970s the photographic prints are close to impossible to tell. One clue, the handcolored prints will be very slightly raised and have a bit of texture.

If paying a high price, examine the print out of the frame. If they have been cut down, this lowers the price. Often re-strikes will have a copyright date, skillfully hidden under an old frame.

Old prints will have a water mark. This is a translucent identifying mark made during the manufacture of the paper. They can be a crown, monogram or company name; further proof of the print's age.

A facsimile is a photochemical reproduction of a print. Examining it with a magnifying glass can show the pattern of tell-tale small dots. A reproductive print is an original print that is a copy of a painting or drawing.

Among the most valuable prints are those that are in their original portfolio. This is the case or folio and the set of prints that are part of these complete set.

These folios were popular with collectors in the 19th century and many were produced.

However, over the years, many of the folios were separated and favorite prints taken out.

Another reason to examine out of the frame is it could be "laid down," pasted directly on a backing material without hinging. This lowers the value. Removing the backing is a job for professional restorers, and is costly but worth it if you have a rare print.

The Reel Auggie Design provides a fluffy, more palatable ration that promotes feed consumption. When your cows consume more high quality feed, they'll produce more milk.

THAT'S THE BOTTOM LINE!

Crop Preservative

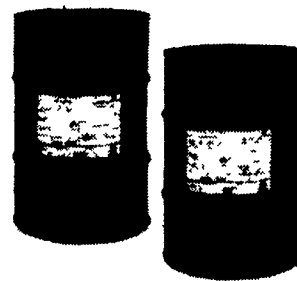

THE ADVANTAGES OF CROPSAVER-TREATED HAY VS DRY PRESERVATIVE-TREATED HAY.
CropSaver-treated hay is greener and more moist. Improved hay bale quality brings a higher sale price. Cows love it and produce more milk when they eat it. CropSaver is chemically buffered, minimizing equipment rust. Dry hay preservatives are weaker, usually labeled only up to 25% moisture, and are more difficult to apply evenly and consistently.

Look at These Prices on CropSaver™ Hay Preservative

Match A Spreader To Your Needs

W Yourself 100 Thin

Get Unmatched Flexibility At A Great Price.

With eight sizes to choose from and a wide variety of options, it's easy to see how the New Idea® 3700 Series Spreaders meet the needs of any operation. Their aggressive, main beater paddles are strategically spaced and angled to shred a wide range of material while giving you a consistent spread pattern.

Culvert-grade galvanizing over one-piece, copper-bearing steel sides provide a barrier against rust and corrosion. And for hauling long distances, the truck-mount option proves to be the safest, most economical way to transport large amounts of material.

To see how simple it is to customize your spreading operation, contact your AGCO® New Idea dealer today. You'll be surprised how much time and money you'll save with the New Idea 3700 Series Spreaders.

3500 BLADE
(300 Draw Bar HP
Tractors Max.)

The 3500 blade is available in widths of 12' and 14' and features a massive CAT
III-IV three-point hitch and quick-hitch. The 14' model is rated for up to 250 draw bar horsepower wheel-type tractors. Hydraulic adjustment of the mainframe swing, moldboard angle, and moldboard tilt is standard for easy and fast adjustments. The 3500 features a maximum of 50" of offset to easily reach outside the dual wheels of large tractors. The 5" diameter solid steel kingpin, boxed-section, reinforced 1/2" x 20" moldboard, and heavy-duty hitch and mainframe provide the dependability Rhino blades are known for. Skid shoes, quick-tach end plates, and dual gauge wheels are optional equipment adding to the versatility of the 3500 blade.

GEHL SCAVENGER® SPREADER

Model 1315 In Stock Proven Performer

Gehl's Scavenger® Spreader delivers the performance you need year after year, with increased durability and outstanding application control. All thanks to the following features:

- Heavy-duty round core auger with segmented paddles to blend manure. Powered both up and down to ram through heavy loads and break up bridging.
- Special "V" tank design to handle solid, heavy bedded, semi-solid, self leveling and liquid manure.
- Adjustable auger and expeller speeds spread more types of manure
- Variflow™ discharge featuring square-tooth expeller paddles for smooth, even spreading at the rate you choose.
- Improved drive system with heavier final drive chains and enhanced idler system.

VAN DALE

COMES CLOSE

When it comes to durability in a mid-sized tractor, nothing weighs in heavier than a Massey Ferguson 4200 Series tractor. Heavy-duty components, like a long-stroke Perkins Fastram™ diesel engine and available Powershuttle transmission, tip the scale toward unmatched performance and durability. For more hefty reasons to buy a 4200 Series tractor, visit your Massey Ferguson dealer today.

Handles your biggest spreading jobs

The New Holland Model 195 box spreader is up to your biggest spreading jobs.

- Capacity. The "195" takes on 410 bushels (440 cu. ft.) without finching
- Strong construction. Corrosion-resistant steels last and last. And an HDPE floor means smooth unloading, even in cold weather
- Bonded Protection warranty. If the polyethylene floor fails or the sides rust, you'll get new ones FREE for 12 years
- Fast clean out... even with this big-capacity strong box
- Large tandem oscillating wheels... allow faster ground speeds in rough terrain, with less ground compaction

Check out our biggest New Holland spreader... from the biggest name in spreaders.

Go With The Flow.

The GLEANER® R52 rotary combine, with its 245-bushel standard bin capacity and 230 hp Cummins engine, gives you the technical edge of our Natural Flow processing. The constant angle of feed to the processor means superior threshing and separating. And moving material smoothly—instead of tossing and turning—protects your crop's final quality.

Come in for a closer look at the R52, along with details on the exclusive GLEANER warranty. It covers your GLEANER combine from header to spreader for 2 years, with unlimited hours and no deductible. There's really no smarter way to go.

Soilless Media Manufacturer Begins Production

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — In the early 1980s, Frey Brothers, Inc. started producing bulk hardwood mulch products, a by-product from their timber- and log-sawing operations. Their mulch was mostly channeled to independent garden centers within a 100-mile radius of Lancaster County.

By 1987, Frey Brothers, Inc. was offering bagged product in their brand names of Twin Oaks and Four Corners. Later in 1998, with the addition of a 36,000-square-foot bagging facility, processing of bag product at Frey Brothers, Inc. had reached the fully automated stage.

Frey Brothers, Inc. has just added a highly accurate mixing facility complete with a computerized formulating and delivery system. On Aug. 1, Frey Brothers, Inc. processed its first cubic yard of professional growers mix at its Quarryville plant.

Karl Frey, production manager, was impressed by the accuracy and consistency of this new equipment. This new mix is one of four basic mixes being offered to growers in 2.8 cubic foot bags, 60 cubic feet returnable bulk bags, and in bulk trailer loads.

Ernie Frey II, bagging plant manager, will be packaging the 2.8 cubic foot bags in pallets of 40 bags each. This will reduce the handling weight of pallets being unloaded at the grower's location. Frey Brothers, Inc. will provide delivery and offers a pallet unloading option at no additional cost.

Each Frey Brothers, Inc. formula includes a starter nutrient charge, a pH adjuster, a wetting agent and a secondary nutrient addition. The grower will quickly notice that each bag of mix will include processed coconut coir fiber, which assists in mix wetting and rewetting characteristics.

Unverferth's Earthquake disk ripper.

Unverferth Introduces Earthquake™ Disk Ripper

SHELL ROCK, Iowa — Unverferth Manufacturing Company, Inc. announces the introduction of the Earthquake™ disk ripper to its lineup of Brent® tillage products. Its combination of front disk gangs, deep-till shanks and rear disk gangs cuts and mixes crop residue four to six inches deep; shatters hardpan 12-18 inches deep and smooths the soil for a level, uniform surface that resists wind and water erosion and makes an easy-to-prepare seedbed.

The Earthquake disk ripper's heavy-duty mainframe with self-leveling hitch is constructed of five inches by seven inches high-strength, special-alloy steel for maximum durability.

The front disk gangs feature heavy-duty trunnion-mount bearings and 24 inch, shallow-concave blades that cut at an 18-degree angle for ideal residue sizing and mixing. The 24-inch blades on the rear disk gangs can be set from 14 to 16 degrees for a soil surface finish to meet the individual needs.

The 1¼ inch by four inch thick, parabolic-style deep-till shanks are easily adjustable in one-inch increments. The Ultra-Flex™ shank arms feature six inch lateral movement for consistent, uniform soil penetration and easy movement around buried obstacles. Winged points are also available if even greater shattering action is required. The shanks are set for 4,380 pounds of trip pressure for optimum penetration and the trip mechanism is also shear-bolt protected for operation in severe conditions.

The Earthquake disk ripper is available in a seven-shank model with a shank spacing of 30 inches, nine-shank model with shanks spacings of 30 inches and a 10-shank model with shank spacing of 24 inches.

Schick Enterprises Improves Hog Raising

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — Headed by Company President Paul Schick, Schick Enterprises has developed a revolutionary method of raising hogs, called the Sortall Building.

Lowering labor requirements and increasing profits can now be achieved through the use of this highly researched, newly developed, and patent-pending facility.

Designed to allow two large pens of hogs to sort themselves using only one scale, the Sortall

FFA Members Finish Third In National Competition

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Recently, three local FFA members won third place in the sixth annual Chevron Texaco Lubricants Tractor Competition for a gas-powered 1949 Farmall M series tractor they restored.

Jesse Bitler, Ben Mast, and Brian Peifer from Oley Valley School District were given their prizes, including a plaque and $1,000 to split between the team, during the FFA Convention in Louisville, Ky.

Judges for the competition, provided by Chevron Texaco, evaluated three main categories: overall appearance, mechanical operation, and safety components of each tractor. The contestants were split into two categories: individual and chapter competitors. Bitler, Mast and Peifer won second runner-up in the chapter competition.

Bitler said, "We impressed ourselves. We were the only winning team that did not have any prior experience in the competition. We placed over teams that had won in the past."

The competition encourages students to learn the intricate operation of tractor mechanics and to work successfully in teams. Participants were required to track their progress in a workbook specially developed by Chevron Texaco to aid the students with record keeping, expense management, and project coordination, according to Chevron Texaco's Website.

Besides their work restoring the tractor and tracking their progress in the workbook, the three students had to give a 20-minute PowerPoint presentation and answer 10 minutes of questions about their restoration efforts. Local computer enthusiast Jerry Weidner helped the students get the PowerPoint presentation running on school equipment.

The gas-powered 1949 Farmall M series tractor was acquired from a retired farmer who had used it heavily for 25 years and then stored it for another 25. The students spent 896 grueling hours in the tedious process of restoring the tractor. "It was nice to see all our hard work paid off," Bitler said.

The project received support from Hooper, Inc. Hooper supplied free technical advice and discounted parts support. Besides entering the tractor in the national competition, the students showed the tractor at the Oley fair last September and has offered it to Hooper to be used in hayrides and displayed in the showroom.

Eby Introduces All-Aluminum Livestock Trailers

BLUE BALL (Lancaster Co.) — M.H. Eby, Inc. introduces the Maverick LS Series, a line of versatile livestock trailers designed to provide small to mid-size farm, ranch, and livestock operations with benefits of Eby's all-aluminum trailers.

The new Maverick LS models feature a reduced width of 6 foot 5 inches for improved visibility and handling. They are designed to be pulled with lighter duty trucks or SUVs.

The Maverick LS product line includes bumper hitch trailers with floor lengths of 13 foot or 16 foot and inside heights of 6 foot 6 inches or 7 foot. All Maverick LS models can be purchased at Eby Dealers throughout the U.S. and Canada.

Engineered for durable performance for a wide range of livestock, Maverick LS trailers are built to Eby's rugged all-aluminum construction. The design includes aluminum crossmembers, top and bottom rails, side posts and slats, center partition, aerodynamic front end, side door, rear frame, and rear door.

Included as standard is a .125 inch thick flat aluminum diamond plate floor. Other standard features include a one-piece .040 inch aluminum roof, electric brakes, tire carrier, full width rubber dock bumper, two skid plates at rear, inside sealed beam dome light, and exterior lights per DOT requirements.

Tillage Device Tackles No-Till Yield Limits

RACINE, Wis. — Farmers can now have the best of both worlds. They can gain consistent yield benefits of conventional tillage and have the surface-residue retention of no-till with the introduction of the new DMI eco-lo-strip'r™ 2500.

The eco-lo-strip'r™ 2500 manages subsurface and surface yield barriers — such as compaction and cold, wet seed beds

Building uses specially engineered feeding and holding areas, in addition to a unique gating and fencing system, among other features, to make hog raising more efficient and cost-effective.

Growers can achieve higher sort bonuses through Schick's extremely accurate sorting method. The building design also allows for the isolated watering of electrolytes, as well as market group feed withholding, which, together, result in lower carcass shrinkage and higher yielding carcasses with greater tenderness.

The Sortall's large pen configuration also eliminates the dominant hog, thus reducing death losses from fighting.

while protecting Highly Erodable Land (HEL). In a single pass, the eco-lo-strip'r™ 2500 fractures compacted soil while building and conditioning the "strip" that settles level, ready for planting.

"Tackling the year-over-year yield deterioration of no-till without disturbing the majority of the soil surface is a difficult task," says Kent Senf, DMI marketing manager, tillage. "But, the eco-lo-strip'r™ 2500 does it with ease."

By shattering compaction and reorienting the soil aggregates, the eco-lo-strip'r™ 2500 creates a healthier soil profile that allows roots to explore a greater volume of soil and obtain more nutrients. The right balance of soil (minerals and organic matter) and pore space (air and water) in the root zone also improves potential water infiltration and utilization.

The eco-lo-strip'r™ 2500 comes equipped with heavy-duty berm build'rs™ that catch loosened soil and fill grooves left by the shanks, while raising the seed bed to an ideal level. This improves the seed bed drainage, resulting in increased soil temperature within the seed zone, while disturbing only approximately one-third (row width) of the surface. Additionally, this improved seed bed allows more uniform plant stands that utilize sunlight, water and nutrients more effectively, while leaving the traffic area sturdy and preventing erosion.

No-till farmers face the difficult task of creating an optimum seed bed, while also avoiding disturbing the majority of the soil surface. The DMI eco-lo-strip'r™ 2500 shatters compaction and reorients soil aggregates in the tillage "strip" to create a healthier soil environment.

Weigh Wagon Comparisons Can Evaluate Crop Hybrids

DES MOINES, Iowa — Harvest is rapidly approaching, and its time to schedule weigh wagon checks to measure and compare yields of corn hybrids and soybean varieties.

Taking the time can be well worth the effort, because weigh wagon comparisons provide valuable information about hybrid and variety performance based on local conditions. This is information that can be used in selecting seed for next year.

"Seed companies such as Pioneer provide producers with a lot of information about hybrid and variety characteristics ranging from yield to disease resistance on all their commercial products," says Danny Greene, technical information manager for Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., in Bloomington, Ill. "This information helps producers select the right products for their farms. However, the bottom line in the decision process is how a specific hybrid or variety performed in the producer's own field.

"Making weigh wagon comparisons each year gives producers this information. And collecting data for several years at multiple locations gives a producer a real picture of the value of a hybrid or variety," Greene explains.

Weigh wagon comparisons are also a good way to evaluate how new genetics are performing under local conditions and how well a variety or hybrid performs against a competing product. "Pioneer does not win every side-by-side comparison, but we use all the yield data from weigh wagon comparisons to help with future improvements in the company's seed product line," says Greene.

Confirming test weights of harvested corn and soybeans is another benefit of completing several weigh wagon comparisons each year. "All hybrids and varieties do not have the same test weight," says Greene. "Making a visual evaluation on the volume or yield doesn't give a producer the complete information about a hybrid or variety. The majority of time, grain produced using Pioneer seed has a higher test weight than grain grown from competitive products."

New Legume Available To Increase Nitrogen In Soil

FLASHER, N.D. — David Krause, owner of Dakota Frontier Seeds, announced that AC Greenfix, a variety of chickling vetch (Lathyrus sativus) also known as grass pea or grassy peavine, is now available in the U.S. for farmers looking for an alternative way to increase nitrogen in the soil. This legume has the ability to fix high amounts of nitrogen in the soil with both green manuring and no-till methods.

AC Greenfix is the legume of choice for green manuring (or greenfallow) because of its unique drought tolerance and ability to fix high amounts of nitrogen in only eight to 10 weeks from emergence to full bloom.

In a four-year test, on-farm trials produced an average of 100 pounds per acre of total nitrogen. In Canada, where the seed was developed, research test plots have achieved a high of 210 pounds of nitrogen per acre.

AC Greenfix can tolerate some frost; which enables growers to seed early in the spring. It also survives well during drought and heat, and it responds well to irrigation, making it suitable for a variety of climates and soil types.

AC Greenfix has great potential as a soil-improving crop and as an alternative to commercial fertilizers. A seeding rate of 70 to 80 pounds per acre is suggested for green manuring, or 50 pounds per acre for seed production. Cost of seed is 50 cents per pound.

POURED SOLID CONCRETE

START WITH THE BEST!

POURED CONCRETE WALLS

You get about 40% more concrete for your dollar with a poured, solid concrete basement as compared to a hollow core block basement

A poured solid concrete basement weighs about 50 lbs more per cubic foot! Far denser. What's more, poured solid concrete walls are monolithic...there are no joints!

This is why laboratory tests show poured, solid concrete basements have many times the flexural and compressive strength to withstand the side and down pressures caused by earth, wind, water and building loads and the material density to resist water penetration

Best of all, thanks to modern and efficient construction techniques, poured, solid concrete basements are competitively priced

Solid Concrete For:

- Manure Pit Walls
- Hog House Walls
- Barnyard Walls
- Chicken House Walls
- Retaining Walls
- House Foundation Walls
- Silage Pit Walls
- Cistern Walls
- Concrete Decks
- Concrete Pit Tops

Waterbeds for Cows

ALANTA®

A member of the T.M. Poly Group of Companies
Farm Equipment

The ALANTA Waterbed for cows is a revolutionary product, comfortable, safe and hygienic. It clearly improves your cows' well-being and therefore promotes higher milk production. It is the ultimate stall floor covering for the modern, animal-friendly dairy farm.

WELL MADE

The ALANTA Waterbed is made of two rubber layers with a water-filled compartment in between. GD-Enerka gives a 10-year guarantee.

COMFORTABLE

The waterbed molds itself to the cow's shape. It's cool in summer and pleasantly warm in winter.

SAFE

Thanks to the non-slip rubber upper surface, the cow is gripped firmly and cannot slip off. In this way the ALANTA waterbed keeps damage to hooves to a minimum.

BEST BLOOM

100% Pure
Unprocessed Corn Oil

Are you getting horses ready to sell or show? Do you like to keep your horse's in full bloom, smooth and sleek? Do you like the idea of having a first glance at your horse's result in an appreciative full look? And most important, does saving money appeal to you?

You don't need to spend those big bucks on all those fancy feed additives. Two or three pumps on top of your horse's feed morning and evening (depending on his size) will put on the bloom that you love. When used with good feeds and a regular worming program Best Bloom will do the job!!

WE U.P.S.
Daily*Attention: Swine and Poultry Producers

Announcing:

Crude Soy Oil Now AvailableWith the addition of our new soybean processing facility, we now offer soybean oil as an animal nutrition product.
Processing the soybeans ourselves allows us to utilize locally grown soybeans and support our local agricultural community!Crude Soybean OilA product of Keystone's expelling process, this oil can be used in a wide variety of on farm applications. Crude soy oil is a natural alternative to animal fats and provides needed energy in various rations.Uses of Crude Soy Oil Include:

- Use as a high energy feed ingredient in swine and poultry diets.
- Especially useful in sow lactation diets, pig starter and grow/finish diets.
- Used as an added energy source in broiler, turkey and layer feeds.
- Can be used for dust control purposes.
- Can be used as a lubricant for feeding systems.

Advantages of Crude Soy Oil:

- Use as a direct replacement for animal fat.
- Vegetable based product.
- Holding tank does not need to be heated if temperature is above 30 degrees, which reduces storage and handling costs compared to animal fat.
- Bulk delivery, partial loads available direct to farm by Keystone Mills.
- Customer may pick up to save delivery costs.

Other Soy Products Available:

- Keystone offers Golden Pro 46 XP which is 46% protein - 6-7% oil,
- Golden Meal 40 which is 40% crude protein with 18% oil.

Keystone Mills Soybean Exchange Program

- We will take your soybeans in trade for Golden ProXP 46, Golden Meal 40.
- Contact Keystone Mills for details on our soybean exchange program featuring these quality nutritional products.

COUNTY FARMThis farm is ideally located at the base of a mountain range in Northern Dauphin County, (Lykens Valley), near Millersburg. The buildings are set several hundred yards off the main road, creating that perfect Currier & Ives setting everyone dreams about with the mountain as a back drop.
The buildings feature a very well maintained brick center hall farm house with 4 large bedrooms and a large country kitchen. The out buildings consist of a 38x40 Bank Barn, 25x42 heated shop and 60x120
Morton pole building used for equipment storage.
The majority of 100 tillable acres is gently rolling productive farm land with approximately 12 acres of pasture and 41 acres of woodland. This farm would be ideal for vegetable production with its fertile crop land and abundant water supply for irrigation or it would make a perfect country estate, with its beautiful setting and buildings.
